Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover's surprise announcement today that Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Chicago's colorful banker and public man, will head the Reconstruction Finance corporation and that he will be replaced by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson as chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference, has been hailed on all sides as a development of great significance.

Those who have been scanning the financial horizon daily for an omen of a revival of prosperity think they perceive it at last in the person of "Hell 'n' Maria" Dawes directing the disposition of the two billion dollars of government money with loans by which the Reconstruction Finance corporation will succor banks, railroads and other key interests paralyzed by the depression.

Has Record of Accomplishment.

If anybody can lead the country out of its economic doldrums, in the opinion of such watchers of the skies, it will be the forthright man of business who, in the odor of linguistic brimstone, overcame all obstacles to the establishment of the army supply service in France, who cut away a labyrinth of red tape to establish the federal budget system and who shook up the dry bones of Europe to create the Dawes plan for payment of Germany reparations.

They are confident that the appointment of Gen. Dawes to the operation of the biggest and most important piece of machinery set up to revive business is the psychologic factor in the restoration of confidence for which the country has been waiting. An indication of such reaction to President Hoover's announcement is seen in the action of the stock market in the trading immediately thereafter.

Ready to Go to Work.

Gen. Dawes, whose resignation as ambassador to Great Britain and as chairman of the American delegation to the disarmament conference will be accepted by President Hoover forthwith, is in Washington ready to begin functioning as president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation as soon as that measure is finally approved by congress and signed by the executive. This will be some time this week. The general made it known that he will rip off his coat and get busy on the big job at once, sending back to London for his family and his trunks.

His first encounter with the press following the announcement was replete with Dawesian idiosyncrasies. He was closeted with Secretary Stimson when the reporters asked an interview. Within three minutes thereafter he burst, grinning, into the state department press headquarters.

Brings Out an Interview.

"You fellows want to see me?" queried the general in that famous high pitched voice as he waved his upside down pipe. "Well, all right, get your pencils and take this down. This is going to be brief. I do not consider this a talking job."

At that the general hit the big press table a resounding whack with his fist and glared about him.

"When one is beginning important work it is no time to talk about it—"

Two bangs of the fist this time and another glare.

"When one is working at the job there is no time to talk about it—"

The general danced about, waving his pipe, gathered himself for another explosion and smote the table another bang.

"And when the job is finished, talking about it is not necessary."

That Ends the Interview.

Another leap, another bang, another wave of the pipe and the general whirled about and shot out of the room, slamming the door behind him before a single question could be put to him. He denied himself to interviewers the remainder of the day.

From the state department the general went to the senate, strolling onto the floor through one door as Gov. Alfalfa Bill Murray entered through another. They grinned at each other and shook hands. Then Gen. Dawes went to luncheon with Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.] in the senate restaurant, where they were joined by Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board, who will be chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

There was much discussion among Republicans of the political signifi-

CAR FORCED OUT OF LINE BY UNION IS HIT BY TRUCK

One young woman was fatally injured and nine other youths and girls were hurt, two of them seriously, yesterday afternoon when their automobile collided with a coal truck after they had been forced to leave a funeral procession on orders of a hearse driver.

The hearse driver was enforcing the new rule of the livery chauffeurs' union that no privately driven automobiles may take part in a funeral procession.

Funeral For Slain Athlete.

The funeral was that of Louis Lakin, 18 years old, captain of the 1931 Tuley High school basketball team, who was shot to death on Sunday night when he and other youths tried to "crash" a dance at the Herzl Community center, 1335 North California avenue.

Witnesses of yesterday's rites said the union chauffeurs made it their business to see that the hundreds of persons who wished to follow Lakin's body to the grave did so under difficulties. Besides the accident, the funeral procession was interrupted several times by union warnings.

Nine Injured in Crash.

The collision of the automobile and the truck occurred at Division street and Pine avenue when the car was hurrying to reach the cemetery in time for the burial. The young woman who died as a result of the accident was Shirley Pearlman, 17 years old, 2057 North Sawyer avenue. She was a Tuley High school student, as are all those injured. They are:

Dolly Rand, 17 years old, 1350 North Leavitt street, who was thrown through the windshield and suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries which may cause her death.

Inquest Will Be Today.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh ordered the body of Miss Pearlman taken to the county morgue, where an inquest will be held at 2:30 p. m. today. All the witnesses to the action of the hearse driver and the union chauffeur of the first limousine in the cortége, as well as those who saw the actual crash, have been summoned.

The accident and the interruptions of the Lakin funeral procession were the only serious troubles that occurred during the many funerals yesterday. The union drivers were able to inflict their rule upon other mourners.

Police at Mrs. Johnson's Funeral.

The burial rites for Mrs. Mathilda Johnson, the mother of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, were carried out with the chauffeurs' union in absolute command of the situation. The services for Mrs. Johnson were held in her home at 626 Wellington avenue with an unasked detail of police present.

State's Attorney Swanson, who has undertaken to oppose the union's control over public action at funerals, offered to furnish police protection for Mrs. Johnson's funeral if District Attorney Johnson decided to advise his friends to take issue with the union decree.

Mr. Johnson, however, informed Mr. Swanson that he did not desire police protection on the trip to the cemetery. His grief was such that he was not in the mood to combat an injustice, Mr. Swanson said.

Captain Attends Services.

Nevertheless Capt. Alfred Christensen of the Sheffield avenue station and a detail of police under the command of a uniformed sergeant were present at the home when the body was carried down to the waiting hearse.

Former United States Senator Deneen, United States Marshal Laubenheimer, Collector of Customs Czarnecki and many others attended the services.

The union edict was strictly enforced. The hearse and five union livery cars supplied by the mortician left the home in orderly procession. With two exceptions, those in private cars made no effort to get in the line

Huey P. Long Shows 'Em He Runs Louisiana

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Huey P. Long, the "pot likker" statesman of the bayous, demonstrated today at the polls that he is still the political boss of Louisiana.

Tonight his hand picked slate, headed by O. K. Allen for governor, had captured the Democratic primaries by a record breaking majority, estimated at 50,000, over the combined votes of all opposing candidates. If the early estimates are borne out there will be no second or "run-off" primary and Allen will step into Gov. Long's office at the regular election without opposition.

This will leave the spectacular Huey Long free to take the seat in the United States senate to which he was elected many months ago, but which he refused to occupy until he had chosen a successor who would continue his policies.

Brother Versus Brother.

The campaign was enlivened by the desertion of Earl Long, a brother of the governor, to the Guion forces, who nominated him for lieutenant governor.

Last night at a massmeeting of Guion supporters Earl Long publicly challenged his brother to meet him at noon today in front of the Roosevelt hotel, the Long headquarters, and "fight it out" with fists.

"The big bellied Huey P. Long is the yellowest coward that ever lived," Brother Earl said last night. "I dare him to meet me in front of the Roosevelt hotel, unaccompanied by his gunmen, and I will let the people see how I can chase him twenty blocks.

"It's a strange thing that Huey Long's wife, all of his brothers and sisters, all of his nieces and nephews and all of his cousins are going to vote against his dummy candidate, O. K. Allen."

Today at noon Earl Long was on the spot ready for battle, but the governor chose to ignore the challenge. So the exasperated Earl made a public speech on the sidewalk, shouting, "Huey is afraid to show up!"

Trouble at the Polls.

The election machinery of the state was controlled today by the Long adherents and many charges of violence were made by the anti-Long forces.

Attorney General Percy Saint charged that thousands of fraudulent poll tax receipts and registration papers were being accepted by Long election officials.

The attorney general was informed that in Jefferson parish, at Barataria, once the headquarters of the famous pirate, Lafitte, a group of armed men took charge of the polling booth, illegally set up in a barn and made of cheesecloth, through which Long supporters could watch each voter as he marked his ballot.

Told to "Vote Right."

The Long watchers, it was charged, told each voter in advance that he "had better vote for the Long ticket."

Dr. Charles Gelbke, mayor of Gretna, Beauregard Miller, candidate for sheriff of Jefferson parish on the anti-Long ticket, and Tom Gilmore, attorney attached to the George Guion headquarters, attempted to take photographs of the gunmen. Mr. Gilmore was thrown into jail and Dr. Gelbke and Special Attorney Ralp Viosca were driven away from the polls.

In his headquarters tonight, Gov. Long laughed at the charges of violence. "This was a quiet election," he said. "The corn-pone eating, pot likker dunkin citizens of Louisiana have returned my ticket by a handsome majority. There will be no second primary. We have won in the first and, of course this is equivalent to an election."

FOES' ATTEMPT TO AMEND IT IS BEATEN, 87 TO 18

Cermak Predicts Its Passage Today.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Attacks on the senate's Kelly plan bill were beaten off so decisively in the house today that Mayor Cermak and other officials backing the measure said all the signs pointed to its passage tomorrow when it comes up for final reading as special business.

LEROY M. GREEN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

For enactment in its present form—including an emergency clause to make it effective immediately—102 votes are required instead of the bare majority of 77 which would make the new law effective on July 1. A similar bill which originated in the house was killed last week after mustering a maximum of 80 votes. The indications today were that there are considerably more members ready to vote for the Kelly plan now, but despite Mayor Cermak's confidence there was a question whether it would receive the desired 102. Today's vote was 87 to 18.

A Decision for Cermak.

If it fails to muster that total the Chicago mayor and his advisers will be called upon tomorrow for a quick decision whether to kill the bill and rely upon Gov. Emmerson to call a third special session or to drop the emergency clause and seek its passage by 77 votes. It is considered likely that the latter procedure will be followed.

Gov. Emmerson in his message opening the second special session of the legislature late this afternoon took cognizance of the Cook county situation.

Although the second special session, running concurrently with the first, is to consider mainly reductions in state salaries and the question of calling a constitutional convention, the governor in his message expressed the hope that its deliberations will in no way interfere with the consideration of the important legislation pending before the first special session, called to help distressed Chicago.

It's Urgent, He Warns.

"It is of the utmost urgency that financial relief be afforded to Chicago and the other municipal corporations in Cook county," the governor added.

He has let it be known that he is prepared to call a third special session if the first session breaks up without affording Chicago relief. In fact, he has in mind calling a fourth special session if necessary.

The skirmish today was comparatively peaceful. Minority Leader Michael L. Igoe, who marshaled the opposition last week, left for Peoria before the gavel fell to speak at a luncheon of the local Lions' club, an appearance considered a part of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor. Possibly because of his absence, the hostilities lacked the punch they showed a week ago.

Green Leads Attack.

The most important attack on the Kelly compromise came from Leroy Green [Rep., Rockford], who presented an amendment which yesterday's rumors said Igoe intended to introduce. Questioned about the coincidence, Representative Green said the amendment was his own. He added that he had told Igoe about it before the latter's departure for Peoria.

This amendment would have restored the bill to its original form, which provided that the proposed single assessor and the two members of the board of tax appeals be appointed by the president of the county board. This plan was dropped by the Cook county conferences in which it was agreed that a Republican controlled assembly would not convey such power to a Democrat—President Whealan.

It was because of that feeling that

UNION BLOCKS LAKE FOREST'S AID TO JOBLESS

The $42,000 building program authorized ten days ago by the city council of Lake Forest in order to relieve the unemployment situation in the suburb was definitely abandoned last night by order of Mayor A. D. Farwell. The plan was abandoned, it was stated, because Max Baade of Waukekan, business agent of the carpenters' union, refused to allow carpenters to work for less than the union scale of $13 a day.

The program consisted of repairs to the city hall, fire engine house, and other municipal buildings. The aldermen authorized the payment of $1 an hour for skilled labor and 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor. Numerous carpenters in Lake Forest have been without work for a year and a half, but their union refused to allow them to work at the scale set by the city council. There are 140 jobless men in Lake Forest.

"The program was adopted merely as a relief measure," said Mayor Farwell. "The municipal buildings are entirely adequate as the are and the refusal of the union men to work for $8 a day merely reacts upon them. The repairs can be indefinitely postponed."

Business Agent Baade warned the union carpenters that they were liable to suspension from the union and a fine of $300 if they worked for less than the union scale.

KIDNAP AND HOLD DENVER MAN FOR $50,000 RANSOM

Denver, Colo., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Police revealed Benjamin J. Bower, manager of Campbell-Sells Baking company, was kidnaped from his home tonight by two armed thugs who threatened to kill him if $50,000 ransom was not paid by tomorrow noon.

The armed desperadoes told Mrs. Bower that Stephen Knight, one of the owners of the bakery, could put up "plenty of money," police were told.

With every available Denver detective assigned to the case no trace of Bower or his captors could be found late tonight.

The gunmen a few minutes previously had forced two women to drive to the Bower home.

Baby Laughs at 2 Robbers as They Loot Papa's Home

Two year old Martin Steinberg sat in a high chair and laughed at the antics of two bandits while they ransacked the home of his father, Dr. Meyer J. Steinberg, 511 Independence boulevard, yesterday, taking jewelry and furs valued at $925. The robbers entered the home by pretending to be messengers. They bound Miss Hannah Noonan, a maid, and locked her in a bedroom.

Slice Salaries, Trio Demands of Congress

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Demands for a curtailment of government expenditures came today from a senator, a congressman, and a representative of the country's manufacturing industry.

WM. E. BORAH. [Harris & Ewing.]

The senator was William E. Borah, insurgent Republican of Idaho, and he introduced a bill which would cut the salaries of federal employes, receiving between $5,000 and $7,000, six per cent. between $7,000 and $10,000, ten per cent and $10,000 or more, which includes members of congress twenty per cent.

The congressman was Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], who seeks to put a rider on the agricultural appropriation bill to cut federal salaries of between $2,000 and $5,000 five per cent and ten per cent for salaries above $5,000.

"I have faith enough to believe that if the salaries of federal employés were reduced, the President would reduce his own," Mr. Wood said. "He has made a lot of money, but he has given it away. My information, from a reliable source, is that the President today is not worth a million dollars."

Bad Time for U. S. Spending.

The representative of industry was James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, who appeared before a house committee to warn members that a sure way to delay restoration of the opportunity to work is to divert too great a portion of private funds to public purposes.

The salaries of state and federal employés totaled some six billion dollars in 1931, or approximately 40 per cent of the cost of the state and national governments, Senator Borah pointed out as he introduced his bill.

Big Saving for Taxpayers.

"I am satisfied a reasonable reduction of salary will save taxpayers some 200 million or 225 million dollars," Senator Borah declared. "One of the great contributing causes of our present depression is taxes, the waste and extravagance of government from the city to the national government. At a time when we are driven to our wits' end to find more things to tax, and are putting new burdens upon an already overtaxed people, we must necessarily cut expenses wherever we can possibly do so."

Representative Wood told of millions drawing disability pay; abolition of the army and navy transport service, he said, would save two million dollars annually; he estimated that a 10 per cent cut in federal salaries would save at least 100 million dollars.

Now 13 Billions a Year.

Public expenditures — national, state, and local—now total some thirteen billion dollars annually, Mr. Emery reminded the congressmen who have before them the task of drawing up the new tax bill with its inevitably higher rates.

Of that huge total, Mr. Emery pointed out, only ten billion is met by immediate taxation, the remainder being met by continuous borrowings.

"Nearly one-fifth of the national income is taken for public purposes," he explained, "and we thus face a rising taxation with declining incomes."

Steps Out of Car Raised for Greasing; Breaks Hip

Effingham, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Dr. E. L. Damron, physician and druggist, drove into a service station to have his automobile greased. The attendant elevated the car on a hydraulic lift. Dr. Damron stepped out of the door backwards, falling seven feet. He suffered a broken hip.

the Kelly plan was agreed upon. Under its provisions the appointment of the three new officials would be shared by Whealan and Gov. Emmerson.

The Green amendment was defeated by a vote of 18 yeas to 87 nays, with 24 voting "present" and a number of members sitting silently in their seats. Then other attacks of a less serious nature were beaten off, the bill was advanced to third reading and the house recessed in order that it might convene for the second special session.

Although the atmosphere was tense, the house consideration of the Kelly bill was not without its lighter side. Roland V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago], asserted that Capt. Kidd and Simon Legree had combined to pass the "most nefarious document ever brought into a legislative hall." There was laughter, as there had been when Harry McCaskrin [Rep., Rock Island] spoke of a "Chicago man who grew great by fighting King George."

The head of the former city administration was again on hand in a Springfield hotel where he was busy trying to line up votes against the bill and giving out interviews that members were being offered $750 each to vote for the bill and that two members who had opposed it had seen their places of business in Chicago wrecked by orders of Mayor Cermak.

On the other hand advocates of the bill reported that they had been approached in strange ways by members of the opposition. One of these hostiles wanted to be assured he could name the election judges and clerks in his ward. Another said he had a son out of work. Another asked what was being offered for votes.

Starting Patching Bill.

When the bill was called up, two Chicagoans, Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep.] and James P. Boyle [Dem.], had the house adopt amendments to remedy oversights in the measure. One added a requirement that all of the proposed new taxing officials be residents of Cook county. Another provided that if there is a vacancy in the assessorship it shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment was made, by agreement of the governor and the president of the county board. Then a lor : string of changes to exclude St. Clair county from the effect of the bill were made.

In presenting his amendment, Representative Green contended that the assembly should disregard the fact that President Whealan is a Democrat and confine to Cook county the entire responsibility for the collection of taxes, his point being that if Gov. Emmerson has a hand in the appointments the Republicans and the downstate area will share in that responsibility.

Schnackenberg Answers Him.

Schnackenberg answered him with an argument that the Kelly plan is the only one that has a chance to pass the assembly and that will aid in restoring public confidence in the taxing machinery. He labeled the amendment an effort to kill the bill.

"This plan died last week," answered Green. "Let's vote on something that's alive."

On the roll call Arthur Roe [Dem., Vandalia] told the downstate members that the entire state is in danger of being swamped by the financial collapse of Chicago. He said that downstate banks are carrying large amounts of bonds and tax warrants of the Cook county municipalities, that downstate schools are suffering from the lack of funds because Cook county has not paid its share of state taxes.

"We downstate," he said, "have the right to say to Cook: 'Change your system, for God's sake, before you drag us down with you.'"

One Amendment Dies Quickly.

H. D. Sparks [Rep., Shelbyville] presented an amendment to provide for the election of the Cook county assessor at a special election on May 31. When he was shown he had proposed no method for nomination he withdrew his amendment.

F. W. Lewis [Dem., Robinson] presented an amendment to substitute Speaker Shanahan for Gov. Emmerson in the appointment of the proposed new officials. Representative Boyle said that proposal had been made in the Chicago conferences and that the speaker had opposed it.

Immediately Lewis was beaten on a viva voce vote. This was the last amendment submitted.

Earlier in the day Representative Schnackenberg had started presenting, through amendments, the revised plan for the funding and deferred payments of Cook county taxes advocated by the Chicago Real Estate board and other organizations. Upon the development of objections he postponed action on the subject until tomorrow to clear the way for consideration for the Kelly bill.

The New Funding Plan.

In substance the new proposal contemplates:

1. Sending out the 1930 tax bills, with the proviso that they are to be paid in three installments. The first is to be due Oct. 1, 1932, when one-half of the tax bill will become payable; a fourth is to fall due Jan. 1, 1933, and the last quarter on April 1, 1933. Any citizen may pay before the first penalty date and obtain a discount figured on the basis of 6 per cent a year.

2. Each municipality in Cook county will be empowered to issue bonds up to the amount of the 1930 levy, less the state's share of the tax and the amount deducted for loss and cost of collection.

3. Any moneys received by a municipality for 1930 taxes prior to the issuance of the bonds are to be used by it for normal corporate purposes.

4. After the issuance of the bonds the tax money is to be put in a separate trust fund, which shall not be used for the purchase of any municipal bonds or tax anticipation warrants.

5. The 1931 tax is to be assessed and the bills to go out with the penalty date July 1, 1933. However, the bills are to amount only to the total levy, less the amount of bonds sold for 1930, or less the total of money in the trust fund discussed in section 4, whichever is greater. Thus the taxpayer, although paying his 1931 tax, will in effect be paying only a small share and the rest will be "funded" through the application of the trust fund to 1931 purposes.

6. Payments of 1931 taxes are to be quarterly, with a discount for payment before the penalty date.

7. The 1932 tax is to be assessed and due quarterly after July 1, 1933.

8. The taxes for 1933 are to be put in collection, with the first penalty date July 1, 1934. This, the proponents of the scheme point out, will bring the 1933 taxes just sixty days late, the normal paying date being May 1, 1934.

9. Passage of a bill ordering a reassessment of taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930, both real and personal.

10. Passage of house bill 282, now on third reading, declaring that tax payments for 1928, 1929, and 1930 are in the nature of advances by the taxpayers, and that any excess, after the reassessments, is to be credited on tax payments for subsequent years.

Governor Asks State Pay Cuts and How the Bills Flood in!

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill. Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson called the Illinois legislature into a second special session at 5 o'clock this evening to reduce state salaries and consider the advisability of calling a constitutional convention to pass on amendments to the state charter.

The governor's plea for a downward revision of the state pay roll was answered with a vengeance.

The message had hardly been read when Representative W. C. Chynoweth, [Rep., Decatur] introduced a bill to abolish the departments of conservation and mines and minerals and consolidate them with the departments of agriculture and labor, respectively.

More Bills Pop Up.

Representative Robert Whiteley [Rep., Carlinville] introduced another to cut the biennial salaries of assemblymen from $3,500 to $2,500. Sol Handy, [Dem., Marshall] entered another calling for a 25 per cent cut in the salaries of state officials; Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] reëntered bills to slash the salaries of all elected state officials about 20 per cent and eliminate certain county offices.

In the senate Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora] revived his bill to cut twenty-five per cent from elected officials' salaries and make a sharp cut in the pay of legislators.

"The record being made now is for home consumption alone," he said. "The best thing we can do now is to appoint a committee of fifteen members to confer with the legislative reference bureau on what can be done. We can proceed then in a sane, businesslike way."

The committee motion was passed and all the bills referred to it.

Senate Does Likewise.

In the senate, Mr. Kessinger introduced and secured the adoption of a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of ten members, who will consider all bills pertaining to salary reductions.

The constitutional convention issue was brought before the house by Representatives Frederick W. Rennick, [Rep., Buda], and Robert M. Woodward [Rep., Chicago], who entered resolutions calling for a convention.

The administration's feeling in regard to the reduction of salaries and the abolition of unnecessary state jobs is developed in these paragraphs taken from the special message:

"A committee appointed by the house of representatives has urged the desirability of permitting this general assembly to enact legislation reducing salaries prior to the election to be held in November of this year. The constitution prohibits changing the salary of an incumbent in office, and necessarily any reduction can be effective only as to officers subsequently elected or appointed. Because of this constitutional provision, reductions as to a large number of state and local officers must be made now or they cannot be effective for some years.

Higher Salaries Included.

"This group, for the most part, includes the higher salaries in public service. This subject, as stated in the call for this session, embraces the views of every member of the committee from the house of representatives presenting this request to me.

"In further accord with the recommendations of this committee the call will permit the general assembly to abolish such of these offices as in its opinion can be dispensed with in the interest of economy."

Representative Burns' measures to cut salaries include a proposal to eliminate three offices—township treasurer, county superintendent of highways, and county veterinarian. He claims these eliminations would save the state about $1,000,000 annually.

On the subject of a constitutional convention Gov. Emmerson said: "I have been urged both by members of the general assembly and others to include in the call for this second special session the subject of submitting to the electors the question of calling a convention to revise, alter or amend the constitution of this state. It has been suggested that proposed amendments affecting revenue, representation in the general assembly, home rule for municipalities, and perhaps other subjects, bear a relation each to the others and therefore should be considered together.

"The constitution vests this decision in your discretion and in the wisdom of the electors of this state. I included this subject in the call in order that the general assembly may determine whether or not it is advisable to submit the question to the voters at the November election."

OPEN HEARINGS ON AMUSEMENT TAX PROPOSAL

Special City Levy Would Give Work to Idle.

The city revenue commission opened hearings yesterday on the proposal of Ald. James B. Waller [43d] to place a 5 per cent tax on all sports and amusements for the benefit of the unemployed. The proposal is in the form of an amendment to the cities and villages act, permitting the city council to impose the tax until Feb. 1, 1933, for a special fund to be used in payment of salaries of municipal employés.

The proposed revenue, however, would not be used for regular city pay rolls. The corporation counsel's office, which drafted the amendment for submission to the legislature, felt that legal objection might be raised against a direct tax for the unemployed, and therefore recommended that the money be placed in a work fund, to be paid to unemployed persons designated by the governor's relief commission. Such workers would be made temporary city employés.

Moran Heads Commission.

The revenue commission consists of a number of members of the council finance committee and employés of various city fiscal departments, with Ald. Terence F. Moran [16th] as chairman. It will recommend action on the proposal to the council finance committee.

Theater representatives were heard yesterday. Jack Miller, representing the exhibitors' association of large motion picture houses; Fred Gilford, representing the independent movie houses, and John J. Garrity, representing the legitimate theaters, opposed the tax.

They offered as a substitute plan to have their theaters give benefit performances for the work fund.

Payless Pay Day in Preserves.

County forest preserve employés, unpaid since Dec. 15, saw another payless pay day pass yesterday, and officials announced that no money will be available to pay $500,000 due county employés and mothers' pensions on Jan. 23. The county now owes $3,000,000 in unpaid salaries and pensions to the blind and to mothers.

John O. Rees, director of the joint commission on real estate valuation, outlined three proposals for the fiscal recovery of Chicago governments yesterday at a luncheon of the Chicago Bar association. They are:

A reduction of at least 30 per cent in 1932 budgets, expenditures, and total tax levies within Cook county; payment of 40 per cent of the 1930 and 1931 tax levies by bonds to be exchanged for outstanding tax warrants and other obligations, and the collection of the remaining 60 per cent in cash; and the immediate centralization and simplification of the assessment system.

Bogan Proposes Merger of 22 School Bureaus; Retains Chiefs

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For more than a month the school trustees have been privately urging a reduction in the large supervisory force in the educational department. They have referred to it as "overstuffed," "super bossed," and "a waste of money."

In public, at a board session, Trustee Savage recently said: "We have assistant superintendents, district superintendents, directors of bureaus, assistants, supervisors and more assistants. Can't we dispense with some of them in these times of financial distress?"

"What do they all do?" added Trustee Hemingway. "Surely, we can reduce the number."

Bogan Proposes Merger.

Superintendent Bogan has offered an answer to the queries. He has recommended that 22 educational bureaus be consolidated into five at an estimated saving of $137,985. Although there would be 17 less bureaus, he would retain nearly all of the bureau chiefs.

The superintendents' recommendations came to the surface yesterday when School Auditor H. H. Brackett submitted the jobs and salaries of employés in the five consolidated bureaus to Trustee Savage, chairman of the budget subcommittee. This shows that the five new bureaus will have 220 employés with probably more chiefs proportionately than the 22 bureaus had.

In his consolidation of the 22 into five bureaus the superintendent suggests the elimination of one director and appears to reduce the salary of another. A direct comparison, however, is difficult because of the form and detail involved in the bureau organizations. His plan is to eliminate several supervisors, one assistant supervisor and one docent. Twenty-two teachers, seven medical examiners and ten advisers are the other discards in the elimination of 17 bureaus.

New Bureau on Arts.

In the new bureau of practical and fine arts there is to be one director of high school commercial studies at $6,000 a year, a director of music at $6,000, a director of elementary manual training at $5,500, a director of elementary household arts at $5,000, an assitant director of music at $5,000, a director of elementary art at $4,500, an assistant director at $4,000; a supervisor of high school technical studies at $4,800, and supervisor of high school typing and dictation at $4,000.

Under the old plan all of these were distributed among the 22 bureaus. From the bureaus squeezed into this one two supervisors were eliminated, the supervisor of orchestral music and the supervisor of vocal music. Each drew $4,000 a year. They are given only one month's salary in the revised budget.

Other Expenses of Bureau.

Other items in the revised budget indicate that the bureau of practical and fine arts is going to do a large amount of supervising. It is given an allowance of $4,050 for auto hire and $300 more for carfare and express. It is also evident that they intend to arrange for considerable music, because there is one item of $2,500 for moving pianos. Also the schools will do a lot of sawing, because there is another item of $3,500 for sharpening saws.

"If the schools are going to teach the boys to saw, why not also teach them how to sharpen a saw and save that $3,500," a trustee commented yesterday.

List Other Supervisors.

In the other four bureaus the superintendent recommends a director of child study at $5,940, a director of vocational guidance at $5,600 a year, a director of special studies at $5,500, a supervisor of the blind at $4,000, a superintendent of compulsory attendance at $5,300, a director of research and building survey at $6,000, a supervisor of physical science at $4,000, a supervisor of social studies at $4,000, an assistant director of research at $4,200, a director of education, efficiency, and economy at $6,000, a director of administration at $3,600, a director of physical and health education at $6,000, and one supervisor at $5,000 and two at $4,000 each.

All of these are in addition to the five assistant superintendents at $10,000 a year each and fifteen district superintendents at $6,500 a year each. Supt. Bogan should be added at $15,000 a year, together with a special assistant to the superintendent at $7,800 a year.

Plan Accepted Tentatively.

Until the lack of money became pressing the trustees approved without much discussion any recommendation on educational matters submitted by the superintendent, it is said.

The budget committee, composed of Trustees Savage, McJunkin, and Brandenburg, tentatively accepted without question or comment the superintendent's recommendation on consolidating 22 bureaus into five. This subcommittee will have another session as soon as the auditor can get the proposed changes in appropriations segregated into the accounts.

Fortune in Gems of Spanish Infanta Eulalia Missing

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The fortune in jewels with which the Infanta Eulalia, daughter of Isabella II., once queen of Spain, had intended to finance the marriage of her grandsons to the daughters of former King Alfonso are missing, it was learned today. A trunk supposed to contain the gems was sent to her from Spain several days ago, but when she opened it she found only a heap of shawls.

Day's Auto Tax Collections Set High Mark of $166,483

Vehicle tax collections yesterday totaled $166,483, said to be the highest on record for one day from this source. Licenses were issued to 8,286 persons. The amount taken in yesterday brings the collections so far this year to $1,759,905. By tonight, according to Harold Crotty, chief license investigator in charge, the collections will have exceeded the amount taken in during the entire month of January last year.

HOLD UP HOTEL CLERK.

Two bandits forced Charles Mansell, clerk in the Cass hotel at 640 North Wabash avenue, to hand over $90 early yesterday. One of the robbers had been a hotel guest since Monday.

14 ACCEPTED ON TENTATIVE JURY FOR JUDD TRIAL

Pheonix, Ariz., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, unperturbed by a boisterously eager crowd which jammed against the courtroom doors and howled when they were closed, sat in glacial calm today during questioning of jurors who may try her for the slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi.

The only sign of nervousness displayed throughout the day by the woman who has confessed slaying Mrs. Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson last Oct. 16 in Pheonix, was periodic flicking of a handkerchief across her lap. She will be tried first for the Leroi slaying.

At the end of the first trial session 14 tentative jurors had been accepted. Five had been rejected.

Under Arizona law, a panel of 29 must be seated before either prosecution or defense may exercise peremptory challenges. From the tentative panel of 29 the defense peremptorily may remove 10 and the prosecution seven.

Crowd Fails to Get In.

Counsel estimated the jury would not be complete before Thursday.

All but a handful of the hundreds of would be spectators, massed in the corridors, were disappointed in their hope of gaining admittance to Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman's tiny courtroom.

There was angry exchanges between those nearest the doors and the closely packed mass behind as bailiffs and sheriff's deputies sought to control the concentrated rush as the portals were opened cautiously to admit one person at a time. Clothing was torn and bruises were inflicted.

An augmented force of sheriff's deputies was brought into the court corridor during the afternoon on request of the court.

Judge Speakman's court accommodates a few more than 100 spectators, including standing room. A large portion of this space already had been occupied by the jury panel before the general public was admitted. The three score spectators who battled their way in had been keeping vigil on the court house steps since dawn, long before the main doors of the building were opened.

Visited by Brother and Father.

Mrs. Judd's face remained blank and her large, pale blue eyes expressionless as the crowd scrambled and surged about her during her short journey from the county jail to the courtroom. Once free of the mob she walked alone to her seat at the counsel table.

She smiled only twice, when a talesman said his sixteen children would not prevent him serving as a juror, and when her brother, B. J. McKinnell, kissed her as she left the courtroom at the end of the day. Young McKinnell entered the courtroom infrequently. He spent most of the day standing just outside a rear doorway.

Mrs. Judd's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell of Darlington, Ind., remained in the bailiff's office until their daughter was safely in the courtroom. The Rev. McKinnell, a retired minister of the Free Methodist church, entered the courtroom to kiss her and whisper words of encouragement before court convened. Neither parent remained in the courtroom as jury selection went forward.

Man's Name Introduced.

Herman Lewkowitz, associate of Paul Schenck, as counsel for Mrs. Judd, four times brought the name of J. J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumber dealer, into his questioning of jurors. Three denied acquaintance or business association with Halloran, and were accepted. C. H. Dunning, a mining man, admitted acquaintance of six or seven years with Halloran, but asserted his friendship would "have nothing to do with it" if he were to serve as a juror. Dunning was excused by the court when he stated there were other reasons making it unlikely he could serve as "a fair minded juror." The reasons were not disclosed.

Halloran, whose name came into the case as a friend of all three women, issued a formal statement during the investigation in which he admitted acquaintance with Mrs. Judd and the clinical X-ray technician and tubercular convalescent she is to be tried for killing, but denied beyond "possible indiscretions" he was in any way involved with them.

'DOUG' FAIRBANKS GETS ANOTHER REFUND OF TAXES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—An income tax refund of $16,416 was awarded today to Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture actor, by the bureau of internal revenue. The refund represented overassessments on the actor's income for 1927, 1928, and 1929.

Today's refund was the second within the last three years for Fairbanks, $12,391 having been refunded to him during 1929, according to the list of refunds for that year made public by the revenue bureau last Dec. 28.

MAYOR'S ORDER CLOSES URBANA BUSINESS 5 DAYS

Acts After Champaign Bank Suspension.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Business operations within the corporate limits of Urbana have been suspended for a five day period as the result of a proclamation issued by Mayor Reginald C. Harmon at five o'clock this morning.

As a result, banks and business houses with the exception of drug stores, food stores, transportation and public utility agencies and newspaper offices, were not opened and will remain closed until Monday morning.

Become Level Headed.

The holiday in business activities was taken to allow the public an opportunity to become financially level headed following runs on Urbana banks yesterday as the result of the closing of two banks in Champaign Monday. "Business as usual" was the slogan in Champaign.

By declaring "five successive Sundays" the mayor permitted the closing of banks here, which legally cannot be done except on "a holiday."

Proclamation by Mayor.

The mayor's proclamation follows:

"Whereas, for the suppression of disorder and to maintain the peace within the City of Urbana, it is deemed expedient for the public welfare to suspend business within the corporate limits of the said city for the time and with the exceptions hereinafter enumerated.

"Now therefore, I, Reginald C. Harmon, Mayor of the City of Urbana, Illinois, do hereby order and proclaim that all business establishments in the business district of said city, excepting stores furnishing food supplies, drug stores, transportation and public utility agencies, and newspaper offices, shall remain closed during the business hours of the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, and 23rd of January, A. D. 1932."

Hundreds of business men, University of Illinois students, and faculty members have signed agreements not to withdraw their funds until the hysteria has subsided.

YRIGOYEN TO BE RETURNED FROM EXILE FOR TRIAL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Former President Yrigoyen, who has been imprisoned on Martin Garcia island since he was overthrown in September, 1930, will be returned to Buenos Aires soon—possibly next Monday—to face charges of malfeasance. This was semi-officially revealed today.

Sources close to the provisional government of President Uriburu said he desired before relinquishing power to have his predecessor tried, but would be inclined to pardon him, if his guilt should be proved, in view of his age and his already lengthy incarceration.

The accusations against Yrigoyen, who has twice been President of Argentina, grew out of his acts preceding the revolution which made possible misdeeds by his colleagues, although he, himself, is not charged with benefiting materially.

STOP HOARDING; IT INJURES THE NATION, COOLIDGE WARNING

Writing in the American Magazine, the former President discusses conditions, praises the national banking system, and denounces hoarders.

"It is impossible to point out any general moral lapse, any widespread dishonesty," he says in treating the causes of the slump. "The most we can say is that there has been a general lack of judgment so widespread as to involve practically the whole country.

"We have found out that we were not so big as we thought we were. We were riding too high. We shall have to keep nearer the ground. We may not feel so elated, but we shall be much safer."

"Our national banking system," he declares, "is as sound as generations of experience have been able to make it."

"While absolute safety has been impossible to secure," he writes, "it is probable that the records of money deposited in properly regulated banks in this country would show over a series of years that it has been in the safest place to keep funds.

"If every one tried to draw their money," he says, "all commerce would be reduced to barter and universal bankruptcy would prevail.

"Those who are engaged in hoarding currency are probably no safer as a class than those who keep their funds in the banks. They are injuring themselves and everybody else."

POLICE WHO BEAT AMERICAN ENVOY TO BE PUNISHED

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Abyssinian government promised today to take drastic steps, including public punishment, against several police officers who knocked down American Minister Addison E. Southard last Sunday when the latter protested the arrest of his chauffeur after his automobile had run over a woman's foot.

The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Reuter's [British] News agency sent a dispatch to London in which he said: "Sunday's assault on American Minister Southard has served to focus attention on the attitude of Abyssinians toward Europeans and whites.

"There are fears that anti-foreign feeling is becoming more intense. Incidents like that of Sunday have been all too frequent recently, due principally to lack of control by the police and failure on the part of responsible authorities to deal adequately with them."

BILL WOULD LET COUNTY ISSUE $9,500,000 BONDS

A bill that would permit Cook county to issue $9,500,000 in bonds for the purpose of obtaining working funds was introduced in the legislature yesterday by State Representative James H. Donahue. According to the county commissioners, five of whom went to Springfield to urge passage of the measure, this bond issue would put the county on a cash basis, even if other relief legislation fails.

The bonds would be funded over a period of ten years with money diverted from the highway taxes, now levied at the rate of 12½ cents on $100 of assessed valuation. The diversion would be at the rate of 2½ cents from the 1931 levy, 6¼ cents in 1932, and 4 cents in 1933 and 1934. The rate would drop until only 1 cent would be diverted in 1938 and 1939.

Officials of the county highway department said that such diversions would only slightly hamper their building program, and that highway repair work would not be affected at all.

The measure carries an emergency clause and in the event of passage the county could proceed at once to arrangements for the marketing of the securities. No referendum would be required. The county commission's finance committee already has approved the proposed bond issue, and it was stated that if the issue is authorized the county will have a total of $16,500,000 in working cash.

WORST FLOODS IN THIRTY YEARS SWEEP IRELAND

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Ireland is having the worst floods in thirty years because of uninterrupted rains, which have inundated thousands of acres of farm land and forced many families out of their homes.

For 20 miles along the River Shannon, in the Banagher area, the land is under water. In Ulster the whole countryside in County Derry along the Claudy river is like a lake, and in north Mayo even the old-timers cannot recall so bad a flood.

The River Moy has isolated the town of Foxford.

Institute Furnishes Cash for Swanson Quiz.

The full financial resources of the organized cleaners and dyers of Chicago were pledged to State's Attorney Swanson yesterday in his investigation of the Benjamin Rosenberg murder.

The pledge and a cash installment to back it up were tendered the state's attorney by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, dictator of the Cleaners and Dyers' institute, who returned from a Florida vacation unperturbed at finding his organization involved in the storm of protest over the killing. Rosenberg, an independent cleaner, was a professed foe of the institute and Dr. Squires.

Present Check for $5,000.

At the conclusion of a conference attended by Mr. Swanson, Assistant State's Attorney Edwin C. Dufficy of the racket bureau, and Coroner Walsh, Dr. Squires laid down a $5,000 check to set the investigation in motion. This and any additional sum needed will be added to the $1,000 already given by Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, counsel for the institute.

With the Secret Six, the racket bureau, Chicago police, Maywood police, and the coroner's office already active in the case, Mr. Swanson said he required time to decide how the funds might best be employed.

The prosecutor said he would consider appointing a special assistant and a competent investigator to set up an organization to track down the killers. He declared himself gratified at the assistance offered by Dr. Squires.

Wants Slayers Punished.

Dr. Squires, a University of Chicago lecturer, winner of the Rockefeller Foundation awards for his research in labor problems, said he had not known Rosenberg.

"I did not hear of the pamphlet he issued against the institute until it was alluded to in newspaper accounts after his death.

"Are there racketeers in the institute? I cannot answer that definitely. The institute was organized only a year ago and evolved out of the chaos created by years of racketeering. It may be that some remnants of the racketeer element remain. If so, they shall be ousted. Whether the murderers be in or out of the institute, the energy and influence of the organization shall be employed to have them punished."

Defends Institute Prices.

The economist discussed the claim of independents that the institute's basic charge of $1.25 is so high that independents could not resist the temptation to cut the rate.

"The price was established after fair consideration of all interests—the public, the employés and proprietors," said Dr. Squires. "To maintain it I cut the wages of the drivers' union from $42.50 to $32.50 a week and doubled the length of their delivery routes. The wages of inside employés doing piece work were cut from 30 to 50 per cent. Some of the girls are now getting as little as $8 a week.

He was asked how the independents, then, could show a profit on a lower price scale.

"When a cleaner cuts his rate, he naturally increases his volume. That reduces his overhead. Also the cut rate plants usually employ non-union help at less than the union scale. Finally, the cut rate plants frequently fail to make good on damage claims from customers, somthing that members of the institute are obligated to do."

COAST GUARDS AND BOATS SENT TO AID VICTIMS OF FLOOD

Four surf boats of the United States coast guard were lashed on Illinois Central flat cars yesterday and shipped to the flooded regions in Mississippi, where they will be used in rescue work. Fifteen coast guardsmen from the Chicago, Wilmette, Kenosha, and South Chicago stations left last night by train to man the power boats. They were under the command of S. B. Johnson of Green Bay, Wis., commander of the Eleventh coast guard district.

The men will arrive in the inundated area this afternoon and will aid in the rescue work while waiting for the boats, which will arrive twelve hours later.

Among those to go was Capt. John O. Anderson, veteran commander of the old Chicago station, who directed the rescue work of nearly 1,500 persons in the Mississippi river flood at Quincy three years ago.

2 NEW YORK GEM ROBBERIES NET BANDITS $40,500

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Two more jewel robberies in the Park avenue district were revealed today. Eighteen pieces of modern and antique jewelry valued at $40,000 were taken from a display case in Peacock alley of the new Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Sneak thieves made away on Saturday with a jade ring and a necklace, valued at $500, from the apartment of William A. Rockefeller, 399 Park avenue.

The gems taken from the showcase in the Waldorf were owned by the antique firm of Cecil Partridge of London. The loss was discovered by an employé of the firm. He found that the lock of the display case had been picked, and that four trays had been removed from the center shelf. The thief had left several thousand dollars' worth of bulky old English silverware and Chinese porcelain in the cabinet, so that passersby did not notice that anything was amiss.

The burglary of the Rockefeller apartment was committed while the family was visiting in the country. The intruders climbed up a rear fire escape and made their way through a bathroom into Mrs. Rockefeller's bedroom.

TOWN OF 9,000 IN PATH OF WATERS OF DELTA FLOOD

Hungry Refugees Problem for Rescuers.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The town of Belzoni, with its 9,000 inhabitants, already is partially under water and almost complete inundation is indicated as the Mississippi delta flood waters continue to crumble levees and spread over wider and wider areas. A deep wave of water is moving on the town from a new break in the Yazoo river 17 miles northward.

A half dozen other towns in the five or six counties' flood-swept area are threatened with complete inundation, as all the battling against the onrushing waters appears fruitless. In many places work on strengthening the levees has been abandoned.

Interferes With Election.

Meantime, the Red Cross and the coast guard have sent in personnel and boats to assist in getting out the refugees encamped on roofs and in trees, on housetops and on the few high knolls in the section. Coast guard craft and men have been rushed to the flood section from Chicago and from the Mississippi gulf coast.

And weather bureau forecasts at New Orleans say that the rivers in Mississippi and Louisiana, already above flood level, will go still higher. In the gubernatorial election in Louisiana today voting in many places has been interfered with by the high water.

Hunger stalks in the flood section, where many thousands are homeless and other thousands are waiting.

Refugees Face Hunger.

Rescue workers have been on the job day and night in getting the refugees safely parked in the towns and villages not threatened with complete inundation, and now the big problem is food and clothing and bedding. The national Red Cross has sent relief workers into the area.

From New Orleans today a big amphibion plane, piloted by Jimmie Wedell, headed into the flood area, and was taking refugees from the islands in the inland sea.

FRANCE FLATLY REFUSES TO GIVE UP REPARATIONS

Europe Visions Doom of Parley on Debts.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 19.—In a declaration full of sensational silences, Premier Laval today submitted the foreign policy of his new government to the approval of the chamber of deputies.

That policy, as he outlined it, was vigorously applauded by an overwhelming majority of the deputies who recognized in it not only an unbroken continuation of the foreign policy of the first Laval government, but a familiar restatement of principles which has guided every French government since 1926.

Must Get Reparations.

The alpha to omega section of the declaration which dealt with reparations and debts problems was simply: "France will not give up her right to reparations."

That talk of even a revision of war payments is hostile to the underlying spirit of the French policy was indicated when the premier said:

"We cannot accept for the future any solution which, at its best, would be powerless to alleviate the crisis and which would be prejudicial to the vital interest of the country and contrary to stipulations of treaties freely consented to."

All France can offer is to try to adapt existing international accords—the Young plan and the treaty of Versailles—to the present crisis, Laval concluded.

Omits Reference to Parley.

If there is nothing new in Laval's presentation of the French stand on debts, it is highly significant that with only five days left before the Lausanne conference on reparations is scheduled to convene not one reference to tse conference appeared in tne entire declaration—this despite the fact that the French premier is asking for an advance vote of confidence on all phases of the government's policy.

All this, together with the fact that the French delegation to Lausanne has not been selected yet, confirms the belief here that the reparations conference will not take place at all.

At the same time it is impossible to say definitely that the conference will not be held because the French are evidently holding up the final decision until the last minute. In some quarters it is believed the conference will take place but that it will be only another conversation of technical experts.

A Warning, Not a Request.

Among matters omitted from the ministerial declaration was any reference to Laval's negotiations with the American government for an extension of the general moratorium. This confirms the previous version that Laval's remarks to Ambassador Walter E. Edge were rather in the nature of a warning than a request, and that Paris is not greatly disappointed over the lack of favorable reaction in Washington.

It is realized here that while the Hoover moratorium thecretically expires on July 1, no payments are due America until Dec. 15, so that a formal extension of the moratorium is not a necessary condition for holding the reparations conference until next summer.

The brief reference to the disarmament conference in Laval's declaration shows that the French stand in this respect is also unchanged and that it still hinges upon the familiar argument of "no disarmament without security accords."

BLOW TO GERMANS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Bitter disappointment was expressed in German official circles tonight over Premier Laval's speech on reparations before the French chamber of deputies today. One Wilhelmstrasse leader said his remarks "endanger the possibility of reaching any kind of an understading with France over reparations at the Lausanne conference. Laval's statement seems to make it useless for statesmen to convene at Lausanne, yet an imperative agreement on reparations must be speedily reached to save the world from further catastrophies."

The Germans complain that the French premier, in asserting that the Germans were rejecting agreements which they had signed voluntarily, "deliberately distorted facts and ignored the findings of the world's economic experts who assembled at Basel last month to study the reparations questions and the Young plan."

"These experts," the Germans continue, "came to the conclusion that presuppositions on which the Young plan was based did not become a reality, and that the international situation had changed so completely that the Young plan could no longer be applied."

BRITISH SAY "O. K."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—There will be no Lausanne conference on reparations. This is the opinion of British diplomats who have been working for conference all along and who now feel that the French sabotaged it. Nevertheless the British have made up their minds to accept the situation.

What will happen now, according to their opinion, is that an agreement between the European creditor powers not to ask Germany to make reparations payments due in July will be reached through ordinary diplomatic channels.

The British profess the utmost surprise at Premier Laval's attempt to sound out Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson over extending the moratorium on war debts. They declare they know nothing of it and say they cannot understand the state of Laval's mind if he has really tried anything of the sort so soon after the declaration of the American congress that "nothing further is doing."

POPE CALLS FOR PRAYERS

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 19.—Pope Pius XI. today called for three days of prayer for the success of the Lausanne reparations conference, asking the faithful to implore for the intercession of the Virgin of Lourdes to inspire the delegates to the conference with a spirit of justice and charity so that the pacification of peoples may rapidly be reached.

In response to the pope's wishes the "Pious Union of Lourdes" in Rome will organize a "triduum" to be held in the Church of San Rocco here next Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

The pontiff's desire to give his spiritual support to the negotiators at Lausanne next week recalls his address to the cardinals on Christmas eve when he said he would not speak on the Geneva disarmament conference because his remarks on that subject were distorted in certain quarters for political purposes.

U. S. Turns Cold Shoulder.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Walter E. Edge, American ambassador to France, has given the cold shoulder to French suggestions that the United States aid in the solution of the German reparations problem by agreeing to a further extension of the reparations and war debts moratorium after July 1.

Without stating definitely what its attitude would be when the additional war debt payments to this country are due, the state department authorized Mr. Edge to make it clear that this country need not be expected to take any further part in the European discussion of its war debts and reparations problems until it has worked out a solution of its own.

The American position, it was said in administration circles today, is that the European powers must solve their own problem and agree upon a definite plan of action on reparations before this country will give consideration to the war debts problem.

GERMANY RAISES TARIFF AGAINST NATIONS OFF GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Germany's determination to prevent the dumping of depreciated currency and to protect home industries was made clear in a new emergency decree issued today. The decree empowers the government to raise the tariff barriers on goods imported from countries with low currencies "in the event of urgent economic necessity."

The decree also permits the government to increase the tariffs on goods from countries with whom Germany has no commercial agreement should such nations attempt to discriminate against German products.

The first protection, under the new decree, is accorded agricultural products, as neighboring countries, especially Denmark, have been flooding Germany with cheap products, particularly butter, since abandoning the gold standard.

German experts point out that in 1932 Germany cannot expect results anywhere near those achieved in 1931 because close to 30 countries, all customers of Germany, have gone off the gold standard and can no longer buy. Others have put up prohibitive tariff walls, and others have made German sales impossible by prohibiting payments in foreign goods.

FIGHT TO RELEASE MASSIE ON WRIT LOOMS IN HAWAII

Defense Protests Delay in Murder Case.

BY CLIFFORD GESSLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Jan. 19.—A move to obtain the release of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two naval enlisted men, held for the abduction and killing of Joseph Kahahawai, young Hawaiian, by habeas corpus proceedings loomed today.

LIEUT. THOMAS H. MASSIE.

Attorney Montgomery Winn, one of the defense counsel, announced that he will file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Honolulu courts if the prosecution delays in presenting the murder case to the grand jury any longer than Thursday.

Defense Rips Prosecutors.

The attorney charged the prosecution with using the delay to attempt to create prejudice against the defendants.

"We are fed up with these dilatory tactics," Attorney Winn said. "The prosecution has had two weeks within which to precent an indictment. In the meantime, the defendants, who have as yet been accused of nothing, are held prisoners without bond awaiting the pleasure and convenience of the prosecutors."

The lawyer added that Mrs. Fortescue is still in a highly nervous state and is unable to converse without bursting into tears.

Meanwhile the legislature went into its second day of the special session called by Gov. Lawrence M. Judd to deal with Honolulu's crime wave. The house passed on second reading the bill designed to reorganize the Honolulu police department and make it an appointive instead of an elective organization.

Rush Police Bill's Passage.

The third reading is scheduled for tomorrow despite the opposition of some members of Portuguese blood, who are believed to be trying to make political capital on the pretext of fighting to preserve the people's electoral rights.

A select committee of senators today also voted to report favorably on the police bill when the upper house meets tomorrow. It is believed that the bill will become a law not later than Friday.

Samuel Wilder, a former naval officer, was mentioned tonight as the probable nominee for chief of police.

Spain to Decree Confiscation of All Jesuit Properties

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Jan. 19.—A presidential decree, all that is required to make effective article 26 of the new constitution, which declares the Society of Jesus in Spain dissolved and its properties confiscated, is expected to be issued tomorrow.

In face of the popular excitement over the killing of three Republicans by Catholic extremists at Bilbao last Monday, the government has decided that, although no churches have been burned since yesterday, quick action is necessary to prevent further disorders.

The "defense of the republic" act, voted by the cortes two months ago and hardly used since, was ordered applied ruthlessly by the cabinet.

Catholic Paper Suppressed.

El Debate, the greatest Catholic newspaper in Spain, was suspended and fined under the provisions of the "defense" act for accusing the government this morning of complicity with the lawless elements in "burning churches and shoving Spain into anarchy."

El Debate has attacked the republic from the beginning, but without being curbed until today when its outburst caused extreme indignation among Republicans. The latter claim that yesterday's burnings of churches, like those last May, were directly precipitated by attacks of Catholic monarchist hotheads on the populace.

The decree closing down the Jesuits for the second time in history in the country where they were founded is thought to be part of the government's program to appease popular sentiment. Already the directors of the anti-clerical association have brought the matter to a head by filing charges against Premier Azana and his cabinet ministers for failing to obey the constitution.

In reality dissolution, which does not imply expulsion, except for foreign Jesuits, as was at first taken for granted, is simple. There are some twenty-five schools involved and one university. Other Jesuit activities undoubtedly will go on, as in other countries where they have been dissolved, for every Jesuit is, of course, a priest.

Property Held in Trust.

The confiscation of property will not be arduous, either, as practically none of the tremendous Jesuit property in Spain ever has been officially in Jesuit hands. Most of it is held in the names of individuals and companies in the form of stocks and bonds and hence cannot be confiscated. The total value of the Jesuit properties in Spain is estimated to be about $100,000,000.

The Jesuit order is 400 years old. It was founded in Spain in the sixteenth century by Ignatius Loyola, who later became St. Ignatius. The order was expelled in 1767 by Carlos III., who charged that it was inciting public disorder. This exile lasted seven years, at the end of which time the charges were proven false and the Jesuits were permitted to return.

Meanwhile, the general strike called by communists at Bilbao was ended today and the workers went back to their jobs. However, 800 miners at Figols and 20,000 textile workers at Barcelona went out on strike.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT, 26 YR. OLD HUSBAND OF ELSIE JANIS SAYS

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Gilbert Wilson, 26 years old, and Elsie Janis, his actress bride of 42, were in New York today. They talked about their marriage. Rather, Mr. Wilson did, with his wife nodding approval.

"I'm a lot older than she is in many ways," said Mr. Wilson, in commenting on the difference in their ages. "We do not feel that there's a year's difference in our ages. Why, if Mrs. Wilson were not a famous woman no one would guess that there is any difference."

Mrs. Wilson broke in: "What's the difference, anyway, if we are happy for a few years? We'll have that, anyway."

It was a case of love at first sight between them, Mr. Wilson admitted.

"And when two people find each other's companionship preferable to any other, naturally, they think of marriage. But we thought of this difference in ages and what the world would say. Finally, we got tired worrying about the whole business and went out and got married."

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were married on New Year's eve in Tarrytown.

FIGHTING BEGGAR FINED $200.
William Fletcher, 50 years old, 316 Aberdeen street, who attacked John Malloy, a special policeman in the Union station, when Malloy arrested him for panhandling, was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Holmes.

"RIP VAN WINKLE" AWAKENS; FINDS 2 WIVES WAITING

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The publicity Ernest Lemay received as a marathon sleeper has turned out to be something of an embarrassment.

After waking from his nine day doze in St. Luke's hospital here, Lemay found himself confronted today with two women who both claim to be Mrs. Ernest Lemay.

Mrs. Ernest Lemay of Winooski, Vt., was first to arrive in Montreal to claim him as her ailing husband. Soon afterward came Mrs. Ernest Lemay of Baltimore, Md.

CHINA MAY BREAK DIPLOMATIC TIES WITH JAPANESE

Chiang Kai-Shek Agrees to Return to Politics.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19.—Kuo Min, official Chinese news agency, announced tonight that severance of diplomatic relations with Japan is imminent as a result of the Japanese occupation of Manchuria. Eugene Chen, Chinese foreign minister, and Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian general, have been converted to such action by numerous other leaders, Kuo Min said.

Meanwhile, the government's precarious position was strengthened today by the announcement that Chiang Kai-shek and Wang Ching-wei, leftist leader, have decided to return and participate actively in the government. The former president, who resigned a month ago, agreed to return following a conference with officials at Hangchow. He is expected to fly to Nanking tomorrow.

The Nanking government was reported today to have decided to issue warrants for the arrest of Henry Pu Yi, the former Manchu boy emperor, and other Chinese appointed by the Japanese as puppet officials in Manchuria, on charges of sedition. The Japanese are believed to be preparing to make Pu Yi president of Manchuria.

Japanese Oppose Soviet Pact.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 19.—Since the new Asiatic states which the Japanese army proposes to create from the wreckage of the late Manchurian administration includes large unsurveyed stretches of territory, embracing northern Manchuria and Mongolia, upon which imperial Russia once laid claim, the present Japanese activities have served again to concentrate attention upon Japanese-soviet relations.

Japanese newspapers here today gave prominenee to reports from Tokio, as well as the views of local Japanese militarists, regarding the proposal of Maxim Litvinov, soviet commisar for foreign affairs, to conclude a nonagression pact with Japan pertaining to Manchuria and Mongolia.

High Japanese military authorities here as well as in Tokio are quoted as being strongly opposed to a nonaggression pact with Moscow. They say such a pact is unnecessary, since Japan has no intention to encroach on soviet territory.

Gen. Honjo, commander in chief of the Japanese army in Manchuria, and Japanese financiers and industrialists are trying to accomplish two major objectives before the arrival of the league of nations commission of inquiry, which includes an American member, Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy.

The first objective includes the elimination of so-called Chinese banditry throughout Manchuria. This Japanese enterprise embraces the utilization of 30,000 well equipped troops.

Boy King May Be President.

The second objective is the creation of a new state. This state is still without a name or leader, but the Japanese army insists it must be created to provide justification in the eyes of the Japanese taxpayers, as well as of the outside world, for the human and financial sacrifices of the past four months.

According to an outline of the administration which was given prominence in Japanese newspapers today, the new Asiatic state will be headed by a president instead of an emperor. Some reports said Henry Pu-Yi, the former Manchu boy emperor, may be given the post.

LEAGUE 'ADVISES' U. S. TO LOWER TARIFF BARRIER

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The league of nations economic committee suggested tonight that tariffs were an obstacle to the payment of international debts and if the United States wants to collect war debts it would be advisable to lower the protective tariff. Such nationalist measures as tariffs merely prolong and aggravate the present economic crisis, the committee said in a report to the league's council.

"Either the creditor countries must lower their barriers against imports from the debtor countries," the experts added, "or the prospects for recovering their debts will be reduced.

"One after another, nearly all the European countries have taken drastic measures to restrict their imports as far as possible and increase exports. They have been highly successful in the first part of this program, but failed to increase exports. The general result is almost inevitably to prolong and seriously to aggravate the crisis."

The report recommended that the countries which were soundest financially and were creditors should favor increasing the exports of debtor countries so that the debtors would be able to pay.

DEFENSE FIGHTS MOVE TO LINK CROWE TO CHECK

Witness Balks at Giving Testimony for State.

Many objections were advanced yesterday by defense attorneys in the sanitary district graft conspiracy trial when the prosecution made a move to introduce evidence to link Timothy J. Crowe directly to the alleged conspiracy. The state sought to show the connection between a $12,700 cashier's check, which was alleged to have gone into Crowe's bank account, and a dummy company which was formed to do business with the district during the whoopee days of 1927-'28.

It is charged by the prosecution that Crowe, who was formerly president of the sanitary district, put a spurious indorsement on the check before it was deposited to his account. Seven of Crowe's former associates are on trial with him.

The prosecution succeeded, despite the objections, in getting into evidence some of the records of the First National Bank of Oak Park, of which Crowe was president at the time. The records showed that the check was purchased by Eugene Byrne, former sanitary district employé, and head of the dummy company. The records showed that $5,200 of the money used in buying the check came from the bank account of the City Machine and Engineering company, the Byrne concern.

Will Introduce Check.

The check itself has not been introduced into the evidence as yet, but it will be, according to Prosecutor John E. Northup, as soon as he calls a handwriting expert to the stand to show that Crowe wrote both his own indorsement and that of "John J. Flanigan," to whom the check was made payable.

Attorney Albert Fink, chief defense counsel, who heretofore has agreed to stipulate much of the testimony, fought bitterly against the introduction of the records about the check. He was successful for a short time because Chief Justice Harry Fisher and his associates, Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, ruled that the records come under the rule of hearsay evidence.

Prosecutor Northup made a spirited fight against the court ruling and reviewed the history of the evidence involving the check. He also called attention to the fact that Crowe was president of the Oak Park bank.

Judge Changes Ruling.

"I was not aware that Crowe was president of the bank," said Judge Fisher in changing his ruling. "That changes the situation and the records are admissible for such light as can be obtained from the records."

Later the judges again changed their minds about what is known as the "scratcher sheet of the teller" and held up a final ruling on this document pending investigation of legal authorities.

Prosecutor Northup said that in his opinion the check connected Crowe directly with the alleged conspiracy. The entire court day was spent in taking the check testimony and in trying to make Byrne tell about his company. Byrne occupied the witness stand during the entire morning session.

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, announced last evening that he would call Byrne, now a civil service steamfitter for the county, to his office and suggest that he take a voluntary layoff pending adjustment of his difficulties over the sanitary district case.

Questioned by Prosecutor.

Byrne refused to go to court until Prosecutor Northup threatened to take summary action. He appeared yesterday with Attorney Cameron Latter who is also attorney for Timothy L. Connolly, former purchasing agent for the district.

Prosecutor Northup questioned Byrne about the machine and engineering company.

"I refuse to answer any questions about that on the ground that it tends to incriminate me," Byrne replied.

"Incriminate you with whom?" asked Prosecutor Northup.

"You already had me under indictment about this case," replied the witness. "You had me down in your chamber of horrors, your office, about this thing many times. I have enough subpoenas from you to paper a barber shop."

Prosecutor Northup asked that the witness be held in contempt of court for his attitude.

"I have never seen a demonstration such as this in my long legal career," said Prosecutor Northup. "I ask that this witness be required to answer under oath the questions."

"Motion denied," said Judge Fisher.

Charges Jekyll-Mr. Hyde Temperament; Asks Divorce

Mrs. Gene Fox, 436 North Menard avenue, yesterday charged that her husband, Dr. William C. Fox, had a temperament much like "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" of Stevenson's tale. During their courtship and until their marriage on last Sept. 9, Dr. Fox had been attentive and devoted, she asserted in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court by Attorney Barrett O'Hara. Less than a month later, she charged, he threw her to the floor and beat her, and her sole Christmas present, the bill alleged, was a buffet upon the left ear.

FORCE NEW YORK TO PAY 6 PER CENT FOR 11 DAY LOAN

Banks Put Up 12½ Million to Meet Pay Roll.

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The city's financial straits were temporarily eased today by a $12,500,000 bank loan at 6 per cent, maturing on Feb. 1.

With the aid of this advance, which was made by one of the eight banking houses with which Controller Charles W. Berry has been negotiating for a much more substantial loan, the city hall will be able to meet $27,800,000 of short term obligations maturing tomorrow, as well as $5,000,000 of interest and $1,800,000 of payroll costs due by Saturday.

Depleted Cash Reserves.

The city's financial plight, however, remains more acute than ever, because it must dip into its own depleted cash reserves to supply $15,300,000 of the $27,800,000 needed to meet tomorrow's maturity. Its total expenditures up to Saturday for short term maturities, interest and pay roll will total $34,600,000.

Controller Berry admitted the city must float another loan within a few days if additional short term obligations maturing this month were to be met. About $50,000,000 must be provided for this purpose, while other funds must be obtained to meet pay roll requirements.

Controller Not Present.

The $12,500,00 loan, which was regarded in financial circles as almost without precedent, both as to term and rate of interest, was the result of a conference between bankers and city officials Monday night. Controller Berry was not present, the city being represented by Mayor James J. Walker, Chairman John H. Delaney of the board of transportation, and Charles F. Kerrigan, assistant to the mayor.

During the discussion the question was raised as to whether or not it might be desirable to obtain state legislation altering the city's charter to make possible the issuance of a type of security more readily marketable under present conditions than those which the law now permits.

Controller Berry declined to name the bank from which the loan was obtained, but in financial circles it was said it was the same in which the city kept its main checking account. This institution is understood to have made the advance on behalf of all of the eight banks with which negotiations now are in progress.

Living from Hand to Mouth.

"This is something that has never happened before," Mr. Berry said, referring to the 6 per cent terms under which the loan was made. He said he had $24,000,000 in cash and admitted that the city virtually was living "from hand to mouth." It would be necessary at once, he declared, to seek financing for outstanding securities and pay roll obligations accruing after Saturday.

On behalf of the banking group it was said that "progress had been made in straightening out the city's financial status." There was no indication as to what attitude the group would take toward financing the remaining $50,000,000 of short term debt maturing this month or the total of $150,000,000 due by May 1.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Jan. 19.—Archduke Leopold Salvator was the innocent cause of a series of challenges to duels last night arising from an incident in Charley's bar, Vienna's latest fashionable night resort.

The archduke was sitting at a table with a number of Austrian aristocrats including Prince Elie of Bourbon Parma, Count Orsitch, and others, when a young Bavarian, Count Max Arco, entered with several Austrian officers. Count Arco was annoyed to see the archduke, who was in semi-sporting costume, wearing the highest order of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, the Order of the Golden Fleece, usually worn only with ceremonial clothing.

Turning to the officers around him, Count Arco directed them to call the archduke to order for degrading the order. When the officers declined, saying it was not their business to challenge the former Austrian archduke, Count Arco shouted: "That is like you. Austrian officers are all swine." The officers then left Count Arco's table and sent cards to him by a waiter challenging him to duel. As duels are forbidden by law it is intended to fight these out in Hungary.

Investment Co. Official Held on Client's Charge

Kurt Vittum, 49 years old, secretary of the Wilk-Clark company, an investment house at 39 South La Salle street, was arrested and held at the detective bureau last night. Fred J. Trimble, 4147 West Congress street, charged that he purchased a first mortgage for $4,200 from the company two years ago and has now discovered that the mortgage is worthless. Search is being made by police for Fred L. Wilk Jr., president of the company, who was also named in a warrant obtained by Trimble, charging embezzlement.

Trustee John J. Touhy of the sanitary district, one of the eight men on trial before Chief Justice Harry Fisher on charges of graft conspiracy, narrowly escaped being hit by a bullet accidentally discharged in the corridor on the fourth floor of the Criminal Court building yesterday. The firing of the shot caused some commotion among the hundreds of persons on the floor, who were attending sessions of the Felony court and the grand jury.

UNIONS QUESTION RAILROADS' RIGHT TO A WAGE CUT

Call Plight of Workers Desperate.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Railway labor's answer to the railroads' plea for a year's wage cut of 10 per cent was given yesterday, but it was neither a yes nor a no.

D. B. ROBERTSON. [Acme Photo.]

The unions, through their chairman, David B. Robertson, asked the railroad presidents, during yesterday's session of their conference at the Palmer house, to show them facts and figures as to why the cut is necessary.

In effect Mr. Robertson asked the roads: What are your bills payable? What interest and principal charges must you meet? What have you to meet it with? What are you expecting to do with the savings resulting from the wage cut if we give it to you? Are you asking us to accept a pay cut just because other industries have reduced wages?

Roads to Answer Today.

Daniel Willard, chairman of the committee of railroad presidents, said the figures would be supplied at the session to be held this morning. Railway statisticians were compiling the statistics yesterday. The railroad presidents are also due this morning to give their answer to a proposition advanced by the unions whereby the roads would agree, if they were given the wage reduction, to maintain a force of employés equal in "man working hours" to that maintained in 1930.

Mr. Robertson made a frank public statement after the conference yesterday in which he told newspaper men what had happened at the session.

Mr. Willard and his colleagues on the presidents' committee were told that if the railroads desired the employés to give careful consideration to the figures submitted by Mr. Willard it would be advisable for him to present them in more definite form.

Tells of Workers' Plight.

The employés were not disposed to consider capital investment, or a fixed return on set valuations in these negotiations over wages, Mr. Robertson said. He reiterated his position that the plight of the railway workers is desperate and should be considered as paramount to the rights of investment holders. The railroads, he said, should confine their statistics bearing on the wage question to those demonstrating the needs of the roads in meeting their fixed charges and maintaining their credit in the financial world.

Mr. Robertson also said the unions would not accept statistics concerning the cost of living over a period of years as a proper argument in the wage controversy. Many conditions prevail today which make it impossible to determine a proper industrial wage from the fixed cost of living, he declared, and he cited the facts that many employed workers are devoting large portions of their earnings toward helping their jobless comrades and relatives.

Mr. Willard had cited railroad earnings, and the inability of the roads to earn the 5¾ per cent on their valuations which had been determined as fair by the interstate commerce commission.

Reduction of Labor Costs.

"The labor cost has been heavily reduced," Mr. Robertson said. "Why should wages be reduced?"

Mr. Willard had sought, according to the report of Mr. Robertson, to make a comparison of rail wages today with rail wages in 1913, coupling this with a comparison of the cost of living in 1913 with that of the present day.

In addition to his statement that the employés were not inclined to accept any arguments on capital earnings when their bread and butter was at stake, Mr. Robertson said the employés did not agree with Mr. Willard's figures on the value of railroad properties.

Mr. Willard had mentioned 25 or 26 billion dollars as the value of the properties, but Mr. Robertson said it had been demonstrated before the interstate commerce commission in the 15 per cent freight rate case that the valuation was nearer 20 or 21 billion. With this disagreement on valuation, Mr. Willard's statements concerning earnings on investments could not be considered by labor, Mr. Robertson said.

Disputes Wage Figures.

Mr. Robertson said that the president's figures indicated the average earnings of all railway employés in 1913, including even the higher paid officials, was only $2.08 a day per employé. Actually, if a proper computation of the average daily wage in 1913 were made, said Mr. Robertson, the average would be "far less" than $2 a day.

"Such indefensibly low wages could not be made a basis of comparison," Mr. Robertson declared. Conditions in 1913 in the world of the industrial workers were a black picture, he said, and he questioned the fairness of using wage computations of that day in comparison with rates today. At any rate, he said, the employés will not permit such a comparison."

On Costs of Living.

In addition to general conditions having been so much worse in 1913, Mr. Robertson said that many items in the present family budget did not exist in that time, and that although there has been some decrease in the cost of living in the last two years, many necessary items remain unchanged, such as insurance, medical services, taxes, fuel, and public utility services.

Mr. Robertson also declared that all computations on average earnings published by the interstate commerce commission reports were "false and unfair," because the average number of employés, instead of the total number, was divided into the total compensation to get what were stated as "average earnings." Because of this wrong statistical method, Mr. Robertson said, and because of part time employment, sample groups of employés made the basis of investigation showed earnings on the records much higher than they actually received.

For example, Mr. Robertson cited the firemen, reported as earning an average of $2,262 yearly, while they actually earned an average of $1,524. Shopmen reported as earning $1,592 actually earned less than $1,000 a year, he said.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Reduction of the army commissioned personnel by approximately 2,000 officers, leaving a total of 10,000 in regular service, with a resultant estimated annual savings of $20,000,000 in pay and allowances, is to be attempted by Representative Ross J. Collins [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the subcommittee on appropriations for the war department, it was learned today. His project is said to have the support of ranking Democrats in the house. The committee has completed war department hearings for the next fiscal year, and will meet on Friday to begin work on its report to be submitted with the appropriation bill.

Under the plans as they have so far progressed, it was said, the principal reduction will be accomplished through retirement of the older officers, with probably a one or two year rule against induction of young officers.

Mr. Collins, questioned tonight, said there were 12,047 officers now in service and that he did not feel that that many were needed.

CONFEREES CAN'T AGREE ON ACT TO RESCUE FINANCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A conference between senate and house committees on the reconstruction finance corporation bill, with its potential credit capacity of two billion dollars, broke up late tonight without having reached a final agreement.

The conflicting features of the senate and house bills still remain to be settled. Controversial questions such as the rediscount features of the house bill, Senator Walcott, chairman of the conference committee, said were not considered tonight. It had been reported that a virtual agreement had been reached which would have eliminated the rediscount provision of the house bill and substituted for it the senate provision to the effect that the treasury could purchase bonds of the finance corporation, but the conferees announced, on adjourning at 11 o'clock, that no such action had been taken.

BRITISH INCOME TAX RUSH SETS UP NEW RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—British citizens have marked up another taxpaying record. Nearly $173,000,000 in income tax payments flowed into the treasury the first 16 days of this month, compared to $76,120,000 in the first 17 days of last year.

At the end of Jan. 16 the sum of $98,550,000 had been collected, or an increase of $62,280,000 over the amount of the corresponding week last year. The total income tax collected to date is 25 per cent of the amount due March 31.

It's Seen as Impetus to Better Days.

cance of the development. Some thought that acceptance by Gen. Dawes of this important appointment by the President commits him to the renomination of Mr. Hoover, even more definitely than his Chicago declaration, and that his work to dispel the depression, if successful, will go far toward dissipating opposition to the President both in the Republican convention and in the election.

Some thought that if Dawes makes good on this job the ticket will be Hoover and Dawes. The suggestion was also heard that if Dawes fails he will put himself out of consideration for the presidency in the remote contingency of the withdrawal of Mr. Hoover.

Background of Appointment.

The kaleidescopic change in Gen. Dawes' official status is the result, it is learned, of his study of the business situation since his return from Europe a fortnight ago and of pressure of big financial interests on the administration to call him to the job of directing the revival of prosperity and on him to accept the undertaking.

Gen. Dawes on returning informed the President he felt he must resign the ambassadorship and look after his business affairs, but thought he could go to Geneva for a short period. After talking to the bankers and business men in Chicago and New York he was convinced he should not take on the arms conference assignment at all, but should stay at home and put his shoulder to the wheel. He told the President as much when he returned here a few days ago.

In the meantime the New York financiers had set the ball rolling through Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to get Gen. Dawes appointed head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Mr. Hoover leaped at the suggestion and received the general with an offer of the position.

Announcement by President.

The President announced the appointment in this statement:

"I have requested Gen. Dawes to accept the position of president of the new reconstruction corporation.

"It is gratifying to state that he has accepted.

"Mr. Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, will also be chairman of the board of the reconstruction corporation.

"In order that we may preserve the nonpartisan character of the institution the other directors will be chosen after consultation with leaders of both political parties upon completion of the legislation.

"I announce Gen. Dawes' name at this time because of the required change in plans as to the chairmanship of the delegation to the arms conference. Otherwise Gen. Dawes would be leaving for Europe tomorrow."

Stimson Takes His Place.

This was followed by a second statement announcing the appointment of Secretary Stimson to replace Gen. Dawes as chairman of the American delegation to Geneva:

"In view of the change in Gen. Dawes' plans, Secretary Stimson has undertaken the chairmanship of the delegation to the arms conference at Geneva.

"The secretary will not attend the opening meetings, but will take part in the work of the commission after the preliminaries have been disposed of.

"Ambassador Gibson will be acting chairman of the delegation."

The arrangement whereby Secretary Stimson is not to attend the arms conference at its beginning is generally construed as another indication that the President does not expect much of the Geneva gathering. It is expected that this will be the reaction in Europe.

Inasmuch as land forces are chiefly involved in the Geneva negotiations and as the American army is negligible the Hoover plan from the start has been to allow the European powers to fight out the limitation question with the American delegation merely endeavoring to bring the parties into agreement. The intention is to dispatch Stimson to Geneva when such an opportunity presents itself.

CHICAGO BANKERS PLEASED BY DAWES AS FUND DIRECTOR

Announcement that Gen. Charles G. Dawes will be the directing head of the government reconstruction finance corporation was hailed with satisfaction by Chicago bankers yesterday. In addition, a flood of congratulatory messages addressed to Gen. Dawes poured into the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, the Dawes bank.

"I cannot approve too heartily the wisdom of President Hoover in selecting Gen. Dawes for the post and the patriotism of the Chicagoan in accepting it," George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, said. "Gen. Dawes is a good banker, a fine business man and a model citizen. He will inspire confidence to a degree that no other banker or any politician could do. The people may be assured that he will administer this vast government fund ably and fairly and in a manner to accomplish the greatest good."

"I believe the selection of Gen. Dawes will do more to inspire confidence than anything else could do," Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, commented. "After all, an end to fear and a return of confidence is the prime need for recovery from depression."

"We know that Gen. Dawes wanted nothing so much as to return to Chicago and resume his career as a banker and a citizen," Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Republic, said. "But again he has laid aside his own plans and desires to render public service. His patriotism and courage should prove an example to faint hearted Americans. He is exactly the right man for the job."

Following news of Gen. Dawes' appointment, the market price of Central Republic bank stock advanced about 5 points, reaching a high mark of $110 to $114 a share and closing at $109 to $112.

NATIONAL G. O. P. POLITICS JOLTS PATRONAGE BOYS

Split Over Hoover Is New Cause of Discord.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Presidential politics was stirred into the Cook county Republican situation yesterday, producing several strange optical effects upon various ententes, to the perplexity of the ward wranglers.

HIRAM JOHNSON. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Following the return of County Chairman B. W. Snow and others from Washington it became noised around that most of the factional group leaders in Cook county, in an under cover fashion, have been expressing hopes that Senator Hiram Johnson of California or some other candidate would step into the Illinois presidential primaries. They are not particular friends of Johnson, but they reason that his presence in the field would tend to lighten up the state and county tickets from what they have been calling for months the "Hoover load."

Hiram Wants to Be Shown.

Word brought from Washington is to the effect that Johnson, who as yet has not declared his intentions one way or the other, is raising two objections. First, the question of whether funds for a campaign would be available. Second, and most important, if Johnson managed to lead a successful revolt and thwart the nomination of President Hoover would the convention nominate Hiram? The Californian's friends say a presidential campaign does not appeal to him unless he can be shown that he has a chance to land the nomination if he should succeed in derailing Hoover.

The attitude of the local leaders has had what they call a reperoussion on the Harding-Emmerson-Hoover entente. Although nothing definite has been announced, the Chicago leaders have assumed that George F. Harding, former county treasurer and Emmerson leader in Cook county, would, perhaps, be the Hoover leader in Illinois. Harding's close business and political associate, Gregory T. Van Meter, was appointed collector of internal revenue, and ever since the surmise has been that Harding would fill a high spot in the Hoover organization in Illinois.

Emmerson Changes Tune.

Gov. Emmerson, who has been seeking to build himself up as leader of the party downstate and in Cook, was strong for Hoover last year. On occasion he burst into eulogistic speeches of the President, at dinners which were rather soft pedaling on Hoover. Springfield reports are that the Emmerson ardor has been somewhat chilled by the brand of politics played by the White House concerning the governorship.

Before Emmerson had announced that he would not run for governor, the White House was reported as having urged Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to run for governor to strengthen the national ticket. This has not been any aid to digestion for the Emmerson men at the state house.

COLOMBIA PRESIDENT "CLEARS" MELLON BY NOTE READ AT HEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—A cabled denial from President Olaya of Colombia that he and Secretary Mellon had ever discussed the Barco oil concession was read today to the house judiciary committee, which is considering the impeachment resolution brought against the secretary of the treasury by Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.].

The denial was read to the committee by Alexander Gregg, counsel for Mr. Mellon.

"This is the most damaging evidence yet introduced," declared Representative La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.]. "Mr. Patman has been working for days here to show us that the oil concession was discussed by Mr. Stimson and President Olaya. Why did you get this cabled denial and why was it sent? Why should President Olaya show so much solicitude for Mr. Mellon and the state department?"

Mr. Gregg replied that he was certain no one in the state department had asked for the denial.

The committee went into executive session. Chairman Sumners [Dem., Tex.] then announced that the hearings were adjourned until the official transcript was completed and printed. That may require from one to three weeks.

Mr. Patman read to the committee a lits of stocks he declared Secretary Mellon had put up as collateral with a Pittsburgh bank for a $60,000,000 bond issue made by the Gulf Oil corporation.

FLORIDA G. O. P. IN BATTLE FOR PARTY CONTROL

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Possibility that Florida Republicans will have two rival delegations at the national convention in Chicago loomed today as a result of National Committeeman Glenn B. Skipper's action in declaring yesterday's state control meeting illegal.

The central committee called a state convention at Orlando for April 12 to select national delegates. In turn, Skipper issued a statement saying he had held another meeting and called a convention at Orlando for March 28, also for the purpose of selecting delegates.

Skipper and Mrs. Clara C. Grace, national committeewoman, decline to recognize R. E. L. Pryor, Tampa, as chairman of the state central committee "for good and sufficient reasons."

Youth Quickly Vanishes • As a Result of Constipation • Eating Fresh Yeast Brings Health!

Danger! You can't expect health to last if you continue to neglect constipation!

Here's typical case. Note wastes clogging the intestines. Poisons that result cause headaches, loss of energy, etc. . . . and hasten old age, doctors explain!

Intestinal FATIGUE is SERIOUS, doctors say!

WHAT would you say if your doctor told you that you were doomed to old age at forty? That at fifty you would suffer high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries . . . that your health would be virtually gone?

You wouldn't believe him. You'd say it was fantastic, impossible.

Yet that is exactly what physicians are warning today . . . yes, actually predicting for those who neglect Intestinal Fatigue!

What is the best way to get rid of constipation . . . and the headaches, backaches, digestive troubles and loss of vigor to which this evil almost invariably leads?

Doctors say, emphatically, not by means of drugs and medicines—harsh laxatives, strong cathartics, habit-forming pills.

The day of such crude measures is past. And in their place famous physicians today are recommending a simpler, much more sensible method—the regular, daily eating of fresh yeast!

A food, Fleischmann's fresh Yeast has certain remarkable properties no other single food possesses. In particular, it has the power to stimulate the delicate muscles of the stomach and intestinal tract.

Thus the organs that digest your food are gently "toned up"—strengthened. Intestines function normally. Poison-breeding food wastes that clogged your system are softened and harmlessly, easily cleared away!

Doesn't it sound simple? It is. No dangerous "dosing." No arduous diets. Just a natural addition to your regular food régime!

You're shortening your life if you neglect CONSTIPATION! Read about this simple way specialists advise to correct it

To get best results, you should eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every day—before meals, or between meals and at bedtime. Eat it just plain or dissolved in water (a third of a glass). And keep it up!

You'll soon notice the benefits. Better appetite. A fresher, clearer skin. More abundant energy and "pep." And—as you keep on with the three-times-a-day yeast routine—you'll find yourself feeling better in a hundred gratifying ways!

So why put it off? You can get Fleischmann's Yeast (rich in vitamins B, G and D) at grocers, restaurants, soda fountains. Start to eat it now!

IMPORTANT—Fleischmann's Yeast for health comes only in the foil-wrapped cake with the yellow label. It is yeast in its fresh, effective form—the kind famous doctors recommend. Ask for it by name!

GUNMEN POSE AS DRY AGENTS; KILL RUM RACKETEER

Slain Amidst Party in His Rockford Home.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Jack De Marco, bootlegger who "squealed," was murdered swiftly and spectacularly tonight, a few hours after his return from Leavenworth penitentiary on parole after serving nearly a year of an 18 month term for prohibition violations. His killers were three gangsters who posed as prohibition agents.

De Marco was turning on the radio in his home. It was the beginning of a homecoming celebration for which a party of friends had gathered. Suddenly three flashily dressed, swarthy men entered his bungalow on Montague road, on the southwest edge of the city.

"Where's De Marco?" one of them asked.

"Here I am," said De Marco, turning from the radio to face the men. Witnesses said his face went white.

"We're prohibition agents," said the spokesman of the killers, at the same time flashing a badge under his lapel.

Force Others from Room.

The trio produced guns and forced De Marco's four children, his wife, and four visitors, two men and two women, into a bedroom adjoining the living room. De Marco was detained.

The door to the bedroom slammed to and in an instant the group that had been herded into the bedroom heard five shots. The guests and members of the family rushed into the living room as they heard an automobile speed away and found De Marco lying on his face in a pool of blood. He had been shot twice in the body and three times in the back of the head, the last three bullets apparently having been fired as he lay on the floor.

Slayers Believed Chicagoans.

Rockford police said they believed Chicago gunmen were employed by the local booze ring to kill De Marco because of their belief that he gave information on bootlegging activities to obtain a parole.

De Marco, who was 36 years old, was known to police as a small fry bootlegger. He had no criminal record prior to his conviction last February. The police said he was known as a "squealer."

De Marco was one of 92 original defendants in a conspiracy case that required two weeks to try and unfolded a story of illicit distilling on a tremendous scale in Rockford's "Little Italy." Trainloads of corn sugar and tons of yeast were used to feed the seventy stills found in subbasements of Sicilian homes. The property damage resulting from the raiding activity of the federal agents was estimated at $500,000 and the "ring's" output of alcohol was said to have run into the millions of gallons.

Women Lawyers Plan Dance

MERCHANT SLAIN, BYSTANDER SHOT IN TWO HOLDUPS

Three Police Battle 3 Robbers in Cafe.

A merchant was shot and fatally wounded during a robbery last evening. In two other Chicago robberies victims were wounded by holdup men.

The man who died of his wounds was Saul Weiner, 35 years old, part owner of a general store at 3901 South Halsted street. He was in the front part of the place when two armed men entered. In the rear was his partner, John Edelman.

As Weiner started to comply with an order to hand over the contents of the cash register Edelman slammed a back door. The bandit nearest Weiner, apparently frightened, pulled the trigger of his pistol. Weiner fell with a wound in the abdomen. He died at the Southwest General hospital.

Used as Shield by Robbers; Shot.

Joseph Sherman, 34 years old, 3613 Roosevelt road, was seriously wounded when he was caught between the fire of three robbers and of three policemen in George Monotto's grill at 1825 Madison street. The policemen were eating there when the robbers arrived.

According to Sherman, who was taken to the Presbyterian hospital, the robbers had halted him in front of the restaurant and forced him to march into the restaurant in front of them as a shield.

The policemen, Sergt. Michael Toohey and Patrolmen Edward Wenkeles and Frank Grady of the detective bureau bomb squad, drew their pistols after the leader of the bandits fired a shot at Joseph Gardi, 2114 De Kalb street, a politician, who was eating in the restaurant. More than thirty shots were fired in the battle.

In the restaurant, besides Gardi and the policemen, were two waitresses, Gladys Farley and Florence Kelly, and two other customers, Miss Mary Losurdo of 1031 South Cypress street and A. E. Zozone of 139 North Clark street. All escaped injury by diving under tables. The robbers fled after emptying their pistols.

Third Victim Is Wounded.

Robert Brown, 45 years old, 5044 Hutchinson street, was shot in the right knee early this morning by one of two robbers who held up the soft drink parlor of Ted Herman at 2100 Irving Park boulevard. After Herman, Brown, and three others, customers of the place, had surrendered a total of $105 to the bandits one of the gunmen fired twice at the floor. The bullet which struck Brown was a ricochet from the floor tiles.

Sidney and Irwin Rosen, brothers, and their wives were robbed of $150 by four armed men early this morning in a drug store at 7000 South Halsted street, which is owned by the Rosens. As they were marching out after the robbery the bandits met Policeman Peter Cleary. His gun was pointed at them and the four men surrendered meekly. They are Samuel Rossen, 18 years old, 1314 Washburne avenue; John Mundo, 19 years old, 7846 Dobson avenue; Frank Brigando, 17 years old, and Conrad Lenzo, 19, both of 7726 Calumet avenue.

RUSSIA REVEALS CHAOTIC "MESS" IN ITS FACTORIES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—The newspaper Pravda today confirmed reports that a shortage of metals and other materials in soviet factories, caused by nondelivery by plants where they were ordered, is seriously hampering production and in some cases stopping work altogether at intervals.

Regarding the country's largest agricultural machinery plant, Selmash, at Rosov, Pravda reports:

"The nonfulfillment of the production program of 1931—it was 45 per cent below schedule—put the factory in a grievous financial position. On Jan. 16 its indebtedness surpassed $5,000,000. Exposed to weather and snow there are piles of unfinished material worth $1,500,000, combines, plows, and seeding machines, which cannot be completed or sold owing to the nondelivery of some part or other. In some cases, plows, for instance, 'unfinished' simply means that the lumber trust failed to deliver the packing cases."

Orders Not Guilty Verdict for Doctor in $100,000 Suit

Superior Judge Harry Prentice yesterday directed a jury in his court to return a not guilty verdict in the $100,000 damage suit against Dr. Wallace F. Grosvenor, 4700 Sheridan road, filed by Mrs. Wendell W. Hall, 215 Wood court, Wilmette, wife of the stage and radio entertainer. Mrs. Hall charged malpractice in an operation performed by Dr. Grosvenor in the Ravenswood hospital in August, 1928. Judge Prentice said Mrs. Hall's attorneys had introduced no evidence to show the degree of negligence which must be proved.

Ad in Tribune Leads to Finding of Actor's Coat

When Mrs. F. P. Wells of New York left for Los Angeles about two weeks ago it was chilly. In addition to her own wraps she wore a coat which she had borrowed from Norman Kerry, a film actor. When Mrs. Wells arrived in Chicago it was so warm she didn't have to wear the coat. A Union station red cap by error put it with the baggage of W. I. Schwankme, 2373 East 70th street. Mrs. Wells notified the police of the loss. Yesterday the police found it, Mr. Schwankme had advertised his finding of the garment in THE TRIBUNE.

NEW JERSEY TOLD TO ABOLISH OVER 100 BUREAUS

Governor Advocates General Consolidations.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Abolition of thirty-five state commissions and the consolidation of more than a hundred departments, bureaus, and commissions into twelve departments under single executives were advocated by Gov. A. Harry Moore in his inaugural address today.

A. HARRY MOORE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Entering his second term as New Jersey's chief executive, Gov. Moore advocated a petition by the legislature to congress for repeal of the Volstead act and action to repeal the Hobart state enforcement act.

No More Frills and Furbelows.

Insisting throughout his entire address that "all frills and furbelows" of state government must be eliminated, Gov. Moore concluded his message by saying:

"In these times a dollar saved is certainly a dollar earned. May I say in conclusion that even the most partisan among you cannot evade the fact that the people have, by an overwhelming majority, delivered to me a mandate to carry out these ideas of economy."

Follows Al Smith's Example.

Mr. Moore's proposals are said to follow fairly closely the system adopted in New York under former Gov. Alfred E. Smith. They are designed to make the governor the actual administrative officer of the state rather than a figurehead with most of the department chiefs responsible to the legislature.

Gov. Moore faces a Republican controlled senate, with the Democrats having a majority in the assembly.

The new executive also urged a two-year recess on road construction, return of $16,500,000 to the municipalities from road funds, postponement of institutional construction, railroad grade crossing elimination and the $37,000,000 Bunvale water reserve project. Postponement of expenditure of all state funds not already contracted for was recommended.

AUSTRIAN MEDICS APPEAL FOR GOLD TO BUY MEDICINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 19.—Austrian doctors and hospitals today appealed to the government for help to relieve a shortage of medicines as a result of the currency restrictions. Several large pharmaceutical firms in the United States and Germany which have been supplying the bulk of foreign medicines to Austria have refused to ship further supplies because of the inability of the Austrians to procure dollars with which to pay.

The Austrian physicians point out that when the emergency restrictions were put into effect, they adhered to the government's appeal to use only Austrian medicines, but many important medicines are not manufactured here. Now, the doctors say, the restrictions are endangering the public health. Austria formerly bought $1,000,000 worth of medicines in the United States annually.

Austrian dentists last week were granted permission to withdraw gold for teeth fillings after protesting against the restrictions.

LEGION PRESSES PLAN TO PROVIDE A MILLION JOBS

An unemployment relief program, designed to put a million men to work and turn over a pay roll of one billion dollars seven times during the year, was outlined yesterday by the national employment commission of the American Legion, meeting in the Stevens hotel.

The program calls for an increase of 10 per cent in pay rolls, the general adoption of a six hour day with six hours' pay, and the pledging of all property owners to have necessary repairs made at the present time.

The Legion members, representing ten middle western states, strongly "advocated the stopping of senseless expenditures" by the federal government, urging that such funds be diverted to the aid of productive enterprises.

National Commander Henry L. Stevens, who presided, declared that a 10 per cent general increase in employment would put a million men to work, who, having an average income of $1,000, would put $1,000,000,000 in circulation. He estimated that this sum would be turned over seven times in a year.

Mr. Stevens said that some business leaders may oppose the plan because of a fear of increased expenditures. "but business and financial leaders must lead the way back to prosperity by making the first sacrifices."

ASSAILS CITY'S DEFENSE OF ITS LAKE DIVERSION

Milwaukee Mayor Calls Us Treaty Wreckers.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph yesterday made public another letter he has received from Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee, wherein the mayor accuses him of seeking to wreck the proposed United States treaty with Canada for the joint construction of the St. Lawrence waterway.

Mayor Hoan, foe of lake diversion at Chicago, and Col. Randolph, president of the Mississippi Valley association, have been exchanging letters for a month in a controversy over the treaty and some of their exchanges have been read before the Illinois delegation in congress. A special committee of this delegation was appointed to make sure that no treaty restricting the diversion at Chicago is concluded.

Mayor Hoan's Letter.

"Let me say," wrote Mayor Hoan, "that the delegates from Canada to our recent Great Lakes Harbors association convention unanimously asserted time and again that no treaty would be accepted by the Canadian government unless it provides that the diversion of water on the sanitary canal shall be reduced in accordance with the decree of the United States supreme court.

"I take you at your word that you believe it is right to oppose this treaty if there is anything in it referring to this diversion of water. My claim is that this position is what is going to wreck this treaty."

Question of the Protocol.

Mayor Hoan has stated that a protocol of the treaty has already been agreed upon and that it contains a paragraph about diversion at Chicago. Col. Randolph has been endeavoring to learn where Mayor Hoan got his information. In this respect the mayor wrote:

"If you traveled all the way to Washington and did not get the information you desired from the department of state I am not surprised. I should not hope to get that information myself. But if you desire to know anything about this question send letters to your congressmen, both from Chicago and throughout Illinois, and if you do not verify the fact that this very issue is now up in Washington and that the fight is being made by these representatives informally, then I acknowledge myself an ass and a fool."

Draft of Treaty Denied.

Col. Randolph, in this connection, said:

"It will give me great pleasure to accept Mayor Hoan's acknowledgement that he is an ass and a fool. Meanwhile I am satisfied with the word of Secretary Stimson and other members of the state department that no treaty has even been drafted. What information Mayor Hoan has concerning the treaty probably comes from Henry J. Allen, president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, but he is dreaming about the diversion matter."

Mayor Hoan, however, will have no need to acknowledge himself "an ass and a fool" for Washington dispatches state that the Illinois congressmen have found a committee headed by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, which is fighting to safeguard the interests of Illinois and the Mississippi valley states in any treaty that may be proposed.

"None of Chicago's Business."

In Milwaukee yesterday Mayor Hoan asserted that the source of his information was none of Chicago's business.

"I have repeatedly said," he added, "that Chicago politicians are carrying on an undercover fight at Washington that threatens to wreck the treaty with Canada and jeopardize the welfare of the central states and they haven't denied it."

Asked what steps if any he proposes to take, the mayor said he would appeal to the board of directors of the Great Lakes Harbors association to fight the "Chicago politicians."

For years Milwaukee has opposed the diversion of water through the Chicago sanitary and ship canal, its spokesmen asserting, in the face of rising lake levels that threatened great property damage, that if Chicago were allowed the diversion it desires the lake would recede and leave Milwaukee without any water for its harbor.

ARGENTINA SLAPS ON DRASTIC TAX TO EVEN BUDGET

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Argentine government imposed emergency taxes on incomes, property, and business today in one of the most drastic steps of Argentina's financial history. The taxes were imposed to balance the country's budget, put its finances on a permanently sound basis, and silence talk of a moratorium.

Shifting from customs duties, the cabinet of Provisional President Uriburu issued a decree for an emergency period of five years' taxes ranging from one-half of one per cent to seven per cent on salaries, lands, property, securities, commerce, and industry.

Special graduated taxes on all personal incomes over $6,500 were imposed, as well as increased levies on gasoline, insurance, matches, cigarets, tobacco, business licenses, perfume, pharmaceutical products, and foreign exchange transactions. The taxes are retroactive from Jan. 1.

Boy Scouts Total 908,481; Oak Parker Is Honored

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The largest Boy Scout membership in the organization's history, 908,481, was announced to the Scout national executive board meeting tonight by Dr. James E. West, chief Scout executive. The membership has increased 38,592 in a year.

Fifty-two Harmon scholarship awards to Boy Scouts with exceptional records were approved by the board. Each one entitles its winner to $100 toward an education and the right to borrow without endorsement other sums from the Harmon Educational foundation. The award winners included: Robert C. Hieronymus, 17, of 702 Pennsylvania avenue, Urbana, Ill., and Harry D. Thorsen Jr., 402 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park.

GIRL IS KILLED, NINE INJURED IN FUNERAL CRASH

Auto Forced Out by Union Is Wrecked.

but went to Mount Olive cemetery by routes of their own choosing. The exceptions were a police automobile and a car containing representatives of an afternoon newspaper. They left the cortège at the request of the funeral director after the union drivers had stopped the procession at Addison and Ward streets.

The Lakin funeral had many more difficulties than that. Young Lakin lived at 1206 North Kedzie avenue. The funeral services were held in the William Hartman & Son mortuary at 2018 Division street. Thousands of persons had gathered, and there were scores of privately owned automobiles ready to take the friends of young Lakin to the Jewish Waldheim cemetery.

The hearse and the first limousine in line are owned by a livery concern in which the Hartman mortuary is interested. Milton Jaffee was in charge of the hearse and Carl Adams of the limousine.

Police Captain Keeps Order.

Traffic was blocked at Division street and Damen avenue when, according to witnesses, Jaffee in a pleasant manner advised the mourners not to join in the procession. The order was not obeyed, but there was no disturbance, Police Captain Patrick Collins keeping order at this point.

One block to the west the hearse and the first car were pulled up to the curb. Jaffee and Adams climbed out to the sidewalk and waved to the following automobiles to go ahead.

"Pull on by," he shouted.

Apparently his orders were not obeyed with sufficient promptness. The halt and the arm waving were repeated at Claremont avenue, at California avenue, and at Kedzie avenue. There was still another halt at Homan avenue, where the hearse was turned south. Here Sandman, at last obedient to union dictation, kept on west with the car containing the young friends of the dead Lakin.

Car Collides with Truck.

As Sandman and the others were approaching Pine avenue, hurrying to reach the cemetery on time, a truck owned by the Lund Coal company and filled with five tons of coal turned into Division street. Sandman was trying to pass another automobile and his car and the coal truck collided head on. William Rous, 1739 North California avenue, driver of the truck, was unhurt.

All those in Sandman's car were injured. The automobile burst into flames a few seconds after the accident while the persons in it were being extricated. John Robertson, attendant at a nearby filling station, ran to the car with a fire extinguisher and succeeded in putting out the flames before any further casualties occurred.

The injured girls and youths were taken to St. Anne's hospital, where Miss Pearlman died. Word of the accident reached the cemetery and there was danger of violence, but Driver Jaffee succeeded in calming those persons who were talking of retaliation. Jaffee said he and his fellow drivers were merely obeying union orders and should not be held responsible for what had occurred.

Four Drivers Ask Jury Trial.

The four union drivers who were arrested on Monday when they refused to operate their automobiles and hearse in the funeral of Mrs. John Ecomomakos, 1177 South State street, were arraigned before Judge Donald F. McKinlay yesterday and asked a jury trial.

Their attorney, William Cunnea, served notice that he would file suits against the policemen who drove the hearse and mourners' cars to the cemetery.

Here's One County That Starts Year Out of Debt!

13 RADICALS QUIT BADGER SENATE RELIEF SESSION

Body Lacks Quorum; Arrest Faces Strikers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Thirteen senators of the La Follette faction went on a strike today, announcing in a statement that they would not attend sessions until conservatives are ready to act on the question of relief.

The senate met today with La Follette senators missing and the upper house without a quorum. To prevent automatic adjournment, Senator George Blanchard, Edgerton, brought on a call of the senate and the senate finally recessed to tomorrow morning under the call, while the bolting senators are being rounded up by the sergeant-at-arms.

Reply to Radicals.

Before noon 13 Conservative senators issued a statement answering the strike declaration by the radicals and expressing resentment over the "idea of running out and going home."

In a supplementary message sent to the legislature Gov. Philip F. La Follette added two subjects to the special message call—one asked legislation to give the governor's council power to slash expenses of any department up to 20 per cent due to the discovery that greater economies are needed to keep the state within its income, and the other a provision for an extension of the time of property tax payments.

The strike of the La Follette senators today set precedent in Wisconsin legislative history, and the statutes were studied to determine whether absent senators might not be cited for contempt of the senate.

List of Senate "Strikers."

The La Follette senators signing the strike statement were John A. Anderson, John E. Cashman, Thomas M. Duncan, Leonard E. Fons, Walter H. Hunt, A. A. Miller, V. S. Keppel, Glenn D. Roberts, W. J. Rush, H. J. Severson, Fred W. Zantow, Peter Smith, and O. S. Loomis.

The statement declared that "We, the progressive members of the senate, have attended all sessions of the senate, but have been prevented by a continuous filibuster by the stalwart majority from carrying on public business, all to the unnecessary expense of the taxpayers. In the hope that some adequate relief legislation could be passed we have watched week after week of horse play, foolish motions, interminable recessing, and adjournment as soon as legislation seemed possible of enactment.

Demand Relief Action.

"We are ready to attend any and all sessions as soon as the stalwarts are ready to act. We are going home. But we shall promptly return whenever the stalwart majority is ready to enact a relief bill for any reasonable amount of money, providing it imposes the burden where it belongs, namely, upon those with substantial net cash incomes. We are opposed to and shall continue to vote against any additional tax on the home owner, the farmer, and the small business man."

Conservative senators did not sign their reply. It declared:

"The conservative members of the senate, 13 in number, four less than a majority, returned to Madison today with the expectation that the senate and assembly would continue their efforts to complete the legislative program.

Run Out on Compromise.

"On Friday negotiations were started with Governor La Follette to agree on a relief bill. On Tuesday, on the eve of an attempt to compromise, what do we find? A boycott by the progressives. That is the answer to the conservative offer to sit down in conference in an honest effort to solve a most perplexing problem.

"Attention is called to the bills offered by conservatives and also by independents and killed by a progressive assembly. The first bill was killed by the assembly Dec. 16, 1931. Since that date the progressive assembly has killed two bills raising $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 offered by Senator Nelson, an independent, and the same assembly has not acted on the Goodland bill sent to them last week. Not once have they offered any suggestions except to kill any proposal sent them.

Radical Demands Met.

"We reaffirm our previous statements that under no circumstances will we permit a property tax on farms, small business men and home owners. These bills were based on income taxes to be paid by people who have cash earnings.

"We refuse to play the game as these progressive senators desire it. We resent the idea of running out and going home. We propose to stay here and do our duty although these same boycott senators may have a desire to kill off all relief measures."

Governor La Follette's third message to the legislature made no mention of the relief question and it was received without comment.

SEATTLE GIRL WHO WED HINDU PRINCE ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Her highness, the Maharani Sharmishthabi Holkar of Indore, who was Nancy Miller of Seattle until she married the maharajah of Indore four years ago, arrived here today on her first visit to the United States since the wedding.

Dressed in deep mourning for her grandmother, who died in October, she was hurrying to the sick bed of her grandfather, Louis Schaefer of Seattle. She went direct to the train from the Lloyd Sabaudo liner Conte Biancamano.

The maharani denied that there was any foundation for the rumor that her husband was growing fretful because their two children are girls.

BOY ROBBER, 15, IS CAPTURED BY INTENDED VICTIM

Harry Schroeder, 15 years old, 1935 Wabansia avenue, who was released from the St. Charles school for boys on Dec. 5 after serving a term of a year for robbery, tried a stickup yesterday.

His chosen victim was Richard Siebold, owner of a meat market at 3403 Southport avenue. Siebold is an ex-policeman and he shot and killed one of two bandits who tried to rob him a year ago. When young Schroeder entered his store Siebold wrested a pistol from him, threw him to the floor and sat on him until the police arrived.

The youth confessed that he had held up seven meat markets in the last three weeks. He is one of a family of sixteen children. His brother, George Schroeder, was killed while attempting a holdup twelve years ago.

Loop Speakeasy Is Raided; Owner and Bartender Held

Prohibition agents raided a speakeasy, known as the "One Quarter club," on the second floor at 103 South Wells street yesterday. Harry Jacobs, owner of the place, was held in $2,500 bonds and the bartender, Thomas Anderson, in $1,500 bonds by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker for hearing on charges of violation of the prohibition law on Jan. 29. The raiders confiscated 200 pints of liquor and two barrels of beer.

LETS DRY RAIDER SEIZE FURNITURE IN SWANK CLUB

U. S. Judge's Ruling Hits Broadway Night Life.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Broadway's elaborate drinking clubs heard the rumble of the moving van this afternoon when Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson handed down an important decision upholding the right of prohibition agents to seize and remove the furniture and fixtures in establishments selling liquor.

The decision means that henceforth prohibition raiders may dismantle night clubs and gilt and gold speakeasies and that the recent damage done to such luxurious places as the Royal Box, a $250,000 merriment parlor; the celebrated Stork club, and other haunts of the easy spenders will stick.

Win no Medals as Movers.

Judge Patterson, in his ruling, made no specific mention of axes and hammers, but did warn that "care should be taken to avoid damage to furniture and leakage." The care, apparently will be left to the dicretion of the raiders, and they never have endeared themselves to interior decorators nor won any medals as movers of fragile furniture.

The federal court decision was made in denying a petition for an injunction restraining Prohibition Administrator McCampbell from dismantling the interior of the semi-fashionable Stork club which was rather roughly raided on Dec. 22.

Under the decision Mr. McCampbell may not seize the chattels and effects of at least half a dozen of the city's most sumptuous drinking spots and the night life business has been hit squarely in its most tender spot, the pocketbook.

"Of course, the defendant has no right," said Judge Patterson, "to destroy the furnishing, or the liquor for that matter, unless ordered by the court to do so. Presumably he could be enjoined from destruction if it were really imminent, but there is no substantial showing that such destruction will take place. The defendant denies any such intention. The application for a temporary injunction will be denied and the stay vacated."

Owners of elaborate speakeasies, however, have found in the past that "removal" of equipment, furniture and decorations means considerable destruction of such property. In the case of the sacking of the Royal Box, the city's most sumptuous speakeasy, on New Year's eve, demolition was halted by a similar injunction to that obtained by the Stork club.

Judge Patterson's decision apparently again looses the dry agents on the Royal Box. When dismantling of the Royal Box, said to be owned by Owney Madden, the beer baron, was stopped on Jan. 3, a gang of laborers were carting out life-sized statues, oil paintings, oriental rugs, and opulent hangings. They now may return to their work. The depression is over for the storage warehouses.

Federal agents awaiting Judge Patterson's decision busied themselves today at unearthing hidden supplies of liquors at the Villa D'Este club and the Stork club. At the Villa D'Este a buzzer was located and pressed with the result that a wall, before which the bar stood, slid up into the ceiling, revealing a large safe in which were found 61 bottles of assorted liquors.

At the Stork club, a second visit revealed a pivoting washroom on the door of which hung an "out of order sign." Upon jabbing a button the washroom revolved, the floor opened beneath and 300 bottles of Scotch, rye and similar liquids popped into view.

It was the contention of United States Attorney George Z. Medalie that such contraptions more than justified the desire of dry law enforcers for authority to make a ransacking and complete the job of each raid the first trip.

RIP SPIZERINKTUMS OF WAR BUILDING, DEMAND OF SMOOT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The "gimcracks and spizerinktums" which ornament the state, war and navy building, around which an architectural controversy has raged for decades, were strenuously denounced and enthusiastically defended in the senate today. It started when Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] suggested that if the administration really wanted to save government money, a good place to start would be on the proposed $4,000,000 appropriation for remodeling the state, war and navy building. His suggestion aroused the ire of solemn Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah].

"All my life I've wondered what kind of mind ever created such a monstrosity," said Mr. Smoot. "I've never seen so many gimcracks and spizerinktums on any other building in any other part of the world. I hope I may live long enough to see it torn down."

"Why," interrupted Senator Norris, insurgent Republican of Nebraska, "I think that is one of the finest buildings in the world. I fear the senator from Utah at some time in his life was bitten by a gimcrack, or unable to get away from a spizerinktum. Now he wants to vent his spleen on this beautiful structure, just because it is ornamented by gimcracks and partially inhabited by spizerinktums."

Vice President Curtis rapped repeatedly for order as the galleries giggled. The senate then turned to more serious business.

CHICAGO CALLED WORST SUFFERER FROM VOLSTEAD

Is Center of Rum Demand from "Dry" States.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Chicago more than any other city has suffered from the evil effects of prohibition, Representative Adolph J. Sabath of Chicago today told the senate subcommittee reconsidering the Bingham bill to legalize 4 per cent beer.

A. J. SABATH.

"It is because of the fact," the congressman went on, "that a large so-called prohibition territory—Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska—depends on Chicago for its liquor supply."

"You don't mean Kansas?" interjected Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], author of the beer bill.

"You'd be surprised," said Mr. Sabath. "The demand from Kansas is tremendous."

"Before prohibition," continued Mr. Sabath, "Chicago was one of the most law abiding and sober cities in the United States. Yes, even despite the fact that it contained 7,000 saloons."

No Hope Under Volstead Law.

Chicago is "cleaning up," said Mr. Sabath, but he did not look for success so long as prohibition remains.

It is to "this crime and corruption breeding law," the congressman maintained, that Chicago owes the charges made against it as a crime center. To Chicago, he said, prohibition has meant the cost of a new jail and enlarged Bridewell.

"The officers of the Anti-Saloon league, on the other hand, have reason to make merry over the twelfth anniversary of prohibition," Mr. Sabath went on. "Ever since its adoption they have lived in luxury at the taxpayers' expense."

Congresswoman Makes Plea.

The attitude of women concerning prohibiton is fast changing, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, New Jersey congresswoman, told the subcommittee members in relating what the prohibition law had done to cause mothers to worry. Women with children of from 5 to 12 years old, she said, often write in to say that they "hope something will be done before the children reach the flask toting age.

Legalized beer would help do away with "the frightful gin drinking which is such a menace today," Mrs. Norton believed.

"Passage of the beer law," said Mrs. Norton, "would not remove the immoral aspects of prohibition, but at least it would provide a partial solution of this vexing problem."

"If a referendum were taken tomorrow," she declared, "there is no doubt of what the result would be."

IN CELL

RAMDAS GANDHI.

BOMBAY, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Ramdas Gandhi, youngest son of Mahatma Gandhi, was arrested today in the village of Haripura for taking part in Nationalist activities against the British government.

This put three members of the Gandhi family in jail. The mahatma was arrested on Jan. 9 and placed in prison at Poona. His 60 year old wife was taken into custody a week later.

Within 22 minutes today, nineteen prisoners who had been arrested for picketing at the government mint were convicted and sentenced to six months prison terms. Most of them were women. They had been attempting to stop the shipment of gold from India.

INDIAN PRINCES OFFER BRITAIN WARSHIP A YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Confidential advice that the Indian princes are willing to contribute a light cruiser annually to the British navy was forwarded to the admiralty by Viceroy Lord Willingdon today, it was learned.

Events in Manchuria are said to have convinced the princes of the necessity to secure the safety of the Indian coast, and they are willing to allot a percentage of their annual revenues to pay for the vessels. It is reported that the nizam of Hyderabad and the maharajah of Mysore are willing to go even further than the percentage if they are given strips of territory dividing their states from the sea.

Under the offer all the cruisers are to bear the names of Indian states and are to be permanently attached to the East Indian squadron. The princes also ask that members of their families be trained to become naval officers.

DRYS WARN THAT MURRAY'S VIEWS ARE NOT SOUTH'S

Governor Not Mentioned Directly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Dr. A. J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon league, asserted in a speech before the league convention here today that the "south will not be misled by the hue and cry about state rights" in the 1932 presidential campaign.

Dr. Barton's speech, while it did not mention Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma by name, was regarded as the league's answer to the governor's address before the convention last night in which he startled the delegates by suggesting a system of "zone control" for the liquor traffic.

Warns Political Leaders.

"The south will not be misled by the hue and cry about state's rights," Dr. Barton declared. "The south knows that the wets who are now paying lip service to states rights either do not understand what states rights mean or else are deliberately or maliciously misinterpreting and perverting this thing which is sacred and fundamental to our government."

Dr. Barton said he wished to warn all political leaders that "if they desire or expect the support of the south they must stand before the south with clean hands on the subject of prohibition and must not attempt to betray the convictions of the south or destroy the highest interests of the south and of the American people."

Officials of the league said today that no formal statement, repudiating Gov. Murray's speech or disassociating the league from its suggestion, would be issued. Dr. Barton declared that no such statement was necessary.

Gov. Murray diverged considerably from the speech he had prepared for delivery to the league convention last night. In his prepared address he had prefaced his "zone control" suggestion with the statement that "it is not my judgment now that prohibition will prove the wisest legal solution of the control of liquor traffic." In delivering this address he said that prohibition "possibly is not the final solution of the problem of control of the liquor traffic."

Explaining his divergence today, Gov. Murray declared he was prepared to stand back of every word he had intended to say but that he had "toned down" his speech in order not to embarrass the executive committee.

"I was satisfied that a lot of people in the audience did not think as I do," he said. "I kept a close eye on the crowd and knew they weren't in sympathy with my views. The mentality of the crowd was not what I expected."

PRINCE'S MA-IN-LAW CAN'T BAR HIM, ELLIS ISLAND OFFICIAL SAYS

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Prince Geronimo Rospigliosi need have no fear of being barred from the United States just because his socially prominent American mother-in-law doesn't like him, it was said at Ellis Island today.

The prince, whose marriage to Marian Snowden, Newport heiress, in Milan awhile back caused wide comment on both sides of the Atlantic, is due here Friday on the Vulcania. It is reported that Marian's mother, Mrs. Walter Sherman Davidson of Newport, has appealed to the state department in an effort to have him detained at Ellis Island upon his arrival.

Commissioner of Immigration Edward Corsi said today that he had not been advised of any such request and added:

"If the prince, or any other foreigner, arrives at the port of New York to visit the United States, with his passports and other papers in order, there is nothing we can do to detain him."

British Prince Has Narrow Escape from Falling Plank

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Prince George, youngest son of the king, escaped injury by a scant few inches today while he was making a tour of the industrial districts of this city. As he walked into a workshop a heavy plank which had been used to prop open a window fell at his feet. He jumped back quickly, but made light of the incident.

MAYOR OF GARY UNDER FIRE IN JURY'S INQUIRY

Report Malfeasance True Bill Is Ordered.

The grand jury was said to have ordered Prosecutor Robert G. Estill to prepare a true bill naming Mayor Johnson. Inasmuch as the bill would require several days of preparation, the prosecutor was said to have asked that a test vote be taken. This vote, it was said, indicated that the jurors wished the prosecutor to go ahead with the bill.

The grand jury was called to investigate charges of corruption in the Gary city government. Twenty witnesses have been questioned, including City Controller A. C. Huber, City Clerk John Dwyer, other city employés, policemen, and sewer workers. None of the witnesses except Mayor Johnson was asked to sign immunity waivers.

The grand jury is reported to have conducted its investigation from three angles. Charges had been made against Mayor Johnson that he had padded the city pay rolls; that he constructed a summer home in the dunes with city labor and city materials, and that he allowed the Glen Park sewer to be accepted by the city despite a knowledge of structural defects.

The Indiana law against malfeasance of officials was passed in 1905. It provides that if an official is found guilty, he may be fined not to exceed $1,000 and shall be removed from office by order of the trial judge.

WOMAN PLEADS GUILTY IN RUM TRIAL; AIDS U. S.

Mrs. Harriet Fritts, the only woman in the $12,000,000 midwest alcohol conspiracy case, pleaded guilty in the trial before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday and testified against major defendants.

Mrs. Fritts' bartender, Leonard Smith; Morris N. Fink, head of the Sugar Supply company, and that corporation also changed their pleas, leaving only 44 individuals and one corporation of the 52 original defendants.

Mrs. Fritts, titian haired operator of a saloon at 37 Walnut street, Aurora, told of selling beer, whisky, and alcohol highballs in her place and corroborated the testimony of prohibition agents that they met the principal Aurora defendants there.

She identified Dave and Sam Dolff, Mike Meyers, and Joseph Rothstein, all of Aurora, and Richard Price of Waterloo, Ia., and said she saw the agents meet them in her saloon. The agents had told of buying alcohol in 60 gallon lots from these men.

The government may conclude its case today.

HUSBAND HAS A COMEBACK IN ALIMONY CASE

Mrs. Lillian Boettcher, 5751 South Elizabeth street, appeared before Superior Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday to ask temporary alimony in her suit for separate maintenance against Ervin Boettcher, 7429 Normal avenue, a postoffice employé. She charged that a month after she left him, last August, she met him entering a cabaret with another woman.

"You should talk!" interrupted Boettcher. "You were with another man."

"That's a horse apiece," said Judge Miller. "You'll have to start over."

Then Mrs. Boettcher testified that when she remonstrated with her husband for his attentions to other women it was his practice to fill the bathtub with water and throw her in. Judge Miller ordered her attorney, Norman Becker, to prepare an order granting her $5 a week temporary alimony.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A SOLEMN WARNING.

The memorial addressed to congress by the Federation of American Business and presented to the senate by Mr. Watson of Indiana is a statement of the paramount issue now confronting the American people. That issue is the reduction of government expenditures. Only when the governments, federal, state and local, have reduced their expenditures to accord with the capacity of the taxpayers to pay can business enjoy a healthy revival. Only when governments, and especially the federal government, cease borrowing to meet deficits will the country feel that its currency is secure and invested funds will be safe from confiscation.

That is a thesis that cannot be repeated too often, for the tendency in congress is to assume that the rôle of government in the emergency is to spend without stint in order to take up the slack in private employment. The memorial, signed by Mr. Charles Wilson and taken to Washington by Mr. Bernard Snow of Chicago, asserts that, for every man placed on the government pay rolls, one or more of the unemployed who might have found work in private industry is deprived of a job. Every dollar borrowed and spent on unproductive public works is a mortgage on the future, an assurance of still higher taxes and a dollar taken from private industry at a critical period.

There has been and is a great deal of talk about economy. The President has given forth some resounding pronouncements on this subject. The Vice President has spoken to the same effect. Outstanding leaders of both parties in the congress have excoriated lavish expenditure and demanded retrenchment. If one gave full credit to official eloquence, the prospect of immediate relief would seem bright.

But in Washington and throughout the country the absence of action is as conspicuous as the plenitude of words. Beneath the show of zeal for economy there is a silent resistance to its accomplishment which only the most persistent and overwhelming effort by the public can hope to overcome.

Back of every public expenditure is an incorrigible self-interest. Every bureau has its powerful friends. Every government activity and expenditure has its beneficiaries in and out of office who will exert every ounce of influence to protect and perpetuate it. Many or most congressmen and legislators have appointees in the public offices. Every politician is aware that out of government expenditures his organization is maintained, to say nothing of such private benefits as he may be deriving directly or indirectly. Every jobholder knows that retrenchment may endanger or reduce his livelihood. Private citizens and enterprises profiting by government public contracts, communities in which public money may be expended on improvements, real or imaginary, swell the huge army of resistance. All give more or less sincere adherence to the cause of economy and tax relief, but favor it only at some one else's expense.

To overcome this tremendous power is as great a task as the American people ever attempted. In normal times it would be impossible. At this time it may not be. The consequences of inordinate expenditure have culminated in a crisis which has broken through the indifference of a formidable number of citizens. If they can find resolute leadership and will organize and exercise their influence some substantial results can be achieved. The danger of failure lies in underestimating the vast covert forces of resistance, in taking words for deeds, in submitting to evasion and postponement until the pressure of necessity has passed and their own determination has been diluted by returning prosperity.

As we have said, it is now or never. If the habits of government expenditure and the existing drain upon the productive resources of the people are not drastically checked while we are now in the crisis they have precipitated, we can hardly hope to check them in the future. The result will be that the process of exhaustion will descend once more beneath the surface of affairs, but it will go forward, to produce in due time a worse crisis than the present and one which we shall be less able to survive than we are the present.

ALFALFA BILL.

Alfalfa Bill Murray, the vestigial frontier's new offering to national politics, is now in Washington with a beguiling combination of sense and nonsense. People may not agree as to what is sense and what is nonsense, but they will agree that it is a combination of both. THE TRIBUNE could not have any complaint to make of his opinions of Newton Baker, the leaguists, the federal bureaucracy, and the Volstead act. Gov. Murray is a dry, but he's sure to be run out of the congregation because he says he is in favor of a return of liquor control to the states, with federal intervention only to prevent interstate commerce in intoxicating beverages where a state has prohibition.

Mr. Murray admits that his reference to Mr. Baker as a chump or something of the sort was impatient, but to be excused as coming from the heart—an impulsive comment upon the internationalism of the Ohio Wilsonian. Impulsiveness is typical of the frontier, and it is in character for Alfalfa Bill to release an occasional indiscretion of speech containing a nugget of pure thought.

The Oklahoman is somewhat in the Jacksonian tradition, with his war on Texas and on the oil producers, and he seems to have a fondness for hard taxes and soft money. He lost out in the December referendum in which he endeavored to carry the state for some of his ideas, including a proposal for an income tax which would bite. The first question national politics asks of an approaching personage is how things are with him and his state. Mr. Murray probably is not approaching. He is only reminding people of what the older times were when the frontier was more active and when its sons horrified the sober minded of the less volatile regions.

IF MUSSOLINI'S PLAN WERE ADOPTED.

Although the proposal of the redoubtable boss of Fascist Italy for a union of European governments against the rights of the United States failed dismally, it had at least the virtue of candor. It had no other objective than that of the active campaign which has been carried on for months to bully or persuade ingenuous America into assuming the war debts, but the method is more summary. Europe was to unite in a joint repudiation, leaving the United States to accept the consequences.

On the face of this plan it seems simple enough. Profits or sacrifices would vary among the participants and this inequality was its fatal weakness. But there is another which responsible governments can hardly be as ready to ignore as Il Duce. No abuse of the victim can conceal the fact that the plan is plain repudiation, and repudiation of international obligations is a precedent only a hopeless bankrupt would set up. No nation that expects to resume normal relations with others can afford to forget that the sanctity of contract is essential to its own security, to say nothing of its prosperity. The Mussolini idea is that because all the principal nations are debtors, except the United States, they can afford to unite in a general repudiation of their debts to the common creditor.

But, profitable as the devices may seem in the present European situation, its effect could not be confined to the present. It could be applied with the same plausible excuses to any future international obligation. It would be a blow at the whole structure of international credit, present and future. No doubt if America's debtors refuse to pay there is no practicable method available to her to compel them to pay. America will have to charge it off to profit and loss account—and conduct her future international relations on the basis of her new knowledge of international faith. But if Mussolini's plan were adopted world business would have a new character. International credit would be about as reliable as the imaginary honor which the most fallacious of proverbs alleges exists among thieves. The system of good faith on which the vast structure of international trade and finance has been built through the ages will then be no stronger than the morals of the Italian proposal—and will disintegrate.

Meanwhile the American people will note how little the spirit of Mussolini's plan and remarks upon America resemble the smiling countenance of his late emissary, Sig. Grandi. The mask is now off, and the myth of Mr. Stimson's influence at the Quirinal must be hastily removed from the records of our recent diplomatic successes. Even in that remarkable company it would look too painfully fictitious.

Il Duce's inspiration has therefore produced some modest profit to us. It has stopped some of the buncombe which seems an inevitable accompaniment of our present diplomatic experimentation.

Also it may suggest to many of our citizens who pour into Italy annually, with agreeable consequences in the Fascist government's fiscal affairs, that Italy under Mussolini is no longer a resort for self-respecting Americans.

BANKERS AT SCHOOL.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

The current hearings before the senate finance committee on the subject of foreign loans have elicited much information of educational value to the public and its representatives. One hopes that it has proved instructive to our bankers as well, for they, too, have a lot to learn from the evidence.

One lesson in particular should be etched on their minds by this time and that is that too many of them in the recent orgy of foreign bond flotations forgot their obligations of trust and became merchandisers of credit. It will be recalled that Mr. Otto H. Kahn, in his last appearance on the stand, admitted as much. "Whether high powered salesmanship is something that has been overdone [in investment banking] may evoke two opinions," said the cautious Mr. Kahn. "My personal opinion is that it has been overdone. I will agree that there have been exaggerated proceedings."

There have been, without a question, and one form they have taken has been that of importuning the foreign borrower to obligate himself for more credit than prudence dictated. M. Emile Francqui, Belgian finance minister, has been quoted as thus describing the situation in Europe in the heyday of the American capital invasion: "It was utter confusion. We were confronted by the unprecedented spectacle in the financial annals of the world of the lenders literally throwing themselves at the heads of the borrowers in their eagerness to deal with them." The same thing took place in South America, with worse consequences. On both continents at the time rival American banking firms were actively soliciting fiscal agents, public and private, for the privilege of lending them money.

There were two notable exceptions, we are glad to learn from the testimony of Mr. Grosvenor M. Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. He agreed with Mr. Kahn that many investment houses in the United States had competed avidly for South American bond issues in the boom period, but he absolved J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. These two houses he said "had followed the English tradition of the borrower seeking the lender rather than the lender seeking the borrower."

Whether the tradition is English or not [we are inclined to think it was universal before the advent of the new era], its authority over American finance should be reëstablished permanently. Little can be said for high pressure salesmanship in any field, but less than nothing for its employment in banking, and we are much mistaken if the American public has not come to share this view. Our bankers will be well advised hereafter to accept the limitations of their craft in this respect or give up all idea of again becoming money lenders to the world.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

PRESS REPORTS FROM NEW YORK insist that Gov. Roosevelt and Al Smith are as good friends today as they ever were, which was some friendly, based on the fact that the two still call each other "Al" and "Frank." Not doubting at all that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Smith are still chummy, we cannot admit that the "Al" and "Frank" thing is absolute proof. "Art thou in health, my brother?" said Joab as he took Amasa's beard in his right hand and leaned forward to give him a kiss. And it was just then he pulled out a knife he had hidden in his girdle and with his left hand (he was a southpaw) he stabbed Amasa in the right rib and Amasa curled up and died. And "brother" was a much stronger and more affectionate word for Joab to use than if he had said "Ammy" or "Massa" or whatever Amasa's nickname was. No, as Mr. Shakespeare has so well said, "What's in a name?"

ROBIN LEE'S ROOM.

It is high up under the eaves,
Painted mostly in blue and green,
Colors in which
The best fairy housekeeping
Goes on unseen.
Singing elves hide in the lace folds
Of the net drapes on her bed,
And her little green enameled desk holds
Pixies and Poetry.
Through the mirror of her vanity,
Come Lords and Ladies in to tea,
And Knights fare forth most gallantly.
Only her Cat,
Walking delicately,
Knows his way among the dragons,
The golden chairs,
The silks, the furs, the jeweled stairs,

"BEFORE PROHIBITION," said Congressman Dickstein of New York before the senate committee yesterday, "if you asked a girl to take a drink she would smack you in the face; now, if you haven't one to offer, she will kick you." Which leads us to the impression that the girls down in New York are quite rude. Now, out in Chicago, a lady doesn't kick a gent if he hasn't a drink to offer her. Not at all. She merely draws herself up haughtily and says: "Why, you poor fish, swim around and get some." In Chicago at least a lady is always a lady.

EUROPE seems inclined to postpone the Lausanne reparations conference. Which reminds us of the old story of one boy who said to another, "Gimme the core of your apple." And the other boy, eating vigorously, answered, "There hain't a goin' ter be no core." And so why hold a reparations conference when there hain't a goin' to be no reparations?

THEY'RE FUSSING yet over "Washington Crossing the Delaware." Personally, we think the picture is a chromo and that George would have had more sense than to stand up in the boat, but at that the picture is better than one we would make today. If the newspaper photogs were suddenly told by the city editor that Washington and his army were about to cross the Delaware and to jump over there and get a picture they would not only have George standing up in the boat but they would have him pointing. All the soldiers in the boat would also be pointing instead of pulling oars and poking away the ice. And if our modern artists painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware" it would look like a cucumber salad calling to its young or a half bushel of watch springs scattered all over the place mixed with geraniums and a half dozen eyes and ears. Maybe after all we'd better hang on to the old picture a while longer.

SENATOR BORAH introduced a bill yesterday to cut all government salaries of over five thousand dollars a year. It would be more to the point if the senator introduced a bill reducing the size of the immense standing army of bureaucrats in Washington. It would be a struggle not to have the government tell us how to sew ruffles on Junior's rompers, but we are in the midst of something of an emergency and we would be brave and try to stand it. Anyhow, Junior's wearing his papa's old pants now, trimmed down with a butcher knife to fit him, and he doesn't care a whoop about rompers.

CHARLEY DAWES has been shifted from the chairmanship of the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference because he is needed for the more important job of presidenting over the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation. Whenever the country needs a man for a tremendous piece of work they always pick out Charley Dawes. There is no bigger piece of work in the U. S. A. than the presidency of our great republic, so why not Charley Dawes—stop, general, do not hurl that damn at us or shake that upside down pipe in our face; we will be heard—why not Charley Dawes for President? Whereupon we will run briskly ere we are struck both by the damn and the upside down pipe at one and the same time.

MINUTIÆ.

Oh, precious little moments
Of laughter or of tears
That spangle bright with beauty
The tenebrific years.

Those that we remember
And those we can't forget
Illuminate the pattern
Of the years that linger yet.

Great crises pass, and passing
Go down to dust again,
But still our ego clutches
A love-kiss in the rain!

CAL COOLIDGE in this month's American magazine shakes a reproving finger at money hoarders and says, "Tck, tck, tck!" Well, Cal, so far as we're concerned, all we can say is, thank you for the compliment.

FAT BABIES.

"OUR baby weighed over ten pounds when he was born!" This boast was heard frequently a generation ago and one occasionally hears it now. People still brag about big watermelons, big hogs, or anything else they can find to swagger about. We have not become less boastful, nor have our daddies changed their psychology. If we are just as much the braggart as ever, why is it that we no longer brag about the biggest baby? Is it because babies are smaller and the exaggerating capacities of daddies are not quite equal to the extra demand? There is no reason for thinking the average baby is smaller at birth. It is necessary to look elsewhere for the reason.

The word has gone out that a big baby is nothing to brag about. Dr. W. F. Christie says whenever a baby weighs more than 10 pounds at birth he should be carefully studied for evidence of abnormality. The fact that the baby is big may be because the mother has run over too long. That is a misfortune, and nothing to boast of. Or it may be, and usually is, that there is something slightly wrong with the baby. At least the question is raised.

There is even less reason for boasting about overfat babies of 6 or 12 months of age, and of fat children older than babyhood. The baby six months old with fat, round cheeks, a double chin, creases in the neck, arms, and legs, and mottled skin is to be pitied rather than boasted of.

He is liable to get sick easily, to have bowel derangement, and to catch cold readily. If he gets sick the illness is likely to go hard with him. But his misfortunes are not limited to the hazards of illness. The fact that he is too fat may be due to his being out of thyroid or pituitary balance, or it may be that he is getting more food than is good for him, or that his food is too rich. Of the overfat children of different ages, one-half are too fat because they eat too much and exercise too little. One-quarter are too fat because they have a thyroid deficiency, and the other one-fourth are that way because of some other abnormality. In this last group belong those who are too fat because their pituitary glands are wrong. The children who are fat because of thyroid trouble are likely to be sleepy in school and slow mentally as well as physically.

The pituitary fats are liable to have rolls of fat around the hips and in the lower abdominal wall. One can sometimes guess which type of trouble the fatness indicates by the shape of the body and legs, and the location in which the excess fat is laid down. The pituitary fat children are likely to be quick mentally.

While we do not know much about obesity in babyhood and childhood, we do know that it is not a matter to be bragged about.

MARRIAGE OF COUSINS.

Doubtful writes:

1. I am going to marry my first cousin. Is there any reason for believing that children born to us would be abnormal mentally or physically?

2. A doctor claimed that I had tuberculosis of the right lung. The symptoms were preceded by an attack of pleurisy and were: Intermittent pain just below right shoulder blade; slight afternoon temperature—99 to 99.4. There was no loss of weight or cough. I have been troubled with slight attacks of rheumatism. Could the above symptoms be rheumatic? X-ray does not show any tubercular lesions.

REPLY.

1. You are not true to your name if you are to be judged by your opening statement. Children of first cousin marriages are normal if the parents are free from inheritable diseases and defects—physical, mental, and personality.

2. They could.

PSYLLIUM SEEDS.

J. M. T. writes: In what way are psyllium seed and agar-agar helpful to the human system?

REPLY.

TRAINING IS NEEDED.

Reader writes: When I was a child I became tongue tied, and of late I have tried my utmost to overcome it but haven't been successful. This embarrasses me very much. I have been told that a slight operation on the tongue would cure me.

REPLY.

If the small band under your tongue is too short there is no reason why you should not have it cut if you want to. The operation is a simple one. However, the chances are strong that the operation would not help your speech.

Probably your speech trouble is lisping. Lisping is due to improper use of the lips and tongue. It is cured by training in the use of the lips and tongue in the production of words.

RECKLESSNESS OR NEGLIGENCE?

Chicago, Jan. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A has an automobile accident with B. A gets a judgment of $200 against B. B is not worth $400 in assets. Can A have B kept in jail by paying his board? N. D. D.

Depends on whether the judgment is based upon a finding that the defendant was guilty of recklessness going beyond ordinary negligence. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—1. Mr. and Mrs. A come for a visit from England to America. A child is born to them while here. Is the child an American citizen, or does it belong to the parents' country? 2. Mr. and Mrs. B, citizens of England, go to Germany, take a German liner to America, and a child is born on the liner in midocean. Which is his country—England or America? C. K.

1. A child born in the United States of foreign parents may claim citizenship under the fourteenth amendment to the constitution.

2. A child born of English parents while on a German liner en route to the United States would have no claim whatever of American citizenship.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director,
United States Department of Labor.

SHOULD HAVE NOTICE.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My wife left me several years ago and went to another state. I have not heard from her since. Could she get a divorce without my knowing anything about it? 2. Is it possible to write to that state and find out? To whom would I have to write for such information? J. F. W.

1. Most state laws authorize serving a nonresident by publication and mailing. Obviously such notice might fail to come to your attention. But if the failure was due to the filing of a false affidavit this would invalidate the divorce.

2. You might try writing to the clerk of the court of divorce jurisdiction where the complainant has resided, but the failure to get any word as to a divorce would not be a basis for assuming that there has been none. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 31.—Morgan, Young, Altemus & Co., one of Philadelphia's most extensive dry goods houses, suspended with liabilities of $600,000. From all parts of the country come reports of thousands of operators in manufacturing establishments being out of employment.

New York, Nov. 1.—The most astounding rumor of the day was that H. B. Claflin & Co., one of the greatest firms of dry goods dealers on the continent, was embarrassed and unless it received at once a large amount of money would be compelled to suspend. Horace B. Claflin met several bank presidents and stated the position of his house and its needs. Nothing definite can be learned of what action was taken.

Austin, Tex., March 31.—A detachment of Coxey's army, 450 strong, reached here on a special train from Sierra Blanca, under command of Gen. Lewis Frye. It will go by train to St. Louis and join the main "army" now in East Palestine, O., on its way to Washington.

Jan. 2.—The unemployed. Many of the manufacturing establishments which shut down during the last two months have resumed operations or are getting ready to do so early this year. This must not be taken as indicating the speedy return of the intense industrial activity which has characterized the last few years. The larger cities are crowded with men who would like work but cannot get it.

Chicago, March 30.—Except in a few instances of specific industries, the last week has accomplished little to improve sentiment, much less actual conditions, in the middle west.

1921.

Omaha, Neb., March 22.—An additional cut in the shop forces employed by the Union Pacific was announced.

JANUARY 20, 1902.

MANILA.—An important capture was made in Laguna province, Luzon, when eight men of the Eighth infantry captured a woman insurgent general named Aqueda Kahabagan. She recently commanded an insurgent force of 800 men, 300 of whom carried rifles, while 500 were armed with bolos. For six years she has been leading insurgent bands against the Spaniards and the Americans.

BOSTON.—John L. Sullivan, ex-champion pugilist, played Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Chelsea with so much force and realism that Uncle Tom, swathed in arnica and cotton, was carried from the Academy of Music and put to bed in a hotel, suffering from a whipping as severe as any victim of the old champion ever received in the ring. Sullivan never could "fake" in the prize ring, and there was no "fake" about his performance as Legree.

GRAAFREINET. — Commandant Scheepers, Boer commandant, who was captured last October while wounded, and who, after trial by court martial, was sentenced to death, was executed yesterday. Lord Kitchener confirmed the death sentence passed upon Scheepers.

LEGISLATIVE TERRORISM.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 13.—I have read THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for about thirty years, and its columns have more or less reflected my political opinions during that time, but I take exception to the term "legislative terrorism" appearing in your editorial of Jan. 13. I am quite sure that you have not acquired the full meaning of Wisconsin politics.

In the first place, the majority of the citizens of Wisconsin, whether right or wrong, are in favor of Gov. Philip La Follette's relief program. Second, from an ecomonical and social standpoint the tax legislation advocated by him is proper and just, and ultimately will prevail in Wisconsin. Third, you cannot expect a return of prosperity unless you furnish people in the pursuits of agriculture and labor with purchasing power. Fourth, you cannot have mass production without mass consumption. Fifth, I think that you can well take account of your economic, political and social affairs in the state of Illinois without unduly criticizing the same affairs in the state of Wisconsin.

Under the La Follette régime for the last thirty years, I say without reservation that the state of Wisconsin can probably hold herself high in the honor of the forty-eight states, so far as fulfilling her governmental duties to her citizens.

I dislike and deplore your criticism of Gov. Philip La Follette. However, I have the satisfaction that the circulation of your paper makes him a more national figure than heretofore. Remember this: That the common people of Wisconsin [not the autocrats or the capitalists] stand stanchly back of Gov. La Follette and Senator Robert M. La Follette notwithstanding your constant and exaggerated antagonism to both of them.

To me, a great Republican and Hamiltonian newspaper which criticizes the social progress of a commonwealth like Wisconsin seems unfair and unjust.

HARRY L. LOWE.

THE FORCES OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Your editorial, "Justice Triumphant," deals with only an incident, the "execution" of Rosenberg for the "crime" of saving the public money on clothes cleaning, whereas it should apply to practically everything from the cradle to the grave. The "forces of righteousness" assure us that for the baby's milk we should pay about three times what the poor farmer gets for producing it; they want us to pay 10 cents a pound for bread made from 37 cents a bushel wheat; they would endanger us with bombs if we patronize our neighborhood theater unless they dictate how it shall be managed; they forbid a government band to play for an event to raise funds for the poor; and now they prevent us, when our neighbor dies, to follow his remains to the grave in the old flivver which has been a source of enjoyment to neighbor and us. SYDNEY FRANKLIN.

A FEDERAL BLUE SKY LAW.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—A law should be made providing that no obligations of a foreign government shall be offered for sale or sold within the jurisdiction of the United States unless favorably passed upon by the United States bureau of commerce or other appropriate department of the government; in other words, a federal blue sky law.

MORNING AND EVENING STARS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Will you kindly explain to one of your dumb readers how the planet Jupiter can be a morning star and at the same time an evening star, as published in today's issue, as well as the issues of the 9th, 8th, 7th, etc.?

THOMAS D. HUGHES.

CUTTING TEACHERS' PAY.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—After compelling Chicago school teachers to live for months without pay [or, rather, try to live], the gigantic minds of the board of education, as if in recognition of their heroic service, proceed to take an entire month's salary from their yearly compensation. The ten holidays which they are compelled to take are to be without pay and the school year is to be shortened 9 days. A month consists of 20 days, so these two items mean the deduction of practically a month's salary.

I believe it is customary in stores and offices to give one week vacation after 6 months' service and two weeks after one year's service. Many of the teachers have worked for ten years or more and under the new schedule will get not even one day off with pay! Also if they are ill or injured full pay is deducted. So these courageous citizens [would to God there were more of them!] are now practically on a factory piece work basis—no work, no pay—comparable to the unskilled factory worker.

The summer schools and night schools which have made it possible to get through the year in the past are to be abandoned. All for what? So Chicago may have two national conventions and a World's Fair? Chicago's "I Will" should be "I Quit!" M. E. TABARY.

THE LAST LAUGH.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Now that Mussolini, the smartest man in Europe, has made it unanimous, it behooves us misguided Americans to absorb the debts which we had expected the European governments to meet. I have an idea. Let Mr. President Hoover appoint a commission [one more can make no difference] to parcel out said European debts, about to be repudiated, among those great and loyal Americans who were so anxious back in 1914, 1915 and 1916 to have America rescue suffering humanity from the Huns. They started it, now let them finish the second "noble experiment" by paying for it even if it hurts.

I shall be glad to aid the commission by giving it a list of those acquaintances who, back in 1916, classed me as pro-German and a traitor to the United States when I dared to suggest that we follow that first American's [George Washington] advice in his seditious warning not to enter any foreign entanglements and mind our own business.

H. E. WALTERS.

IT ISN'T.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Is it possible that our always model and literary well behaved TRIBUNE, before an avalanche of political, criminal, and international matters, forgets its grammar?

Under your topic, "Famous G. A. R. Post Holds a One Man Meeting," you say that the late Charles Rector, the noted restaurateur, was also a member of the post, etc.

I do not mind a typographical error now and then, but—to grammatical error I shall give no countenance. I am sorry, MR. TRIBUNE, but I will grade your paper today below a passing mark. Please do better next time.

HIS GAS BILL.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—In comparing my gas bills payable in January for the years 1931 and 1932 I find the meter reading identical, but my bill for 1932 is 91 cents more than the bill for the same amount of gas in 1931. And still the gas company hopes to interest us in using gas for home heating. Not on that basis—not for me, at least. What group of public servants, if any, passed this new B. t. u. method of charge?

WOMEN ORGANIZE FOR PROTECTION AGAINST CANCER

Club Establishes "Health Memberships" at $15.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The Woman's City club has instituted a system of "health memberships," designed to aid in the prevention of cancer and other diseases which exact a huge death toll among women annually.

To the more than 1,400 members of the club the health membership is available at $15 a year. The memberships entitle them to an annual physical examination by physicians at the Women and Children's hospital, with more frequent examinations if required. They also are allowed two weeks' hospitalization annually without further cost, according to the club's contract with the hospital. This hospitalization includes child birth cases.

A Step Forward, Says President.

"We feel that this is the most progressive step that has been made by any woman's club in the matter of safeguarding health," said Mrs. Murry Nelson, president. "Medical authorities agree that it is only by periodic examinations that many diseases may be detected in their incipient stages. It has been determined that cancer of many organs can be largely prevented by annual examinations.

"The Woman's City club was the first Chicago organization to have an informative address on the increase of cancer and on its treatment. That was in 1929, by Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood of Johns Hopkins hospital.

"The Women and Children's hospital is run solely by women, with only women physicians on its staff."

First Memberships Sold.

The first members of the club to purchase health memberships and avail themselves of the examination provided were Dr. Bertha Van Hoosen, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Mark P. Mears, and Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley. Members of the health membership committee include Mrs. Nelson, Dr. Margaret H. Austin, Mrs. L. R. Blackman, Mrs. Percy Eckhart, Mrs. Fribley, Mrs. C. L. Hagerman, Mrs. John MacMahon, Miss Mary E. Murphy, Miss Helen Myrick, and Dr. Van Hoosen.

Mrs. Nelson pointed out that the war department has urged the periodic physical examination of the wives of army officers and enlisted men.

More than 15,000 women in the United States died of cancer of the cervix in 1930, according to government records.

CATCH WHALE BIG ENOUGH TO EAT MAN AT ONE GULP

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A 4,000 pound whale-shark, rare deep sea fish which many scientists say is the only kind that could have swallowed Jonah, has been harpooned and towed to dock here.

The big fish was caught in the gulf stream off Miami by a fishing party headed by Capt. Tommy Gifford. Fishermen said they knew of but three recorded catches of whale-shark in south Florida waters.

None were mounted, but this one will be, its captors said, at a cost of $2,000. The bureau of fisheries at Washington and American Museum of Natural History at New York were notified of the catch brought in yesterday.

Scientifically, the fish is known as rhinodon-typicus. It has a slate gray body with white spots and authorities say it is the only variety with a mouth big enough to swallow a man at one gulp.

Woman, Childhood Friend of Rockefeller, Dies at 99

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Susan J. Life, 99, formerly president of the Rye Country Day school and a childhood companion of John D. Rockefeller Sr., whom she used to assist with his lessons when they were schoolmates at the district school three miles east of Owego, N. Y., died today at her home in Cocoanut Grove, Fla. Mrs. Life was the widow of the Rev. William J. Life. Her friendship with Mr. Rockefeller began when she was 16 and he 11, and continued to her death. On Mr. Rockefeller's frequent visits to the scenes of his childhood he seldom failed to visit Mrs. Life at her Owego home.

$807,456 to Receiver.

The First National bank yesterday turned over securities totaling $807,456 to the receiver of the defunct Sheridan Trust and Savings bank to be liquidated for the benefit of depositors in the court of Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. The First National bank had been holding them as security for a loan made by the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank. It was stipulated that the First National bank should have a first lien of $397,390 on the securities. This $397,390 is the balance of a $1,713,000 loan.

During the day Judge Feinberg continued his search for assets of the Lake View State bank. Representatives of the Western Iron Construction company turned over $128,000 in bonds on the Knights of Pythias building at 3737 South State street against an indebtedness of $32,000.

Guy L. Bush, receiver for the Rochelle Trust and Savings bank of Rochelle assigned half of his receivers' fees and an equity in his home at Downers Grove against a note of $4,000.

Post Bond for Bain.

Attorneys for John Bain, head of a chain of 12 closed banks, posted property schedules of $44,000 to cover the $15,000 bond required on charges of conspiracy against the bankers. The move was taken as a precautionary measure to prevent Bain being taken into custody while he is convalescing at his home.

The Joliet National bank closed yesterday. The bank has deposits of $5,600,000. Directors said the action was taken to conserve assets and protect depositors and stockholders. The directors said the bank has sufficient securities to pay off depositors, estimating the assets would exceed the money owed by $1,600,000.

There were no marks of violence on the body, and it is believed that the elderly woman wandered to the spot and died of exhaustion and exposure.

RISE IN DEATHS, FALL IN BIRTHS, SHOWN IN 1931

Statistics Made Public by Bundesen.

An increased death rate and infant mortality rate and a sharp drop in the birth rate in Chicago during 1931 were disclosed yesterday when President Bundesen of the board of health made public the vital statistics compiled by his office.

Birth and death rates are based on the ratio of births and deaths to each 1,000 population. The infant mortality rate is the number of deaths of children under one year of age per 1,000 births. The figures for 1931 and 1930 follow:

Deaths, all causes	36,075	35,315
Death rate per 1,000	10.43	10.40
Births	52,877	58,083
Birth rate per 1,000	15.3	17.1
Infant deaths	2,086	3,102
Infant deaths per 1,000 births	56.5	53.44

Sociologist Blames Slump.

The increased infant mortality rate, and the decline in the birth rate probably are both indications of the severity of the present business depression, according to Dr. William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago. Dr. Ogburn is one of the leading social statisticians in the country, and several years ago made one of the first studies of the relation of business conditions to vital statistics, crime, and other social factors.

Studies of Mortality Rate.

In general, Prof. Ogburn said, the infant mortality rate rises in a period of prosperity, and falls during a financial depression. This was the case in a dozen depressions studied, with the single exception of the prolonged hard times of the early 70's.

Since the present depression is the most severe in statistical history, he said, the higher infant mortality may be due to lack of nutrition and medical care for infants.

Birth control, especially among the more prosperous classes, is obviously a factor in the birth rate decline, he said. Another important factor is the sharp decrease in the number of marriages.

RAPIST BEATS UP GIRL, TOSSES HER IN CLOSET, ROBS CLEVELAND HOME

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The gunman who beat and raped a 16 year old girl Sunday night made his second appearance of the week late today when he invaded a Cleveland Heights home, menaced a maid with a gun, slugged her and looted the house.

Miss Helen Porter, 21, a maid in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Grossner, was the latest victim of the gunman terrorist. The girl, battered and bruised, told detectives the man came to the house and posed as a friend of her employer.

"When I started to scream he struck me and knocked me down," Miss Porter said. "We fought in the room and then he struck me on the head and threw me in a closet. It must have been more than 30 minutes before I regained consciousness."

Today was the first time since the "reign of terror" caused by 91 assaults and robberies on women started that an attack has been staged in the daytime.

Rome Stephenson Declines Tax Advisory Board Job

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Rome C. Stephenson, former president of the American Bankers' association, tonight announced he has declined appointment to serve on a state committee named last week to draft a tax reform bill to be placed before a proposed special session of the Indiana legislature. Stephenson refused to make public his reasons for declining.

SUPREME COURT RULES AGAINST D. C. STEPHENSON

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The Indiana Supreme court today voted three to two to uphold the conviction of D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon and Hoosier political czar, now serving a life sentence in Indiana state prison for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, Indianapolis woman.

D. C. STEPHENSON.

Only two legal recourses remain for Stephenson. He still has before the Supreme court a petition for a writ of error coram nobis.

He claims he has found new evidence since his trial in Circuit court at Noblesville. He also declares he has evidence not divulged at Noblesville because of threats against him. If the petition is granted Stephenson automatically will get a new trial.

Stephenson also intends, if necessary, to push his petition for a writ of habeas corpus to the United States Supreme court. A petition for a habeas corpus writ now pending in La Porte Circuit court is being held up by a temporary stay granted by the Indiana Supreme court. This stay has not been made permanent and was not affected by today's decision.

Chief Justice Julius C. Travis, La Porte, and Justice Curtis Roll, Kokomo, and David Myers, Greensburg, concurred in the majority opinion, which said Stephenson, by his acts, had driven the girl to take poison and that therefore he was responsible for her death.

Justices Clarence R. Martin, Indianapolis, and Walter E. Treanor, Bloomington, dissented.

U. S. AUTO DEATH RATE PER CAPITA SHOWS DECLINE

First Drop in History Is Made in 1931.

For the first time in the history of the automobile, the per capita death rate in motor accidents declined during 1931 in the United States, a survey by the National Safety council disclosed yesterday.

While the decline was slight, safety authorities hailed it as a victory in the fight against the automobile toll, which has risen steadily since the horseless carriage days. While claiming some credit for their campaign of safety education, they said that the decreased death rate was due largely, in all probability, to the depression. Fewer cars on the highways have meant fewer accidents.

Estimate Deaths at 33,000.

Statistics for the year have not been completed, but little variation from the present estimate is expected. It is based on the mortality returns, mostly for eleven months, from 36 states with a total population of 104,000,000.

There were an estimated 33,000 deaths in motor accidents in 1931 as compared with 32,750 in 1930. When this is adjusted for the increase in population, however, the motor death rate per 100,000 population becomes 26.4 in 1931 as compared with 26.6 in 1930. The latter figure was an all time high for per capita fatalities.

Fewer Cars Registered.

A decrease in automobile license registrations, which amounted to 2.6 per cent for passenger cars during the last year, was reflected in a higher proportion of deaths in ratio to the total number of automobiles registered. Deaths per 100,000 cars registered were 127.2 in 1931 and 123.5 in 1930.

In proportion to the mileage of vehicles in use, as reflected in gasoline sales, the mortality rate decreased. Deaths per 10,000,000 gallons of gasoline consumed fell from 20.8 in 1930 to 20.3 in 1931. Another factor for a lower death rate, for which the safety council gives the depression credit, is the increased ratio of commercial vehicles in use during 1931, as compared with the privately owned and driven machines. Truck registrations increased three-tenths of 1 per cent during the year, as compared with the 2.6 decrease in passenger car registrations. The professional drivers of these commercial vehicles are in general more careful and responsible for fewer accidents, than private drivers, according to the council.

Show Rise of Auto Toll.

1917	10,235	1930	32,750
1922	15,326	1931	33,000
1927	25,796

"Aside from the influence of the depression," the safety council bulletin states, "there was a noticeable trend toward safer traffic during the final quarter of the year, especially in the rural districts.

FIFTH VICTIM OF KENTUCKY FEUD GUN BATTLE DIES

London, Ky., Jan. 19.—(AP)—"Little Henry" Johnson, 21, died tonight at a hospital, bringing to five the death toll of the feud shooting in the churchyard at New Salem Saturday.

The man who died tonight was a cousin of "Big Henry" and Earl Johnson, brothers who met death in the gun battle in which Homer and Forrest Crook, brothers, and neighbors of the Johnsons, also were slain.

Ruby, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Will Settles, near Connersville, Ind., said she and Willie Johnson had been principals in a mock wedding which she thought was real.

CAPTAIN SAVES WOMAN FROM YEAR IN JAIL

The intervention of Police Capt. John Ryan, who was the complainant in the case, saved Mrs. Tillie Becker Schwartz, 29 years old, from a year in jail and a fine of $200, the sentence imposed by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Jury court yesterday. Mrs. Schwartz was found guilty of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident by a jury on Monday.

When the sentence was pronounced, Mrs. Schwartz wilted. Capt. Ryan moved forward. "O, no," he protested, "can't you give her probation? I don't want to be hard on her." "Do you apologize to Capt. Ryan?" Judge Green asked, turning to the young woman. Mrs. Schwartz was speechless. Judge Green suspended the fine and placed Mrs. Schwartz on probation for six months.

Capt. Ryan charged during the trial that Mrs. Schwartz, who lives at 5708 Kenmore avenue, drove her automobile against his machine at Bryn Mawr avenue and Broadway on Nov. 22 and sped away. Capt. Ryan said that his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Casey, was injured in the accident. He gave chase and finally seized Mrs. Schwartz, who he testified had been drinking.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

British Hanging Breaks Nerve of Novel's Hero

Prison Governor Breaks Under Later Strain.

"One Came Out," by Margaret Wilson [Harpers]. Published today.

MARGARET WILSON, whose first novel, "The Able McLaughlins," won the Pulitzer prize for 1924, has written in her third novel, "One Came Out," a powerful study of human emotion under great and critical stress.

MARGARET WILSON.

At the opening of the story the governor of an English prison is faced with the horrible task of witnessing the hanging of a man of whose guilt he is not sure. The governor, sensitive, noble, and well loved by the prisoners, has never before found it necessary to officiate at a hanging. The changing tide of the inmates' attitude toward him, from affection and respect to a bitter, boiling resentment, the shack in which the instrument for the killing is placed next to the kitchen of his home and in the direct line of his vision, unavoidable and sinister; the fear and growing coldness of his deeply loved wife toward him; the small daily occupations and thoughts that invariably bring up the vision of the deed to be performed, harrying him and tearing at the fabric of his nerves; all these things slowly and terribly, like a slow working poison, eat away his spirit and his mental poise until he becomes a symbol of shivering, twitching cowardice and self-contempt.

One night, unable to stand the strain any longer, he finds himself once more. He breaks down completely for a moment and when he recovers he is a new man, his vision is again steady and clear, and the courage to do as his heart commands floods over him. What this courage leads him to do the reader must find out for himself in the absorbing pages of this book.

"One Came Out" seems to be a brilliant psychological study. At least the reader is convinced that every move the governor makes, every torture he suffers are justified and true psychologically, that there is no discoverable inconsistency in the entire story. The reactions Andy has to doorbells, to chance conversations on the street, to newspapers flaunted in his face, to the beauty of a full moon which he knows the condemned man never will again see, to his wife's harmless remarks about their son who respects him, to the uncontrollable visions that emerge from his diseased, oversensitized imagination all seem painfully vivid and convincing to the reader.

The less complete characterizations of Andy's wife, who, however, furnishes the completion of thoughts and fears that are left incomplete in Andy's mind, and serves as a sort of counterpoint to the theme of Andy's terror. The chaplain, the doctor and others under the direct psychological influence of the impending "murder" are competently handled and bring out more effectively, through the device of juxtaposition of emotions and thoughts, the inner conflict of the main character.

Throughout the first two-thirds of "One Came Out," the reader feels the power of an artistically controlled tension. The tension is not too taxing, however, because the author is a skilled technician and knows the artistic value of relief. It is never comic relief, but rather the sort of simple release that results from detailed descriptions of prison life, of characters who only indirectly impinge on the action, of incidents that apparently do not increase the suspense. The tenseness of the atmosphere does not cancel itself out from overemphasis. Perhaps one of the most effective devices the author employs in the gaining of tension is the use of the stream of consciousness. Though she does not handle this method with any startling originality, nevertheless, quietly and carefully and unobtrusively she underlines the externalities of every day existence in this manner.

The important crisis in the story, the new courage of the governor is foreshadowed subtly. Upon the reader's belief in this change depends the technical success of the entire story. And the reader believes. The final third of the book is like a stream of light coming from darkness. Many details of the earlier tension remain to be cleared up, so that the reader's interest is held until the end. Even if the author had not depended upon the effectiveness of the artistic device of continued tension the reader's excitement would have been maintained because of his deep interest in the characters as real people.

South Recalls 125th Birthday of Gen. R. E. Lee

Loan Lifts Mortgage on Old Family Home.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The new south and the old south were one today as Robert Edward Lee, the great chieftain of the confederacy, was honored throughout the territory once under the stars and bars.

Virginia, on whose battlefields Lee waged campaigns which stand as monuments of military strategy, and for whom he labored in peace as in war, took the lead in the observance of the 125th anniversary of her famous son. But from the plains of Texas to the capitol at Washington the day was observed by descendants of those who followed Lee in the campaigns from Bull Run to Appomattox.

It was announced during the day that the $115,000 mortgage on "Stratford," ancestral home of the Lee family has been paid off through a loan from an unnamed person. The loan was made to the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation without interest or time limit for the specific purpose of liquidating the mortgage.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy have pledged $50,000, leaving a balance of $65,000 to be raised by the various states under the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

It was three years ago that the purchase of Stratford was made—the total price for the old mansion being fixed at $240,000. The deed conveying the property to the foundation was signed on July 19, 1929, in the room in which Richard Henry Lee and Robert E. Lee were born. The estate contains 1,100 acres and fronts on the Potomac river for about two miles. It is about 90 miles below Mount Vernon.

The old hall of the Virginia house of delegates at Richmond, the confederacy's capital, was the scene today of ceremonies dedicating a full length bronze statue of Gen. Lee. Robert E. Lee IV., great-grandson of the general, was named to unveil the bronze likeness which stands on the exact spot where Gen. Lee stood when he arose to accept the command of the armed forces of Virginia on April 23, 1861.

The old hall dates back to 1780. Former governors, members of the Supreme court, and Maj. Giles B. Cook, chaplain on the staff of Gen. Lee, were guests of honor today. So also were nine direct descendants of the general. R. Gray Williams of Winchester was the orator of the day.

Gen. Lee was honored at Lexington, Va., in the annual founders' day exercises at Washington and Lee university. Frederick Wilhelm von Prittwitz und Gaffron, German ambassador to the United States, was the speaker.

The Rev. H. L. Cawthorne, senior priest of the Episcopal church in Chicago, known as the "bicycling parson," last night announced that he was retiring as rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, 743 South Western avenue. He is 70 years old.

The Rev. Mr. Cawthorne became rector of St. Luke's 34 years ago. At the time there was a "For Sale" sign on the church and the appointment was considered temporary as the bishop had decided to sell the church property to satisfy a $6,000 debt. But the new rector purchased a bicycle and by pedaling about his parish day and night gathered enough funds to pay off the mortgage.

In announcing his retirement last night at the annual parish meeting, the Rev. Mr. Cawthorne reminisced about his early days on Western avenue when the street was unpaved and nothing but a muddy road.

"I hope that St. Luke's will never disappear because of the changing times," he told his parishioners. "Please do not let this old parish succumb."

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Uncle Sam as Radio Magnate Under Attack

Just More Waste, Says Trade Leader.

Federal control for radio broadcasting and the orgy of government spending that is reflected in higher taxes were attacked before a meeting of radio jobbers and retailers from all parts of the country at the Congress hotel yesterday. The meeting was held in connection with the tenth annual Chicago Radio Electrical show, under way at the Coliseum, 1600 South Wabash avenue, this week.

Paul Klugh, vice president of the Zenith Radio corporation, declared that if radio broadcasting in the United States is put under the type of government control that is exercised in Great Britain, the programs will become flat and dull, as are the programs in England. He added that any attempt to tax radio owners would necessitate an enormous, costly and wasteful federal bureau.

L. B. Manning, vice president of the Cord corporation, declared that the curbing of the orgy of government spending is of even greater importance than the selling of automobiles and radios during 1932. "Unless citizens individually and collectively put their weight against governmental squandering, not only will markets be seriously affected, but the stability of the country jeopardized," Manning said. Both talks were applauded enthusiastically.

The question of federal control for radio broadcasting was brought up by Mr. Klugh, he said, in answer to Senator Couzens' request for a congressional inquiry into "the growing dissatisfaction with the present use of radio facilities for commercial advertising." The senator asked for an investigation of "the feasibility of government ownership and operation of broadcasting facilities," Mr. Klugh said.

"We have 18,000,000 radio sets in operation in the United States," he said. "Imagine the bureau, its expense and its maintenance throughout the length and breadth of the land, necessary to collect a tax on radios and the difficulties resulting in the collection of such a tax."

Powell Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Radio corporation of Cincinnati, urged the jobbers and retailers to sell nationally advertised merchandise. "The trade name has come to mean more than it has in the past in the sale of radios," he said. "We must advertise in the newspapers, and the product will be acceptable to the purchaser."

Chicagoan to Return as Vice President of De Paul University

The Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, C. M., S. T. D., 33 years old, professor of English literature at Kenrick seminary, St. Louis, and head of the department of history at Webster college, Webster Groves, Mo., has been appointed vice president of De Paul university, succeeding the Rev. Thomas C. Powers, C. M., recently transferred to the pastorate of St. Vincent's church, Los Angeles.

THE REV. J. O'CONNELL.

Notification of the appointment came to the university yesterday from the office in St. Louis of the Very Rev. William P. Barr, head of the western province of the Congregation of the Mission.

Eggs Are Cheapest for Many Years, Housewives Told

Several million poultry flocks on American farms are today offering the best means of carrying their owners through a period of deflated farm prices, not only providing ready cash, but supplying food for rural families. And the price index for poultry is still the highest of any major farm product.

These facts were brought out yesterday in the fifth annual fact finding conference of the Institute of American Poultry Industries at the Medinah Athletic club. There leaders in the three billion dollar industry are meeting. The conference ends today.

From the housewives' standpoint, it was shown that fresh eggs of assured quality are now to be had at prices one-third those of two years ago. From the producers' viewpoint, systems for grading and purchasing of quality eggs on a premium basis have become general enough to encourage farmers to feed and select their flocks for higher quality production.

"The industry is making a concerted effort to eliminate bad eggs before they ever start to market," declared W. F. Jackson, president of the institute. "We are trying to develop better methods of grading and care of both eggs and poultry, believing that the housewife looks at the condition and flavor of the egg yolk in deciding on her purchase."

Quakes Broke Jericho Walls, Professor Says

Casts Doubt on Effect of Trumpets.

BY PROF. JOHN GARSTANG.

JERICHO, Palestine, Jan. 19.—I can announce the discovery of the ancient royal tombs of Jericho, virtually intact, with hundreds of funerary offerings in good condition.

In the 15th century B. C. the kings of Jericho, who had Syrian names, were evidently vassals of Egypt and wore the signet of their contemporary Pharaohs. One tomb, dating back to the joint reign of Hatshepsut and Tothmes III., contains 500 vases. Altogether more than 1,000 objects already have been registered.

The latest dated deposit found hitherto has been of the time of Amenhotep III., about 1400 B. C. The earlier tombs and burials date to the time of the Hyksos [shepherd] kings, linking Jericho with the twelfth dynasty of Egypt.

Prof. Garstang, who heads the British archeological expedition, citing the Bible, I. Kings, vi., 1, points out that King Solomon was reputed to have founded his temple 480 years after the Exodus and in the fourth year of his reign. The professor concludes that the fourth year of Solomon's reign was about 967 B. C. That would place the Exodus about 1447 B. C. and the destruction of Jericho about 1407 B. C. Prof. Garstang concludes also from his excavations that the brick walls of Jericho did fall flat in places, but as the result of earth tremors and not from the blowing of the priests' trumpets.

His excavations, he says, indicated that the main defense of Jericho at that time consisted of outer walls six feet thick and a 12 foot inner structure. He found traces of a tremendous fire in the cracked stones, charred timbers and loads of charcoal, and he believes that the outer walls suffered most and fell outward down a slope, while the inner wall was preserved only where it abutted the citadel.

The chief objection raised to the earlier date for the Exodus seems to have been the absence of references to Egypt in the Book of Judges. Except for reminders of Israel's triumphant departure from that country under the leadership of Moses, there virtually are no allusions to Egypt in the Book of Judges or in the two Books of Samuel.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"As Husbands Go," which has come to the Blackstone under the fostering wing of the Theater Guild, although not a product of its rehearsal rooms, is the latest work from a play writing pen that has been busy for twenty-five years, turning out its hit or two every season—observant, plausible, and clean hearted comedies of the American scene and its plain, unpretentious inhabitants. The author is Rachel Crothers of Bloomington, Ill., as well as New York, and her career, viewed in perspective, is a rather impressive achievement.

This diverting piece is characteristic of the Crothers touch; it is a charming and intelligent footnote, gay of mood but thoughtful of purpose, to the manners of the period. Burns Mantle gave it rating among his "ten best" plays of the last year, from the Broadway point of view, and the pontiffs of the Theater Guild, who set the tone for advanced dramatic art, think well enough of it to submit it to Chicago with their intellectual blessing. I regard it as not especially striking or unusual in itself, but as a specimen of light, well considered amusement that adds another neat, effective chapter to the chronicle of our First Lady Dramatist.

Here Miss Crothers deals, in her persuasive and experienced manner, with a subject that is dear to the American heart: European travel and its broadening influence. She sends a pair of whoopee dames of the upper middle class to Paris, and then brings them back to the environs of Dubuque, Ia., where the home fires burn warmly, with their foreign swains trailing after them. The conflict between the American spirit and the magic of the Café de la Paix is intense for a while, but in the end the aliens are repelled. It's a signal victory for the American husband.

This may seem like well worked material, with a certain flavor of the early Booth Tarkington period about it; but Miss Crothers contrives to give it an air of freshness. She does not wave the Star Spangled Banner or cause the eagle of our native wilds to scream in righteous indignation.

She throws away the fortune hunting villainy that used to be standard stuff for intrigues of this sort, and permits the wooers from Paris—one a young English poet, the other a hybrid dandy of the world— to make a creditable appearance when transplanted. She merely points the moral that Dubuque and Paris do not mix, and that old world romance is likely to fade out in an American frame.

The performance is excellent in every rôle. Catharine Doucet's characterization of a bleating and flighty widow is extremely amusing; and Gloria Holden is decorative and pleasantly sentimental as a wife who wants to discard her homespun husband in favor of a Left Bank writer. The husband, a central figure in the picture, is soundly played with midwestern plausibility by Jay Fassett. That able graduate of the Goodman repertory company, Roman Bohnen, appears with crisp skill as a veteran of the boulevards who wants to comfort his declining years with a rich American widow, and Geoffrey Wardwell has his brilliant moments as the yearning British bard.

The comic high light of the play is the scene in which Mr. Wardwell and Mr. Fassett get drunk together after a fishing expedition and merge their woman troubles. As lover and husband of the same woman they fail to quarrel, but strike up a braying duet of mutual he-man admiration.

Doctor Mingles Laugh with Rap at Specialists

Cites Some Operations for Arthritis.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

A little of wit and a great deal of wisdom went into the program yesterday of the sixty-eighth session of the Chicago Dental society at the Stevens hotel. In one of the eight sections, held concurrently, hundreds roared appreciation of the subtle humor Dr. Laurence H. Mayers, Chicago physician, introduced into his discussion of arthritis. In another, hundreds more sat absorbed in the revelations of Dr. B. Holly Broadbent of Cleveland, as to the significance of X-ray studies of the development of a child's face and jaws. Many of the other papers were technical.

Dr. Mayers, whose topic was the close relation that should be maintained between dentists and physicians in the treatment of a patient suffering from arthritis, reported in the course of his paper, on a survey he had made of the comparative state of the teeth of a large number of dentists, of physicians, and of the laity. His findings were that the dentists had taken their own medicine for the care of their teeth, but that they had more teeth left in their mouths.

"According to the questionnaire," he admitted, "you gentlemen can boast of a greater percentage of teeth than my own profession, while the laity is left far behind both. In looking over my records I find I am treating a far greater number of physicians than dentists for arthritis.

"This at least indicates that not only have you good dentistry, but you take your own medicine."

"Many people," he continued, "have been cured of arthritis by having one or more of the affected organs removed. With many others the disease remains persistent as ever after the specialist has taken out the particular organ he is qualified to remove. An arthritis patient is a plentiful supply of raw material for specialistic endeavor.

"Unfortunately, or fortunately, dependent on the viewpoint, each of us has only one gall bladder, one appendix, two tonsils, and thirty-two teeth. This enumeration indicates that you dental gentlemen—I had almost said gentle dentalmen—have a disproportionate sense of responsibility. I often wonder what would happen if we had as many gall bladders as we have teeth. I shudder.

"It often has occurred to me that for each specialist whom we train to do these mechanical procedures [referring generally to tooth extraction] we should train ten men to decide when the work is indicated.

"Is it not obvious from the statistics I have given that protective dentistry is of primary importance in preventive medicine? Arthritis is one of the most common diseases in which the teeth are suspected as the etiologic factor."

Between the ages of twenty and thirty, Dr. Mayers' chart revealed, the dentists' percentage of good teeth was 91.27 per cent, to 89.10 per cent for the doctors and 79.10 per cent for the laity; between thirty and forty, the dentists averaged 89.95 per cent, the doctors 83.41 per cent, and the laity, 76.02 per cent; in the next decade, from forty to fifty, the scores were, dentists, 82.73 per cent, doctors, 79.66 per cent, and the laity, 69.03 per cent perfect.

Dr. Broadbent, who spoke before the radiodontia section of the meeting, told of the advances made in the interpretation of symptoms of diet deficiencies through a study of X-ray photos of the jaws of children. It comprehends the most advanced steps in preventive dentistry.

Four X-ray photos are made of each small patient's jaws—one of each side of the face and two of the frontal portions. These are known as the "bite wing X-ray film," and show only the condition of the crown of the teeth—not the roots. The pictures disclose cavities in their incipiency, when they may be halted by the application of a silver nitrate preparation, where the decay is beginning to show.

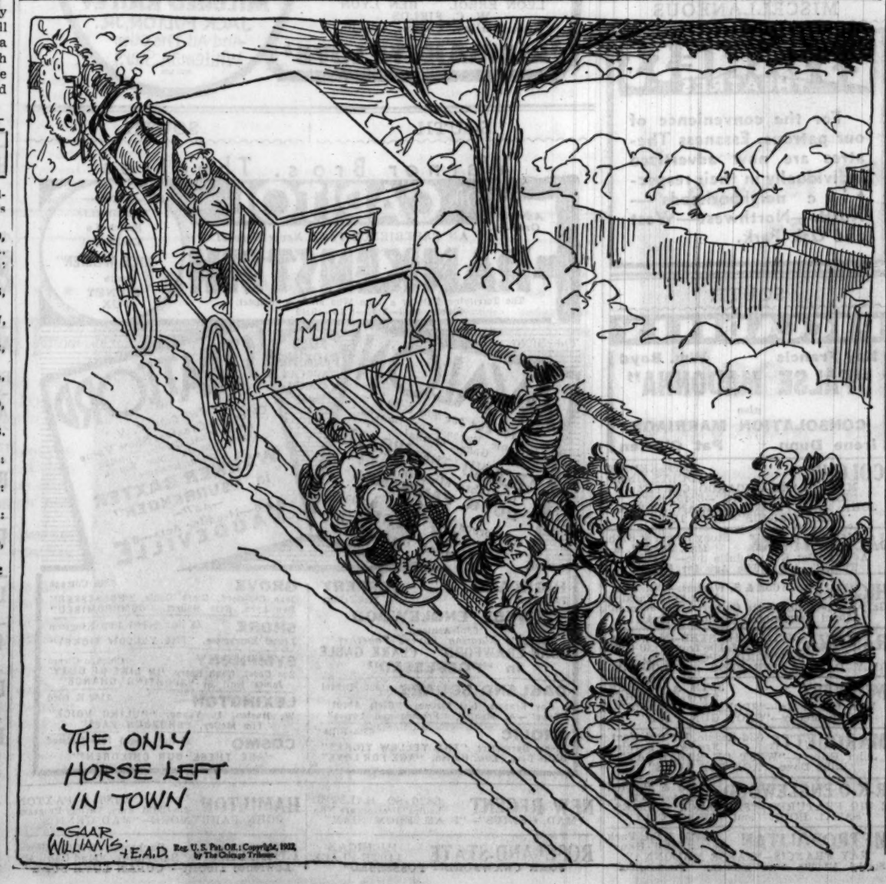
The photos also disclose the growth of the "dental" arch, giving notice if there will not be room for the permanent teeth as they grow in, and showing further what the density of the enamel is. These constitute two salient factors in caring for a child's teeth, because they make it possible in the first place to stretch the jaw at any given point to permit a tooth room to grow, and in the second show definitely whether there is a deficiency in the mineral content of the diet.

The latter is the case when the enamel is shown to be too transparent. This indicates that nature, seeking to replace the inadequate amount of calcium or lime in the body, has been attacking the supply always present in the teeth. When warned in time by the X-ray photos, the dentist recommends a balanced diet for his patient which will restore the proper amount of calcium and thus improve the condition of the entire body, including the teeth.

"Here's another thing," added a colleague of Dr. Broadbent. "Many people make the mistake of supposing that when their children have cavities in their 'six year molars,' so-called because they are the first double teeth and appear at the age of six years, that this is not serious because these are temporary teeth. As a matter of fact these are permanent teeth, and any trouble with them will result in the loss of that tooth for the rest of one's life. They should be cared for promptly when any sign of decay becomes evident."

During the second week of August, 1933, Chicago will entertain about 15,000 dentists in the greatest dental gathering the world has ever known, as a feature of the Century of Progress, Dr. William Allen Pusey asserted last night to a throng that overflowed the ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Never before has any exposition devoted so large a space to a medical exhibit as the world's fair anticipates, he said, and the dental section will occupy a prominent place.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!



LAST YEAR'S WIFE

By ALICE M. WILLIAMSON

SYNOPSIS.

Lorne Carlton and Dick Farrow, popular moving picture stars of Hollywood, sail for Europe on a delayed honeymoon, after a year's happy marriage. Lorne is sad about leaving, as she has an undefinable presentiment of trouble, but Dick is anxious for the adventure. Dick's parents are famous on the stage. Lorne, who fought her way through poverty to the heights, feels that she is not approved by the elder Farrows. Dolores, duchess of Crowninshield, a friend of Dick's parents, has invited the young people to be her guests in London. She is divorced from the duke, but is one of England's most important hostesses. From the first moment of their meeting Dick is a willing captive of the beautiful and charming duchess. Before the visit is ended Lorne realizes that she has lost her husband. She returns home alone. Dick deciding to give up his movie career and remain in London. Back in Hollywood, Lorne obtains a Mexican divorce from Dick, and shortly after Dick and Dolores are married. Two years after their separation Dick's name is almost forgotten by the movie fans, while Lorne has made several successful pictures.

INSTALLMENT XV.

UNPROFESSIONAL TEARS.

As for the second duchess, whose marriage to the duke had reduced the beautiful Spanish princess to the grade of "Dolores, duchess," Lorne chanced upon quite an item of news about her. In fact, she had died in an ambitious attempt to provide the duke with twins, a quite unnecessary effort, as she had already given him an heir. This event was scarcely noticed in the American papers, however, and was of no interest to any one in Hollywood, unless to Lorne. Even she passed it over indifferently at first, then read the item in the Daily Mail for the second time, and brooded over it for some reason which would have been hard to explain to any one else. But then she did not need to explain it, or to make excuses for cutting it out. This she did, marked it with the date of the newspaper, and placed the clipping with others in a desk which stood in her bedroom.

Dick had given her the desk as a birthday present, and she was sentimental enough, fool enough [she told herself] to keep in it all the letters he had written her when they were engaged. They had been seeing each other every day without fail, at that time, but also without fail she had received an adoring note by the first post each morning.

There, among those letters and a bunch of criticisms that praised Dick's screen work to the skies [all unfavorable ones had been contemptuously destroyed], reposed the half column from the Daily Mail. Lorne did not look at it again until one morning as she ate, or rather drank her breakfast in bed [grapefruit juice and black coffee], the girl glanced through her Los Angeles paper.

Lorne suddenly sat straight up when she read this, and all but upset her precious cup of coffee.

It was the presence of the duchess in Los Angeles that gave her the great shock. As for the coming of Dick to California, ever since the day when he had kindly put her on board the Leviathan [in the suite originally engaged for them both] with dozens of apologetic roses and orchids, Lorne had prayed, trusted, believed that "somehow, somewhen" Dick would be drawn back once more to California. The hope had been her beacon, her lode star, her incentive to achieve more and more success in pictures. At last, Eddie Waring thought she was ready for his chef-d'oeuvre, "Prima Donna," and had made it ready for her. There was a song in it, which she was to sing, and had begun to rehearse with all her heart and soul, thinking that in some far off country—England or another—Dick Farrow might see the film, hear the song, and know that it was meant for him. If he did hear it, he couldn't help knowing; and it might be, so Lorne dreamed, that the song would call him to her across six thousand miles.

Of course, that depended entirely on the rightness of her opinion that Dick's passion for Dolores, and Dolores' fancy for him, would die down like a fierce fire of pine cones; in fact, everything in the future depended upon the rightness of that opinion. And the whole line of her conduct since the night when she made Dick confess that "Dolores had got into his blood," had been a gamble on the opinion.

Now, as her eyes took in the news that he was in Los Angeles with "his duchess," Lorne told herself in anguish that the gamble had failed. He had brought his wife to Los Angeles. They were together at the Ambassador, no doubt in the grandest suite, with maids and valets, receiving reporters and giving out publicity.

The pain Lorne suffered was actually physical; this was the way your heart broke. A pity it didn't kill you when you suddenly discovered that all your hopes were vain. The callousness of him! He could have no tender sentiment for the past at all! To flaunt that woman here in Los Angeles! It was not only cruel and unimaginative, it was—common, abominable, just one of those things that you didn't do!

Lorne had sometimes hated Dick Farrow, for a minute or two at a time, for darkening her youth and spoiling the joy of her success. Now she hated him almost viciously, and she wanted her hate to last. He deserved it. O, this was beyond all; this wreck of his character as she had built it up in her mind! She felt that she would like to hurt him, at least half as much as he was hurting her. But she could not see at the moment that there was anything to do. The man's very callousness would make him immune.

The girl pushed away the breakfast tray without ringing for a maid. She bounded out of bed, not even slipping on her mules, and pattered in bare feet across the white bear rug and the wallflower tinted Bokhara which she and Dick had chosen together for this very room; their room.

As she felt the caress of the soft textures, she said to herself: "I won't sleep in this room another night! I've stayed here because I hoped that—that—O, I'm ashamed to remember what I hoped. There is no Dick to wait for any more. I'll sell the house and everything in it."

By the time this decision had flashed through her brain, she had reached the desk which held Dick's letters and the clippings. She wished that there was a fire in the big fireplace, but it didn't matter. She could set a match to the letters and all the silly bits of paper she had treasured. There would be a kind of wild joy in watching them burn.

The letters were in packets, tied with rose colored ribbon. How sentimental! How schoolgirlish! But she had been very young then. She felt a hundred years old now, in comparison. And to think that she had kept these things while Dick had forgotten her. Worse; he must wish to humiliate her by bringing his new wife into her territory, where once he and she had been happy together. "If he can do that, he'll be equal to showing the woman around our studio, with me as one of the sights."

The picture called up by this thought was unbearable. Lorne was not a "crier"; she rarely did what she called "squeezing juice from her face," unless a director required it of her in front of the camera, but now, to her own amazement, tears spouted from her eyes, a fountain of them. She cried so hard that she forgot to burn the clippings and the letters.

It is not wise for moving picture stars to cry, unless for professional purposes. It does undesirable things to their eyelids if it happens too often. The camera is such a cad, it won't keep women's sad secrets. It shoots and tells.

Lorne did not cry for long. She told herself fiercely that this changed, ruined Dick was not worth it.

She was between pictures and had a week's holiday, save for reading over and [literally] learning by heart her tragic rôle of Natascha Barova, in "Prima Donna," and practicing the song which was to be one of the high spots of the film. It was a heartbreaking song; meant to be; and Lorne, studying with the famous Dr. Marafiotti had developed a heartbreaking voice. One of the reasons why Eddie Waring had not wished to put on this picture sooner was because her voice had not been ready to do the song full justice; now it was ready. He did not think that there was another screen actress anywhere, in any country, who could get out of that song the hopeless longing, the resigned despair that Lorne's emotional experience, combined with intensive training under a great teacher, could give the world.

This morning the girl was hardly conscious of what she did; but habit is one of the best nerve doctors. After an hour or two she found that she had bathed and dressed as usual, had even highly polished her nails and taken pains with her hair.

Fearing that friends might be indiscreet enough to call her up and speak of the news in the paper, she drove in a small, closed car to Pasadena, and there did some shopping for things she didn't want. She felt that she would like to remain away all day, and perhaps accept an invitation to dine and dance at Santa Monica with a man whom she had snubbed because of—well, because of Dick. But now there was no Dick, so surely it didn't matter what she did if only she could make herself forget.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Grandfather took 4 year old Patricia to one of the downtown stores just before Christmas to see Santa Claus. All went well until Santa said to her: "Well, little girl, what do you want me to bring you?"

Little Patricia looked at him in amazement and cried: "For heaven's sake, didn't you get my letter?"

Corky, aged 2, evidently had seen only full moons. One night when there was a first quarter moon he cried, "Look, mother, moon broke."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Iced Tea Experiment.

Soon after my marriage, knowing my husband was fond of iced tea, I set about preparing his favorite beverage. I filled a pitcher with cold water and ice cubes and added the tea leaves. Being deeply engrossed in pressing the leaves against the side of the pitcher in order to get the rich brown color, I did not hear my husband come in, but turned around in time to see the expression on his face and hear his shout of laughter.

We had ice water at dinner that evening, and since then I have been sensitive about the tea subject.

Seafarin' Author Hurls a Few Bricks at Working Women

BY DORIS BLAKE.

William McFee, well known author and former seafarin' man, digressing on women for the press, is not complimentary to the modern woman. He calls the so-called successful women—that is, those who have found adequate substitutes for love in a career—"the Vestal Virgins of big business." And he does not like the V. V.'s of B. B. One gathers he likes his women elemental and none too much of that. Anyway, he says that the more elemental a woman is, the more attractive she is to men. Likewise, the more intolerable she is to live with.

But the following statement in Mr. McFee's interview is the one that is going to make woman hit the ceiling and declaim that as an analyist of the sex, he's a swell seafarin' man! "One characteristic of the really modern woman," says he, "is that she likes men who are earning less money than she is." McFee explains this as the modern woman's application of the maternal instinct.

We'd invite Mr. McFee to listen in on some of the modern woman conversations and first hand experience recitals of those who marry men to mother them financially! They may have liked the experience in the beginning, but take it from one who has heard hundreds of complaints, they're soon fed up on the specie.

The common cry of women who have made good in the business way is about the dearth of REAL men in our midst. Where are they, women ask. Where are men "like my father, like my uncle, like men of the older generations?" Personally, I don't think the supply of what women interpret as real men is as low as pictured. My feeling is that weak ones abounded in other days, but women, not being so modern minded, did not resent them with the same outspoken resentment.

I believe, too, that women have been largely responsible, themselves, for the making of this weaker mate by their readier acceptance of home financial responsibility, whether it was taken on in the parental home or in their own. And woman like, or better, human like, their earlier enthusiasms turned to resentment when the self-imposed duty began being taken for granted.

Give Youngsters Place to Put Everything and They Will Be Orderly

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Once in a determined effort to be an efficient housewife, a friend of mine read a whole book on the scientific management of a home. But somehow, she said, the book seemed to be built on the assumption that we all had electric dishwashing machines and manglers and vacuum cleaners and irons; laundry chutes, three bathrooms, playrooms in the cellar, enough dishes to last three meals; that there was no such household item as "picking up"; that our floors were in perfect condition, that mending was a pleasant little pastime that took an hour a week, that we had steam cookers, butler's pantry, oil fuel furnaces, etc.

An almost complete lack of all the equipment mentioned above, a baby with a special capacity to think up interesting and fascinating interruptions to a work schedule, or an inherent incapacity to do things always the same way at the same time every day, kept her from being a model housekeeper. But she told me this: That the price of the book was worth one sentence in it—"There should be a place for everything."

As the babies come and household cares multiply, that sentence becomes increasingly important. It is the easiest, and I sometimes think the only way that some order can be achieved, that they can be taught to be orderly and pick up after themselves, that they can be taught a respect for their own and other people's possessions.

Immaculateness may have to go by the board for a while when the babies are very little, but we can achieve orderliness in varying degrees if we make this one rule of a place to put everything. Children can be insensitive to some dirt and dust, but confusion and disorder can really bother them and keep them as well as ourselves from a feeling of peace and comfort in their home.

SOCIETY NEWS AND FASHIONS OF THE DAY

Mrs. Charles H. Besly's Costs Only 98 Cents.

MRS. CHARLES H. BESLY, one of Hinsdale's most noted hostesses, gave an amusing party the other night in her palatial residence in that attractive west suburb, when she invited fifteen friends to a hard times bridge party. Not only were the guests asked to wear suitable costumes but Mrs. Besly demonstrated—and very successfully, too—that no one need give up entertaining in a simple way because of hard times.

After the bridge game refreshments were served which cost $0.96, and when the hostess told her guests what she had spent, they all decided she was the world's most economical marketer. This ridiculously small sum included everything for the tasty sandwiches and the delicious coffee which Mrs. Besly served. This party started Mrs. Besly's friends on a round of these hard times parties and Mrs. James B. Van Vleck gave another most successful one to which she asked her guests to wear old fashioned costumes and she served oyster stew from a rare old soup tureen which has been in her family for generations.

Contract is the main amusement in Hinsdale this winter, we are told, although the Hinsdale club and the Woman's club are open and both have their usual programs of entertainment for the winter. The Golf club is closed but was opened for a gay New Year's Eve party. Hinsdale residents are greatly interested in a new artistic project which was launched recently, the Hinsdale Arts school, sponsored by Mrs. James Walker and Mrs. Elsworth Keith, and we understand Hinsdalers of all ages are studying drawing, painting, sculpture, weaving, and puppet making at the school. There was a reception and exhibition of the work one day last week which was one of the social events of the winter, we are told.

Mrs. Besly (a daughter of the late G. P. A. Healy, noted portrait painter), who has been prominent in Hinsdale and Chicago for some years, is not planning a trip for this winter, nor is she expecting a visit very soon from her daughter, Mrs. Frank B. Tours (Helen Besly), who with her husband, Commander Tours of the British navy, is living on the island of Malta.

Paul Butler, who lives on the York turnpike outside Hinsdale, has shipped his polo ponies to Santa Barbara and he and Mrs. Butler hope to follow them very soon, although the date for their departure is not set yet. The Robert W. Hamills, who also live in the country just out of Hinsdale, are planning to go to their winter place at Ocean Springs, Miss., early next month, and the Burridge D. Butlers, who have a residence on the Downers Grove turnpike, near Hinsdale, have gone to their winter place just out of Phoenix.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, who formerly lived in Hinsdale, and her oldest son, Stuyvesant Jr., left last week for Phoenix and after a stay there they will go on to California for the rest of the winter.

Mrs. Judah Going Abroad with Miss Chase.

Mrs. Noble B. Judah and Miss Libby Chase are sailing on Friday on the Europa for England where they will have two months of hunting at Melton Mowbray. Unless something happens to make these huntresses change their minds—and they may do that very thing for only last week Mrs. Judah was settled at Middleburg in Virginia for the rest of the winter and Miss Chase was planning to join Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Brooks (Alicia Patterson) in Mexico—they will be in England for the Grand National at Aintree the last of March and see Sea Soldier run, that son of Man o' War that is owned by a syndicate of Chicagoans, including Mr. Judah. Mr. Judah is planning to join his wife before the Grand National and probably some of the other nine owners will try and see the race, too.

The many friends Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter A. Crosley have made in Chicago and on the north shore during the three years he has been in command up at Great Lakes are sorry to learn that the Crosleys are leaving Chicago, but glad their departure will not take place until the end of July for that gives time for lots of farewell parties. Admiral Crosley will be in command of the 3d battleship division of the Pacific fleet and Mrs. Crosley will be wherever the ships are anchored or maneuvering part of the time on the west coast and for about six weeks in the winter at Panama.

Arts Club Tea and Show Draw Fashionable Visitors.

There was a large and fashionable attendance at the Arts club tea yesterday afternoon to open its exhibitions of paintings and water colors by Howard Patterson, paintings and drawings by Charles Sheeler, and paintings by Andre Bauchant.

The crowds clustered around the popular Mr. Patterson, who's been receiving a lot of attention from society during his stay here. A few of those present included Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. William B. Storey, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., and Mrs. Howard Linn.

The Russell Kelleys of Lake Forest and their children, Russell Jr. and Pamela, will go to Florida next month. . . . Mrs. Claude Leigh of London, formerly Myrtle Johnson of Chicago, arrived Monday for a brief stay and is at the Drake. She will be joined today by her husband who has been in Washington, and they will be here until Sunday. . . . The Sidney S. Gorhams Jr. are being congratulated upon the birth of a son, Sidney III., on last Saturday. Mrs. Gorham is the former Corinne McVoy. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. McKisson of Winnetka, who have two daughters, Mary Lee and Nancy, are being congratulated upon the birth of their first son, Robert Jr. . . . Mrs. W. David Owen will return to Lake Forest tomorrow from a short trip to New York. She and Mr. Owen will go to Palm Beach shortly to join their children, who, with a governess, have been there several weeks.

Palm Beach Happy, So Dispatches Indicate.

Writing of Palm Beach reminds us that our correspondent there writes that the season has had a decided impetus during the last few days and that life there already is as gay and carefree as if a stock market did not exist. This week the openings of the Royal Poinciana, the Whitehall, the Beach Club restaurant, the Patio Marguery, and the Cocoanut Grove are engaging society's attention, and on the 27th the Lake Worth golf tournament at the Palm Beach Country club will start. Mrs. McKay LeRoy, who resides at the Ambassador in Chicago, has gone to the Breakers in Palm Beach for the rest of the winter. Her relative, Mrs. Alexander McKay, who has a lovely new home on Via Bellaria, has house guests from London and Paris now and is entertaining extensively for them. The Warren Wrights are expected at Palm Beach shortly and the smart colony there is hoping that his stables will be represented at Hialeah Park in Miami this season. The Kenneth L. Smiths of Winnetka, who have opened their Palm Beach villa, are leaving today for a cruise to Jamaica and other points in the West Indies, aboard their yacht, the Kenkora II., which is one of the largest and most beautiful yachts ever seen in Florida waters, so our correspondent writes.

Mrs. Charles M. Hayes and Mrs. George Albert Eddy are among the Chicagoans entered in a contract bridge duplicate tournament at the Everglades club, which started last Saturday and will be played every Saturday until April 2.

Woman's Athletic Club Re-elects Its Officers.

At the annual meeting and luncheon of the Woman's Athletic club yesterday Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, Mrs. William N. Pelouze, Mrs. H. Newton Hudson, and Mrs. Frank P. Graves were reëlected to their respective offices of president, first vice president, treasurer, and corresponding secretary. New officers include Mrs. William Sherman Hay and Mrs. William C. Pullman, second and third vice presidents, and Mrs. Stanley Zaring, recording secretary. In addition to the above named officers the board of directors is composed of Mrs. Allan M. Clement, Mrs. Harry B. Clow, Mrs. George L. Cragg, Mrs. William F. Peterson, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, and Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler, who is to continue her highly successful work as program chairman.

The club, which has, by the way, one of the loveliest pools in the city, is to hold its annual swimming meet on Saturday, Feb. 13. Most of the contests will be for children, but there will be one or two mothers and daughters' races.

Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter will open her residence on Jan. 28 and Feb. 4 at 10:30 o'clock for two study groups on taxation under the auspices of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters. Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, chairman of taxation of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will conduct the groups. Mrs. Carpenter is president of the Lake Shore league; Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, first vice president; Mrs. W. S. Ennis, second vice president; Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, third vice president; Miss Nettie Baumann, treasurer; Mrs. George Packard, recording secretary, and Miss Paula Wilms, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Charles W. Dempster will be hostess at a meeting of the Frontier Nursing Service at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at her residence at 209 Lake Shore drive. Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale will speak and Marvin Hughitt Frost will show movies made at the recent dedication of the Hughitt Memorial nursing station in the Kentucky mountains.

Robert Kelso, director of the St. Louis community fund, will speak on "Unemployment" tomorrow afternoon at the St. Louis Country club. Group meetings will be held there in the morning to discuss welfare work and a dinner will be given there at night.

The election of regional officers will be held Thursday morning at the closing session. Accomplishment of social welfare work by volunteers, under the direction of trained social workers, will be among the subjects discussed.

Mrs. Isaac Orr, president of the St. Louis Junior league, and Mrs. Charles Millikin, chairman of the conference committee, are the official hostesses for visiting delegates.

Mrs. Grannis Tells of the Visiting Nurses.

SLIDES picturing Chicago slums, homes where the visiting nurse is a familiar figure, were shown yesterday in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel before society women, contributors to the Visiting Nurse association of Chicago. It was the forty-second annual meeting of the association.

MRS. URI B. GRANNIS.

Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, recording secretary, who made the pictures, told accompanying anecdotes.

"This is the eleventh baby in this family, and they didn't seem sorry to see it," she said. "I never knew a happier family. The father always has been employed until this winter. The oldest girl is here—she's 15 years old."

"Roy, shown here, worked in a carnival and one leg was injured in the machinery of the merry-go-round. He has five younger brothers and sisters and a father who has been totally incapacitated for years. The mother is a scrubwoman and supports them."

"This woman is only 105 years old. She reared 14 children, she said, and is now living with her 'baby son.' He's 79 years old."

"This smiling woman in a wheel chair is a diabetic, one of whose legs became infected and had to be amputated. She wheels herself all around the house, keeps an immaculate house, does her own laundry from the wheel chair and has these two well cared for children."

"There are ten in this family. Aren't the children beautiful? This little boy is crippled, but the visiting nurse is giving him daily exercise with the leg that was totally paralyzed and it is returning to usefulness."

Miss Edna L. Foley was presented with a pin for her 20 years' service with the Visiting Nurse association by the retiring president, Miss Margaret B. Conover. Ten year gold service pins were given to Miss Coralyn Davis and Miss Julia M. MacNeill.

Eight thousand mothers and babies were cared for during the year, Mrs. Richard I. Stearns, chairman of the nurses' committee, said. An increase of 19,000 patients over those cared for in 1930 brought the total to 65,650 patients, who received more than 390,000 calls. Miss Foley told of 9,000 visits made to 500 cancer patients.

Members of the auxiliary committee and Junior league provisional members gave 2,257 hours of volunteer service, Mrs. C. J. Hambleton reported. Flowers from debut parties have made their way to dozens of sick beds, she added. Nurses made 40,000 visits to 3,000 infantile paralysis victims, declared Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, chairman of the committee on aftercare and study of infantile paralysis patients.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. George A. Ranney; first vice president, Mrs. Richard I. Stearns; second vice president, Mrs. Melville N. Rothschild; recording secretary, Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed; treasurer, Mrs. George E. Throop; and assistant treasurer, Mrs. John H. Blair.

CLEVER FROCK—LAMB TRIMMED

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Flat fur has disappeared from the smart coat. Animals bearing clothlike fur, however, have no reprieve for while their long haired brethren are providing fur for coats they are lending chic to simple winter frocks for daytime.

Shaved lamb, broadtail and pony are being used by the French dressmakers to trim woolen dresses for fashionable society. Shaved lamb vestees, bands, collars and cuffs adorn many of the smartest frocks seen at the Ritz around noon these days. Black, slithery pony makes epaulets and revers of coat-dresses and broadtail appears as sleeve puffs, yokes and whatnot.

White fur is the smartest for trimming the sober winter dress of wool, and nine times out of ten this fur is shaved lamb. There are innumerable ways of applying this trimming, and one of the most original and charming is shown in our sketch. Marcel Rochas, who designed this dress, has made a deep bib of white shaved lamb, a bib that buttons down the back, and that is edged with a narrow circular ruffle also of white shaved lamb. This is removable as are most of the fur trimmings one sees on winter frocks, so it may be easily sent to the cleaners.

The lower sleeves of the frock are also made of white shaved lamb and likewise bordered with circular ruffles of this fur. These lower sleeves are snapped on to a three-quarters sleeve of cloth so they, too, are detachable.

Mischa Elman Balks at Music He's Asked to Play

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—Mischa Elman has refused to appear as soloist with the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra next Sunday and Jan. 31 as agreed in a contract made with his managers, the Metropolitan Musical bureau. This became known today. A series of differences with the management of the orchestra regarding what the violinist was to play led to his decision to "tell them to look for another soloist."

New Mexico and France Aid at Art Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

ONE of the most delightful exhibitions of the winter opened yesterday in the Arts club. The larger gallery is devoted to paintings by Howard A. Patterson; the smaller room is hung with the work of Charles Sheeler, and the round gallery offers tiny oils by a Frenchman, André Bauchant, whose magnified flower paintings decorate the long hall. At the further end of the hall we find again Mr. Patterson with a group of varied and exquisite water colors.

Mr. Patterson was born in Philadelphia and lived there a number of years. Finally he broke away from the academic, grim, gray and reticent bonds of the Quaker city and went abroad. From France he returned to New Mexico and now makes that state his home. New Mexico has done a great deal to and for his painting. It has broadened and brightened his palette; it has widened the range of pictorial possibilities. New Mexico came as a marvelous release from the restrictions of Philadelphia.

The color is soft in his paintings and yet it is alive. Vitality is, perhaps, the keynote to Mr. Patterson's art. You feel his joy in creation as your eye turns from the lovely "Stock" to the vivid "Harbor, Villefranche-Sur-Mer"; from "Stairway" to "Hotel Room, Nice"; from "Old Port, Nice" to the cool "Interior". You enthusiastically follow his guidance from New Mexico to France and back and share his joy in street markets, flower stalls, the turn of a street or the blue distance of a sea, with an effortless appreciation that defines in itself his mastery of his craft.

Charles Sheeler renews our interest. His painting is more objective, more impersonal, cooler, more austere and more remote than Mr. Patterson's. He has the scientific eye that dissects and reunites only to find out the how and why. Yet, his work is beautiful. You will find pleasure in his studies of fruit, leaves, flowers and glass. You will feel a scholar's thrill at the lines and values in "An American Landscape," also you will find humor. His "Yachts", a drawing, is the most poetic of these efforts.

Bauchant recedes in importance in the presence of these two Americans. His little pictures have a certain charm, a beauty of color, but when developed on a large scale they become dull, pretentious and implacably Teutonic.

The exhibit will continue through the month and should not be missed.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover were guests at dinner this evening of Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson who entertained at Woodley, their home on Cathedral avenue. COLDS infect handkerchiefs

Use KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues—and destroy!

YOUR handkerchief is more than disgusting during colds. It is dangerous! If you've used it once, it contains thousands of germs. Don't carry these germs back to your face. Give your cold a chance to get well. Use the handkerchief you can destroy—Kleenex disposable tissues.

Softer than cloth

You will prefer Kleenex to handkerchiefs in every way. It is softer, finer, more absorbent, because made of downy rayon-cellulose. Though superior to handkerchiefs, Kleenex costs much less. Costs less, indeed, than laundering.

And now you pay a third less for Kleenex! The generous box—formerly 50c—is now but 35c.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I am asked many questions lately about dyeing hair. I gather the employment situation has something to do with it. Women cast out of jobs after a long stretch of years with one concern are confronted with the business of impressing a new employer. And new employers more and more are begging for youth to take up the burdens. It is one of the tragedies of our day and age, one for which there is no good solution, either—unless it is to resort to the dye pot and see what measure of youth it holds.

How much youth to be found there will always remain one of those debatable questions on which each individual is allowed the privilege of her own convictions. How much men are fooled by dyed hair I do not know. I have heard some of them say they can't be fooled.

On the other hand, married women have managed to keep their devoted mates in blissful ignorance for years of the actual character of their looks. If any one approaches me with the query, "Shall I dye my hair?" I run. That and getting married are individual responsibilities, not mine to direct, though I would advocate marriage with less hesitatailton. I'm sure I don't know why I associate the two adventures, unless it is that they both hold the old formula about it not being the original cost but the upkeep that matters.

But what I started out to say is that women are incredulously gullible about hair-changing colors. They will believe anything, I suppose, because they haven't been at the hair dyeing art so long as they have been practicing at makeup, let's say, and making discoveries for themselves.

Today a girl writes me that her black hair is flecked with silver. Should she dye it white or black? Another tells we that she has to do something about her hair. She dyed it herself. It came out a vicious shade. Now, what can she put on top of that so that it will be possible for her to remove her hat in company?

My advice to hair-dyeing prospects is to have it done if it is going to make you feel better—if it is going to make you feel more within the employment age. But don't, for the luvomike, think it is a job for the amateur!

Food Talk.

The sequel to bacon is ham, or is it the other way around? Be that as it may, your cooking editor has been seeking a complete change in meat flavors for you to better whet jaded January appetites. And what could be a better choice than smoked ham? However, do not infer that you are to limit yourself to a pork diet . . . emphatically no! If you cook any kind of pork carefully, and don't eat it three times a day, you may indulge your taste and not suffer for the so doing.

Ham, baked with brown sugar and fairly oozing delicious juices, does bring joy to the dinner meal. A ham butt or thick slice of ham is equally delicious. Although your own family may be small, you will be a good shopper if you purchase a whole ham at one time. Remember, however, that if you do you must allow space in your refrigerator to store what you don't use immediately.

When you buy the whole ham ask your butcher to cut it into three parts: The rounded or butt end to be baked; the center section to be cut into slices the desired thickness and broiled, fried, or baked with milk, fruit, or milk and potatoes; and the shank section, which offers the foundation of a real old-fashioned boiled dinner—the kind our mothers used to make with the kettle brim full of vegetables.

BAKED HAM BUTT WITH PEPPERS

Place the ham butt in a roaster; cover the bottom of the pan with hot water; cover the pan, and bake in a slow oven [300 degrees Fahrenheit] allowing fifteen minutes to the pound. When three-fourths done remove the rind, rub the fat surface with two tablespoons of sugar, two teaspoons of powdered cloves, and one teaspoon of mustard. Grind four sweet green peppers and cover the fat surface with the peppers. Uncover the roast and continue the baking, allowing fifteen minutes to the pound.

Yield: Six servings.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

We hear a great deal about psychic bids, but we seldom hear the term psychic player. Yet most great masters of the game seem to have an uncanny intuition as to when and when not to follow the book. Yesterday's play-a-problem was an excellent example of this particular quality. It was played at duplicate and several of the best players succeeded in both bidding and making five diamonds on the hand, whereas they might easily have found themselves in a spade bid. This was the hand:

NORTH
♠—J,8

WEST
♠—A,2
♥—J,10,9
♦—A,10,9,8,5,4

EAST (Dealer)
♠—Q,10,7,6,3
♦—K,3

SOUTH
♠—K,9,5,4

East dealt and bid one club. While with two five card suits the major is almost invariably preferred to the minor when both are biddable, there is such a tremendous difference in strength that East preferred to bid his minor first. South passed. West took out with one diamond. North overcalled with a heart. East now bid two clubs.

His normal bid would have been to bid spades rather than to rebid his clubs. That is the rule of the book, following any of the systems, and it is a rule that will work nine times out of ten to the best advantage. This, however, was the tenth time and for some reason East knew it. You can only explain it by intuition unless, of course, you are one of those suspicious characters who think that East peeked. South passed. West bid two diamonds, North passed, and East now jumped to five diamonds for the game. Once East can be assured that he has proper trump support for his partner's diamond bid, he sees only three losing tricks in his hand played at diamonds and hopes, of course, that his partner can cover one of these. Why didn't he show the spades at this point? The only answer is he didn't. If he had, West probably would have passed and they would not have made a game.

North opened the ♠ J, dummy played the Q, South the K, and West took with the A. West now led the ♣ 9, which dummy took with the ♣ 10. He returned first the ♣ A and then the ♣ K. To the next trick dummy led the ♦ 3, which West captured with the A, leading back the ♦ 4, which dummy took with the K. Dummy then led the ♣ Q, which South trumped with the ♦ Q. South then took in his ♥ K and followed with the ♥ 4, which West trumped with the ♦ 5. Declarer then cashed in the ♦ 10-9-8, and to the last trick led the ♠ 2, which dummy took with the ♠ 10 for five-odd and a game.

It is interesting to note that if an effort is made to trump the losing heart the contract cannot be made, as this will allow the opponnets to make not only the ♥ A but two trump tricks.

In playing this hand certain Easts were blinded by the club honors and insisted on rebidding the clubs until they ended in that declaration. Of course, they scored their 150 honors, but came far short of game. It is well to remember that very little heed should be given to honors in seeking the best declaration for the 26 cards.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Young Jake Schaefer of Chicago, for years the world's greatest balk line billiard player and a son of an old master of the ivories, stepped out of his class last night and began a battle for the world's three cushion championship.

He made a spectacular start. Just when the clocks in the loop were about to chime out the stroke of 12, he came out of a 51 inning match the winner over Tiff Denton of Kansas City by the rather easy margin of 50 to 34.

It was an exciting climax to one of Chicago's most thrilling days of billiard playing.

Hall Starts with Defeat.

Frank Scoville, the Buffalo sprinkler salesman, had thrown the championship tournament into a turmoil when he beat Allen Hall of Chicago, 50 to 42, in 53 innings. Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago had the crowd in a frenzy when he came from far behind to whip Gus Copulos of Eugene, Ore., 50 to 47, in 62 innings. Earlier Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, one of the three cushion tournament veterans, had beaten Jay Bozeman, a youthful billiard marvel from California, by a late rally, 50 to 42, in 56 innings.

But it was young Jake of the Chicago Schaefers who pulled a capacity crowd into the tiny arena at 131 South Wabash avenue.

Jake's victory in 51 innings was the second best game of the tournament. Layton clicked off 50 billiards 24 hours earlier in 36 innings. But it was the way that Jake finished after he had appeared as sort of a novice in the early innings that frightened his rivals.

Scoville Scores Upset.

Kieckhefer's comeback was most impressive and his victory the greatest thriller since the tournament opened. He trailed Copulos through the early part of the struggle and appeared hopelessly beaten at times. Kieckhefer came from behind to snatch the lead in the 58th inning and pulled on ahead to triumph finally.

Hall's defeat was the first big upset of the world's championship tournament. Before the tournament started Hall was the 5 to 2 favorite to win the title. Yet, Scoville, a tall, thin haired fellow from Buffalo, took the lead early and held it most of the way. It was an upset that was just as startling as the one he staged a year ago when he defeated Johnny Layton.

Hall made the gamest sort of a fight, and in the 24th inning took a 19 to 18 lead. In the next inning the cool, methodical Scoville clicked off a cluster of four, and from then until the end he never was headed.

Reckless Youth Almost Wins.

Reiselt had to be in his best stroke to down the youthful Bozeman, and even in defeat the Californian came out of the tussle as one of the popular players of the series. He smashed away at the ivories with such careless abandon that most of the seasoned three cushion fans were stunned.

Bozeman had played Reiselt on even terms to the 50th inning. Runs of 4 and 3 in the 52d and 54th innings gave Reiselt his safest margin of the match, a 49 to 42 lead. Then in the 56th inning the overanxious Bozeman left a setup and Reiselt made it for the winning point.

SILVER SKATES POSTPONED TO JAN. 30 AND 31

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Silver Skates derbies, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, have been postponed until Saturday and Sunday Jan. 30 and 31 because of the continued mild weather. While there is an outside chance that the races might be held this week-end at Garfield park if there were sufficient cold weather to freeze the lagoon, the officials yesterday agreed it was advisable to postpone the event. It is the first time in sixteen years that the derbies have been postponed.

The entry list, which closed last Sunday at midnight, will determine the eligibility of contestants. No further entries will be accepted and post entries, of course, are barred.

Hurd to Compete.

Among the list of contestants in the men's senior division is that of Alex Hurd of Hamilton, Ont. Hurd was a member of Canada's Olympic skating team in 1928.

The University of Illinois also will compete in the Silver Skates races. Coach Miller has submitted a list of seven who will race for the men's senior championship. John Curry, athletic director of St. Genevieve Holy Name society, has entered 33 in the men's senior, boys' juvenile, and junior divisions.

Illinois Coming.

Le Moyne playground will be well represented. Edward C. Schubel, instructor, has filed the blanks for the following number of contestants: Girls' senior, 12; girls' junior, 22; boys' midget, 20; boys' juvenile, 11; boys' junior, 22; boys' intermediate, 20, and boys' senior, 26. This is one of the largest groups entered and consequently it has an excellent chance to win the Walter Eckersall memorial team trophy.

The time the contestants must report for their racing numbers will be printed later in THE TRIBUNE. Other information for the 4,000 entries will be published. In the meantime, the Derbies are specifically scheduled for Jan. 30 and 31. The postponement permits the skaters, who so desire, to compete in the Oconomowoc, Wis., contests this week-end.

DUSEK THROWS ZAHARIAS IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Rudy Dusek of Omaha, defeated George Zaharias, Colorado heavyweight wrestler, in straight falls at the Fronton last night. He gained the first fall in 32:05 with a body slam and the second in 12:35 with a split.

In the supporting numbers, Milo Steinborn won a 30 minute decision over Frank Bronowicz; Earl McCready threw Floyd Marshall in 12:04, using a flying tackle and a body hold. Gino Garibaldi used the same holds to throw Hans Bauer in 12:41, and Jack Smith was given the decision over Paul Harper in a 30 minute match.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

SCHMELING AND SHARKEY.

CHAMPION Max Schmeling's decision to give Jack Sharkey a return bout is dictated, no doubt, by the depression. Except for Jack Dempsey, whose ring return still is problematical, there is no other heavyweight opponent who assures a sizable gate for the next title bout.

The Wake is not one of those who thinks the German fears the Bostonian. While Max was outpointed by Jack up to the time of the foul which upset Sharkey's apple cart, Schmeling had taken about everything his opponent had to offer and still was looking for more, plodding along in his confident, methodical way. Against Stribling, Schmeling had improved notably, despite his lack of action in the meantime.

But Sharkey, in a measure, was always available as a prospective foe. So Stribling, who might not "keep" as well, was signed for the Cleveland fracas. Financial returns were disappointing, proving that the public had no special urge for a contest other than between Schmeling and the man who fouled him into the title.

One is prone to judge others by himself. We will hope to attend the Schmeling-Sharkey return bout wherever held. Except to say we were there, we had no particular desire to see Schmeling and Walker in action. Perhaps that is unfair to the pugnacious Mickey, especially considering his showing against Sharkey. Yet we just can't bring ourself to the view that Walker, with his weight disadvantage, is heavyweight title timber. Part of that feeling probably is due to the fact that we dislike to watch bouts in which there is wide disparity in weight or height between opponents.

Schmeling is now in better position to attract attendance on his continental tours which never have been notable money makers. He has done the obvious thing, shown willingness to meet his principal rival. If that does not prevail at the gate it is because Schmeling has not yet become a popular champion. He has the personality to become one. We think he also has the fighting tools. Long absences in Germany between fights, of course, deprive him of much public attention, possibly popularity, he otherwise would attain. No one begrudges him his love of his native country. His fighting, however, is done on this side.

Nusslein Beats Tilden in Third Match of Title Series

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 19.—[Special.]—William T. Tilden II., long the king of amateur tennis and current monarch of the professional game, lost to Hans Nusslein, German star, for the first time here tonight. The scores of the match, the third played by the two men in their five match series, were 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

AH, THAT'S A GOOD BOY, N. Y. FIGHT TRIO TELLS MAX

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The New York State Athletic commission received Max Schmeling with open arms when the heavyweight champion appeared before that board today, personally affirming his desire to box Jack Sharkey before July 1.

The champion was assured that when a promoter with signed contracts for such a bout appeared before the commission the match would be recognized as involving the championship. The commission further stipulated each boxer must post a forfeit of $25,000 and that the contracts must be in the board's hands before July 1.

Jacobs Ready, Too.

Joe Jacobs, the champion's manager, agreed to the ruling of the board in every respect and promised that he would have a promoter with the signed contracts before the commission next Friday.

Jimmy Johnston, boxing head of Madison Square Garden, stated he had been in touch with Sharkey and that the Boston sailor would be in New York tomorrow to negotiate for the fight.

Though the commission made it clear there was no intention to restrict the bidding to New York promoters and that contracts with any responsible promoter would be acceptable, the general belief is that the Garden will get the fight and stage it in the latter part of June.

Chairman James A. Farley was asked if the commission would reinstate Schmeling as champion when the match was signed. He said that would be taken up when the contracts were produced.

However, it is significant that no action was taken by the board to lay down the terms the promoter should offer the boxers. In other words, Schmeling will demand, and very likely receive, the champion's regulation percentage of 37½ per cent.

Send for Photogs.

Schmeling, who was accompanied by Jacobs and his attorney, Charles White, had been closeted with the commissioners for only a quarter of an hour when the photographers were called in to record the love feast for posterity.

ASKS BAN ON SCHMELING

Members of the National Boxing association yesterday were asked by Gen. John Clinnin, N. B. A. president and chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, to vacate Max Schmeling's heavyweight championship.

Gen. Clinnin's request was inclosed with ballots mailed all N. B. A. members. The request pointed out that Schmeling and his manager, Joe Jacobs, had been doing nothing but talking in the matter of title defense.

Jacobs previously had informed the N. B. A. Schmeling would defend his title in Miami in February against Mickey Walker. He reached the decision at the expiration of the six months' grace given recognized title holders.

Gen. Clinnin expects a complete vote in two weeks, at which time he anticipates the vacating of the title. This would leave Schmeling without a championship as the N. B. A. is the only orgahization recognizing him as the champion now. Its membership includes 29 states, parts of Canada and Cuba, and is affiliated with the British boxing board of control and the International Boxing union, the ruling body of Europe. New York state does not recognize the German's title claim.

"We were lenient with Jacobs and Schmeling," Gen. Clinnin said yesterday in explaining his disgust with the pair. "When the six months' limit expired Jan. 3 we were willing to go along with them on their promise that they would defend the title.

"But beyond several ridiculous gestures at signing, on his own preposterous propositions, Jacobs has made no move to enter into a binding contract. If possible we will continue to rule boxing. We believe we can do it equally well as Jacobs or any of his ilk."

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Lacking snow and ice on which to conduct the trials for various American teams for the Olympic winter games at Lake Placid, it appears that the officials in charge may have to turn to the convention system or the direct primary system of selection. Up to now it has been impossible to hold legitimate elimination contests, and, in the case of the speed skaters, Mr. Will Taylor, the coach, has chosen a team of thirteen from a squad of twenty, just arbitrarily.

Mr. Taylor is an expert and the final authority on the personnel of the racing team, so there is no doubt that he has chosen the best skaters to compete in the international races, if and when there is enough ice for the races.

Sound the Tocsin.

Nevertheless, the procedure has been autocratic and un-American, and another challenge to the Civil Liberties union. Probably any one of the seven young skaters who were turned back without formal trials could obtain a court injunction and tie up the competitions until next July at least.

By that time there would be no ice at Lake Placid, but that would not make any great difference because there is no appreciable ice there now, and the championships are likely to be decided by mathematical formula, like some of the international yacht races.

But I doubt that any of the disappointed aspirants for the team will sue. It costs money to carry a principle to the United States Supreme court for vindication and, at last reports, the Olympic speed skaters were flat on the lot, or rink, at Speculator, N. Y., wondering what they were going to use for money to proceed to Placid or return to their homes, according to their fortunes in the selections.

It's Highly Amateur.

The American speed skating squad, incidentally, is one of the most amateur squads ever brought together. They have no money, and when an athlete is broke it is obvious that he is not commercializing his talent.

The convention system could still be invoked for the selection of the bobsled teams, and while it is true that nobody knows anything about the qualifications of any of the candidates, that can hardly be advanced as a valid objection. It is one of the beauties of the convention system that the candidates need not know anything about the duties of the office to which they aspire nor the delegates anything about the candidate.

A coach or a committee of experts might select a team of expert coasters to man the sleds, but they might not have the essential virtue of party regularity and their views on prohibition might be obnoxious. In a convention, the delegates would receive their instructions from their leaders and the American bobsled teams of 1932 would be thoroughly consistent with the best traditions of the democratic form of government.

Suggests McCooey Jr.

Under such a procedure, I would rather expect the fat son of Mr. John F. McCooey, the New York Democratic leader, to make a strong contest for a place as ballast man on one of the squads. The fat son of Mr. McCooey received a nomination for the bench from his daddy not long ago, and if he should be nominated for ballast on the bobsled team he would at least have the virtue of considerable physical bulk, a desirable quality in a ballast man.

However, Mr. McCooey's fat son has been well taken care of by now and maybe some other leader has some skinny son who would be more to the people's choice under the convention system.

But it costs money to hold a national convention and it also costs money to convince delegates of their patriotic duty to vote for one candidate or another and there is no money available for this purpose, because there is no profit in the Olympic games, except for the hotel keepers.

This being the unfortunate fact, certain cherished principles are likely to receive a pretty bad flouting from the coaches when the last hour arrives and it becomes imperative to select teams arbitrarily. In that emergency, an athlete who is an expert in sliding down hill or jumping off a mountain on a pair of wooden runners, will be chosen by the mere whim of some

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Chicago Blackhawks tonight took undisputed possession of second place in the American division of the National Hockey league by defeating the Boston Bruins, 3 to 2.

Major league hockey was conspicuous by its absence as the two teams outfumbled each other throughout the three periods. The second period was scoreless, neither team making an offensive showing. During the last minutes the Bruins tried to tie the score with power plays, but the Hawks had little difficulty thwarting these five men forays.

Perk Galbraith opened the scoring in the first period on a pass from Eddie Burke. Cy Wentworth tied the score with Pat Shea assisting, and Jerry Lowery's goal gave Chicago the lead before the end of the period.

Bruins Tie Score.

Midway in the third period Eddie Burke dashed through the entire Chicago team to score an unassisted goal and tie the count again. The winning goal was scored by Timmy Cook after he fooled Eddie Shore and got into position to slash Mush March's pass into the Boston net. Action throughout was so listless that only three penalties were called, two of them against Chicago.

Action was tame during the first five minutes, but opened up when Perk Galbraith rushed with Eddie Burke. Galbraith was trapped against the left boards by Teddy Graham as he crossed the line. Burke cut over fast and got his stick on the puck, but was forced to round Gardiner's cage to escape Taffy Abel's check. Eddie, however, managed to pass out straight and Galbraith fought his way inside to slam home the first score.

Hawks Take Lead.

The Blackhawks showed little attack until late in the period, when Pat Shea took the puck in the center ice and rushed with Cy Wentworth. Shea passed as the Boston defense bottled him and Wentworth cut in fast to tie the score with a shot that bounced off Tiny Thompson's pads.

Just before the bell Jerry Lowrey put the Hawks in the lead by scoring on a rush with Paul Thompson and Frank Ingram.

The Blackhawks charged often during the early part of the second period, and a drive engineered by Ingram and Shea would have resulted in a score had the former not lifted his shot, which followed a wild scramble, during which the Bruin defenders were swept off their feet. Shore tried a pair of rushes and worried Gardiner with terrific shots, but the Hawk secondaries managed to sweep him aside when he tried for his own rebounds.

Wentworth Misses.

Wentworth sped down the left wall with the puck, Couture trailing him down the center. Wentworth was poke-checked by Foster, but cut in and regained the puck, which he carried around the Boston net. He fired as Thompson came out, but his shot, from an extremely difficult angle, was just a bit wide. The bell broke up a determined Boston attack.

The Bruins appeared in a determined mood when they returned to the ice. Eddie Burke soon pulled his club out of the doldrums by stopping a wobbly Chicago rush at the Boston blue line and smashing his way through the entire Chicago forces to score the tieing goal unassisted.

Tommy Cook put the Hawks back on top, however. He broke inside of Shore and fired a hard shot that Goalie Thompson saved. The rebound sliced over to Mush March, who passed back to Cook. Tommy fooled the Boston goalie with his second shot and after drawing him over to the left of the cage, caged the puck.

The Bruins put on a series of power plays during the last two minutes but these five man rushes again failed to produce a score.

Why Not Have Olympic Ice Convention?

This will be dictatorship and though such methods may win certain Olympic events what profiteth it a democracy that it win the Olympics if its citizens yield their solemn duty to a lot of Mussolinis?

The innkeepers and the Chamber of Commerce of Lake Placid have shown commendable patience up to now in the face of much injurious propaganda about their climate. Claiming to conduct a winter resort with snow and ice available at all times from November to April, they have seen dispatches sent throughont the nation and even abroad telling of lilacs in the bud and crocuses in bloom and a demand for cooling rickeys instead of the warming grog, imported from Canada, which is the wine of the country.

They Like Their Blizzards.

Unlike the Floridans who seek to suppress the frosts and exploit the sunshine, the Adirondack resort keepers of the winter season regard a blizzard and "Six Found Frozen in Mountain Pass" as publicity of just the right sort to attract the type of people who chase the winter around the northerly latitudes.

The newspapers of Florida for years have had a habit of gloating in prominent space over six foot snowfalls and readings of twenty below at Saranac, N. Y., never realizing that such publicity was a source of much pleasure to their rivals in the piney mountains of the north, where persons of both sexes go about in woolly underwear and trousers tucked into high boots large enough to accommodate three pairs of socks.

Climate Freakish This Year.

This winter, however, the climate, like the times, has been out of joint and the weather has become a topic susceptible of genuine sporting interest. There was a Chicago gambler once who won $10,000 at attractive odds, betting that rain would fall on 21 days in a certain June, collecting his wager in the last week of the month. This has been a winter to provoke wagers of a similar kind and no doubt there are gamblers around who have made some bets on the gross aggregate snowfall or the mean average temperature, or who will, anyway, claim they did for purposes of publicity.

But Lake Placid and the winter sport country can derive neither profit nor pleasure from their circumstances. For the first time in history they are entertaining the Olympic program and, like the parrot which refuses to talk for company, their climate has gone almost tropical. It may yet be necessary to send to New York for highball cubes to pave the way for the bobsleds down Mount Van Hoevenberg.

Tate Joins Sox Contract Rush; Signs for Year

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

White Sox players are displaying such haste in getting their signed contracts back into the office safe that President Louis Comiskey is beginning to suspect that he either has been too liberal or the players really are fearful of the unemployment nightmare.

Yesterday's mail brought the papers bearing the signature of Catcher Benny Tate, who inhabits southern Illinois during the winter months. Like Thomas, Lyons, and Jones, who are already in the fold, Tate submitted to a one year document.

With the contract business flourishing at a pleasing rate, President Comiskey has forgotten about possible deals, but it is understood that chances for shipping a pitcher to the Yankees in exchange for an infielder still are bright.

If the mask, chest protector, glove, etc., can make a catcher out of an outfielder, then Smead Jolley, the Sox clouter, already has been transformed. He has purchased all the tools necessary for labor behind the bat and is getting acquainted with them by doing some preliminary spring training at his home, Oakland, Cal. The big fellow is too slow to play the outfield in acceptable fashion but he can hit, and because of the latter Manager Fonseca wants to keep him in the lineup if it is at all possible.

When the Sox recently signed John Leo Rosette, an unattached catcher, Henry Edwards, the league's publicity expert, promptly mailed the youth the usual questionnaire. One of the stock questions is "Did you ever have an exceptional day in baseball?"

The kid's answer to the above was "Yes, I pulled a Frank Merriwell when I was playing in high school. I hit a homer with two on, two out, and the count on me was 3 and 2 in the ninth. We won the game, 5 to 4."

DE PAUL QUINTET GOES EAST FOR THREE CONTESTS

Having accounted for five victories in six games on its home court, De Paul university's basketball team will move into foreign territory this week. The Blue Demons will leave tomorrow afternoon for Washington, D. C., where, on Friday, they will battle Catholic university.

George Washington university will supply the opposition Monday. Then Coach Jim Kelley will lead the Demons on to Brooklyn where St. John's will be met next Wednesday. The Saints had one of the best teams in the east last year.

TRIANGLES, ELLERS PLAY FOR LEAGUE LEAD TONIGHT

The Triangles and the Ellers meet for the Windy City Basketball league lead tonight in the feature game of the weekly schedule at the 132d armory, Rockwell and Madison streets. Both squads are undefeated, each having scored four consecutive victories.

Another undefeated team, the Pandoras, will face the Lindstroms. In other games the All-Chicagos play Englewood and the Hannin-Did-Its will meet the Drivers.

SS. Peter and Paul Girls Beat St. Lawrence, 13 to 12

Winfield Day Second Low in Miami Golf Qualifying

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Winfield Day, Chicago school boy golfer, carded 41—35—76 today to slip into second place among qualifiers for the Glenn Curtiss amateur trophy invitational tournament here. Day's score was one stroke more than that of H. F. Browbeer of Chicago, who showed the way for the amateurs yesterday.

What's Bush Going to Do? Pilot Millers

The question, "What's Donie Bush going to do?" for which friends of Mr. Bush have been seeking an answer since he resigned as manager of the Chicago White Sox immediately after his team had won the city championship from the Cubs last October, last night seemed cleared up, with definite indications that Bush had signed to lead the Minneapolis club in the American Association.

Mike Kelly, former manager, part owner, and new president of the Minneapolis club, and Bush last night were seen emerging from an all day pow-wow, each congratulating the other vigorously. This was taken as a confirmation of earlier rumors that Bush was to be associated with the operation of the Minneapolis club.

Not Financially Interested.

It is understood that Bush will have full charge of the team on the field, but that he has not become a part owner as earlier rumors had it.

Bush's activity in the American association by no means will be his first. Donie went up to Detroit in 1908 after a brilliant season at shortstop with the Indianapolis team, then as now a member of the American association. He managed the Indianapolis organization in 1924, 1925, and 1926, before going to Pittsburgh to lead the Pirates to a National league pennant in 1927. Bush was manager of the Pirates for three years, then came to the White Sox to remain for two seasons.

Bush in Reorganization.

The Minneapolis team last year finished in fifth place, an unhappy circumstance in view of the fact that the St. Paul team won the pennant. This led to the adoption of a reorganization program, of which the engagement of Bush is said to be a part.

LAKE FOREST AND NORTH CENTRAL IN TWIN BILL FRIDAY

Lake Forest college varsity and freshman basketball teams will participate Friday in a double header with the North Central college teams at Lake Forest gymnasium.

The Lake Forest varsity has won four games. North Central comes to Lake Forest with a string of five consecutive Little Nineteen conference victories.

Capt. Pete Stralko and John Ashton, regular Lake Forest guards, are back in form. North Central has a veteran team. Kerth, Massier, Dornier, and Manning have played together four years in high school and are playing their fourth season in college this year.

More Norway Stars Coming for Ski Meet

Capt. Olaf Helseth and four members of the Norwegian Olympic ski jump team will arrive in Chicago tonight to join three of their teammates already here for the Ogden Dunes Ski club's fifth annual meet Sunday on the big steel slide near Gary, Ind.

Those who saw the Ruud brothers, Sigmund and Birger, and Kaare Walberg in action on the Cary hill last Sunday need not be told of their ability. They combine grace, daring and distance, and are favorites to win the international crown. Sigmund Ruud is the official world record holder with a leap of 276 feet. Walberg, however, defeated Ruud last Sunday while setting a new mark of 183 feet for the Cary slide.

The quartet coming here with Capt. Helseth comprises Hans Beck, Reidar Andersen, Hans Kleppe, and Sverre Kolterud. They will be met at the La Salle Street station tonight by Mayor A. J. Cermak, sponsor of the meet; Greeter George Gaw, and hundreds of Chicago Norwegians, and will go from the station to the Midland club, ski headquarters.

It is probable that Gunnar Oman, captain of the Ogden Dunes club, and Guttorm Paulsen of the Norge club will offer the invaders most of the opposition. Oman jumped 183 feet last Sunday to tie Walberg in distance, but was disqualified after falling at the foot of the hill.

YANKS PURCHASE HILL, FORMER STAR AT U. S. C.

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Jesse Hill, hard hitting outfielder and former football and track star of the University of Southern California, has been purchased from the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast baseball league "for cash and players," the New York Yankees announced today.

Jack Delaney Plans Ring Comeback as Heavyweight

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight champion, will attempt a comeback as a heavyweight, he said today. Delaney has been training intensively in a local gymnasium, and weighs around 186 pounds. An injured right elbow, which forced his retirement three years ago, has healed perfectly, he said.

DATA DISCLOSE DROP IN NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED

BY O. A. MATHER.

Basis for hope that the peak of unemployment has been passed and improvement has begun is given in data made public yesterday by the bureau of labor statistics at Washington. And from other sources came word of a stronger movement of commodities by the railroads and further recovery in operations in the steel industry. These bits of news afford some indication that trade and industry at last have left dead center, although improvement still is painfully slow.

Employment and pay roll totals for industry as a whole increased slightly in December, according to the government statistics. Industrial employment gained seven-tenths of 1 per cent over November and pay rolls were three-tenths of 1 per cent higher. These figures were based on returns from 49,841 concerns in 15 major industrial groups having more than 4,500,000 employés.

However, the figures show considerable irregularity in various lines. Retail concerns increased their staffs and pay rolls heavily as the result of holiday trade. Petroleum producers and bituminous coal mine operators also reported substantial gains. On the other hand, anthracite operators and cleaners and dyers reported the heaviest declines.

Auto Industry's Gains.

Both employment and pay roll totals in manufacturing industries declined two-tenths of 1 per cent from November, with employment last month 10 per cent below December, 1930, and earnings down about 15 per cent. But the automobile industry showed the pronounced increase of nearly 10 per cent in employment and substantial gains also were shown in the agricultural implement, boot and shoe, fertilizer and slaughtering industries. The tobacco industry was adversely affected by labor troubles.

The east and west north central sections of the country showed both increased employment and pay roll totals, the New England section reported small gains in pay roll totals, while the remaining divisions of the country reported declines in both.

More Activity in Illinois.

Manufacturing activity in Illinois, for the month ending Dec. 15, increased 2.1 per cent in employment and 4.4 per cent in pay rolls, as shown by figures made public yesterday by the Illinois department of labor, statistics and research division. Most of the increase, according to Howard B. Myers, chief of the bureau, was due to a reaction from the sharp curtailment in certain industries during the previous month. Increases of 1.3 per cent in employment and 4.4 per cent in pay rolls was reported by 536 factories in Chicago.

Although railroad traffic still is meager, the American Railway association reported loadings of revenue freight at 572,504 cars for the week ended Jan. 9. This marks an increase of 69,179 cars over the preceding week, when traffic was affected by the New Year holiday. However, the gain was larger than that which followed the Christmas holiday. Compared with the corresponding week in 1931, loadings were off 140,624 cars, and they fell 289,957 below the same week in 1930.

Steel Industry Better.

Reports of improvement in the steel industry came from several sources. Dow, Jones & Co. estimated that steel ingot output in the last week has averaged 26 per cent of capacity, compared with 25 per cent in the previous week. The United States Steel corporation was said to have gained 2 per cent, while independents improved fractionally. Mills in the Chicago district are operating around 23 per cent, compared with 20 per cent a week ago.

Business failures continue numerous, although not as many as a year ago. Bradstreet's reported 751 defaults during the week ended Jan. 14, compared with 725 in the preceding week and 783 in the corresponding week in 1931.

Daily Average of Crude Output Off 40,750 Barrels

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 40,750 barrels in the week ended Jan. 16, totaling 2,193,450 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 44,250 barrels to 1,684,450 barrels.

Refineries representing 95.2 per cent of estimated total capacity operated at 58.0 per cent of their capacity, compared with 59.1 per cent in the previous week. Gasoline stocks at these refineries were 39,853,000 barrels, against 39,106,000.

Say D.&H. Ry. Will Declare Usual Payment

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—When directors of the Delaware and Hudson company meet for consideration of dividends late this month the regular quarterly payment of $2.25 a share will be declared, it was said today in usually well informed quarters.

Earnings of the company for 1931 are officially estimated at the equivalent of $7 a share, or $2 a share under the annual dividend requirements of $9 a share. Some apprehension had arisen that the management would take steps to place disbursements closer in line with income, but such action is not anticipated.

Favorably Situated.

It is pointed out that by virtue of its strong treasury position the Delaware and Hudson is favorably situated to disburse for the time being somewhat in excess of earnings, and the point is also made that the management is anxious to maintain the excellent record compiled by the company. The Delaware and Hudson has an unbroken dividend record extending back to 1896.

Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland declared a final dividend on its common of 8 per cent and an extra dividend of 1s 6d. A year ago the company paid a final dividend of 9 per cent and an extra of the same amount.

Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator company declared two quarterly dividends of 75 cents each on the common, continuing the annual rate of $3 a share, but altering the payments from semi-annual installments of $1.50 each to quarterly payments of 75 cents.

Omits Preferred Payment.

The Gruen Watch company omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock due at this time.

St. Louis Screw and Bolt company deferred action on the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred stock due at this time. Ontario Steel Products company omitted the quarterly dividend of 20 cents on the common stock due at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred was declared.

George A. Hormel & Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. Previously quarterly dividends of 50 cents were paid on the common.

WILLYS REDUCES PRICES; SELLS LINE AT NEW LOW

L. A. Miller, president of the Willys Overland company, yesterday announced the lowest priced line of automobiles ever produced in America, being lower in price than any other sixes and eights and even lower than any standard line of four cylinder cars now on the market. A reduction of one hundred dollars in the list prices of all new 1932 silver anniversary Willys Overland sixes and eights, and Willys Knight motor cars is effective immediately. The new prices being at a base level of $415.

"This great reduction in our prices," said Mr. Miller, "squarely meets the present recognized economic situation. It will increase dealer profits through stimulating volume, make possible an increase in employment, and increase the need to purchase new raw materials by stimulating the dormant retail buying power which is known to exist. We believe many additional thousands of potential buyers will promptly take advantage of prices that are materially lower than at any time in American history."

Confirms Birdsell Sale to Allis-Chalmers Company

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 19.—(AP)—P. G. Stanley, vice president and general manager of the Birdsell Manufacturing company of South Bend, today confirmed the sale of the company to the Allis-Chalmers company of Milwaukee, Wis. The Birdsell company manufactured wagons, clover and alfalfa hullers, for 77 years. It is probable the South Bend plant will be merged with the Allis-Chalmers branch at La Porte.

SEEK AMENDMENTS TO STOCK FRAUD LAWS IN NEW YORK STATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Drastic amendments to the stock fraud law, with perhaps new legislation, will be sought from the legislature by Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr. as a means of protecting the public from further losses and exploitation in the investment and managing trust fields, it was learned today.

This decision on the part of Mr. Bennett results from findings of a special survey he ordered months ago into this particular kind of financial operation. Nothing in the requested legislation, however, will militate against the legitimate operator of investment trusts.

It was learned that the survey had already disclosed that in New York state a large number of inexperienced, unscrupulous, and even dishonest promoters have seized upon the investment trust with the result that the public has been mulcted out of millions.

One of the chief evils said to have been discovered in some of the suspected companies is a practice of some managements of using funds obtained from the public for investment in unsound companies and corporations in which the investment trust operators aim to benefit almost exclusively. This practice is known in financial parlance as "dumping."

Another practice found by the attorney general's survey with bad results to the investing public is that the officers and managers of some investment trusts have voted and paid themselves exorbitant salaries which have come out of the capital funds.

Clutton Reappointed Grain Board's Secretary

Fred H. Clutton was reappointed secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade at the meeting of directors yesterday. He has held the position since 1928. William B. Bosworth was reappointed assistant secretary, and Charles V. Essroger of the First National bank, treasurer.

The directors reinstated Walter G. Moorhead who was recently suspended under the insolvency rule. Securities of the Mid-City Company of America were ordered stricken from the stock list Saturday, Jan. 23.

Pixley & Ehlers Serve Larger Number in 1931

Pixley & Ehlers, Chicago restaurant chain, served 12,000,000 persons in 1931, a new high record, Albert J. Pixley, president, says in his annual report. Despite the larger number of customers, however, the gross and net revenues of the firm were smaller because of lower prices. The cost of the average meal served was 24.73 cents. New customers were gained by advertising, Mr. Pixley said.

ASSERTS GOV'T EXTRAVAGANCE IS RETARDING TRADE

Governmental extravagance and mismanagement have imposed so heavy a burden on business as to provide a serious obstacle to recovery from the depression, John H. Millar, western editor of Business Week, told members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association at a luncheon at the La Salle hotel yesterday.

"The United States and all the states, cities and other governments in it owe over thirty billion dollars," Mr. Millar said. "These dollars are a lot bigger today than they were when we borrowed them. Declining price levels have in effect added to our debt burden the equivalent of six or seven billion dollars.

"Meanwhile expenditures go ahead and 1932 will be the most costly peace time year the federal government has ever experienced. About one dollar out of five of the national income is now going to pay the expenses of government and business pays the bill."

Mr. Millar said the public ought to see to it that their servants immediately reduce their budgets, and he suggested that economies could be effected by consolidating overlapping governments.

WEISS SELLS HIS SEAT ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

David D. Weiss, the tailor-broker who acted as broker for Walter A. Wolf, bond clerk now in prison for stealing over $2,000,000 from the Continental Illinois bank, sold his seat on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday for $7,500. The buyer was Charles A. Schreiner, son of Charles A. Schreiner, a member of the Board of Trade for a number of years. "My son has worked in brokerage offices for a time and he intends to go into the grain business," said Mr. Schreiner.

Within the last two days three Board of Trade memberships have been sold at $7,500 net to the buyer.

Gov't to Probe All Utilities Except Rails

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Seeking to establish a basis of factual information for probable future legislation on transportation and communication, the house today ordered a sweeping investigation of the ownership and control of all public utilities in the United States except the railroads.

The inquiry is intended to develop the same picture of control of utilities as did a similar investigation made by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce into the ownership of railroads in the last congress.

Will Seek "Owners."

Just what nature of legislation the house leaders on interstate commerce have in mind regarding the utilities is yet to be developed. Their sole purpose now, they explain, is to find "who owns" the power companies, the telephone companies, the radio broadcasting enterprises, and the bus lines, so that future plans for federal regulation can be mapped out in the light of actual conditions and actual control.

The investigation was directed by a formal resolution sponsored by Representative Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

Scope Is Broadened.

The original intention of proponents of the investigation was to determine the extent of control of utilities through securities holding companies, but it was later broadened to include every element of ownership and influence.

The principal inquiry will be made by Dr. Walter M. W. Splawn, professor of economics at the American university, who made the study of railroad ownership and control for the committee in 1930.

FOREIGN TRADE OF ITALY DOWN 35% FOR YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 19.—The total volume of Italy's foreign trade for the year just ended shows a shrinkage of 70 per cent, as compared with the year 1929, and about 35 per cent, as compared with the year 1930, according to the figures published today.

Last year Italy's combined exports and imports reached a total of $1,066,800,000, against the total of $1,473,200,000 in 1930 and $1,828,200,000 in 1929. The figure for 1931 shows an unfavorable trade balance of $80,216,000, the imports of last year having been $588,174,400 and the exports $508,024,000.

The company also was authorized to pledge the new bonds as collateral security for short term notes, outstanding or that may be issued, in financing its equipment or other improvement needs. The new bonds will be dated Sept. 1, 1931, and they will mature Sept. 1, 1996.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—[Special.]—The Bank of France has made arrangements to take home to Paris $125,000,000, comprising virtually all its gold held under earmark in the New York Reserve bank. Two shipments of about $12,500,000 each will be made this week, one on the steamer President Harding, sailing tomorrow, and another on the Europa, sailing just after midnight Saturday morning.

Altogether there will be ten consignments of the metal, all of which will come from the vaults of the reserve bank.

$400,000,000 Set Aside.

About $400,000,000 gold is set aside in the vaults of the Federal Reserve bank under earmark for foreign account, of which the Bank of France owns $125,000,000, the National bank of Belgium is estimated to hold nearly as much, and the rest is owned by other central banks.

None of this gold is included in the monetary gold stocks of the United states, the foreign central banks for whose account it has been set aside regarding the metal as though it were lodged in their own vaults and including it in their statements of gold reserve.

Not Selling Acceptances.

The money market saw no evidence today that the Bank of France was selling its holdings of American acceptances, which are believed to be substantial.

Last Friday France took $12,269,000 from its store of earmarked gold here and another $4,091,000 was shipped to Belgium. The effect of these shipments is not to be compared with withdrawal of French bank balances here or to selling by the Bank of France of its holdings of American acceptances.

Some significance is believed seen by well informed bankers in the fact that the recall of this earmarked gold follows a reduction of the discount rates on bankers' acceptances, which took place last week after the reserve bank reduced its bill buying rates.

May Dislike Bill Rate Cut.

One inference from this coincidence drawn today was that the move might be a gesture by the Bank of France to indicate that it dislikes the cut in bill rates because it reduces the bank's income from its investments in American acceptances. The bank's officers are known to be sensitive on that point.

Another possible reason assigned is the broadcasting throughout Europe of the idea that the federal reserve system is embarking on a policy of inflation.

More Gold Earmarked.

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The country's monetary stock was reduced $1,476,700 as a result of today's gold transactions, according to the New York Federal Reserve bank statement. The only item on the import side was $2,941,000 from Colombia, against which there was an export of $167,700 to Switzerland and an increase of $4,250,000 in the gold under earmark for foreign account.

Several continental currencies, notably sterling, tended to favor the dollar today, although some irregularity of movement developed in the late dealings, making net changes mixed. The French franc lost an early gain, cables closing unchanged at 3.93⅝ cents. An extreme rise of ¾ cent in the Canadian dollar was reduced to ½ cent. The closing price was 86⅝ cents.

Hungary Lowers Bank Rate.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The National Bank of Hungary reduced its discount rate today from 8 per cent to 7 per cent.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—The speculative market was barely able to keep up appearances today. Only a little more than a million shares were turned over and price movements generally lacked vigor enough to carry very far in either direction.

Most of the group leaders finished behind minus signs. The rails kept up a show of optimism, although late afternoon reports of further complications in the Chicago wage conference cost them a rather hefty slice of the gains they had run up earlier in the day when matters seemed to be running more smoothly. Elsewhere features of any importance were difficult either direction.

Credit Bank Buying.

In spite of the artificial support it is receiving from forces still hopeful of something turning up to foment a real spring advance, the market appears to be slowly but surely melting away once more. The so-called January advance, as every one knows, was due almost solely to the technical condition of the list itself and not to any worthwhile business revival in any quarter or any trustworthy sign of one.

Bank buying was generally credited with furnishing the initial push of the recovery and with goading it on when it showed signs of hesitating in its earlier stages. Evidently the promoters of the rally were banking on developments at Washington and in the foreign situation to provide fuel to keep the steam up in its secondary stages, but both congress and the European world compellers have shown a disturbing disposition to take their own good time about whatever they may be about.

Public Grows Callous.

Moreover, the public has shown itself singularly callous to the red faced efforts of the market makers. The public has had its shins barked so many times by taking things for granted since the market left the reservation two years or so ago that it is now demanding incontestable

BANK RECEIVER COMPILES BOND REPORT LIST

Mary Manor Is First of Series.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

Arthur M. Wirtz, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee of first mortgage bonds underwritten by the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, announced last night that a series of reports on the various properties involved is being compiled by the receiver of the bank. Yesterday, he stated, the first of these, regarding the Mary Manor apartments, at the southeast corner of Patterson avenue and Lincoln street, was mailed to the bondholders.

Mr. Wirtz, who is president of the realty firm of Wirtz, Hubert & Little, states that the committee expects to announce its plan of reorganization on this property within the near future. The committee is composed of John P. Hooker, of Hooker and Slosson, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; O. P. Curran Jr., real estate; August Torpe Pr., president of August Torpe Jr. & Co., William Ray Prince, real estate mortgages, and Ernest Ridgeway, receiver for the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank. Kirkland, Fleming, Green and Martin are the attorneys. Leo A. Cotter is secretary.

The Mary Manor apartments, containing twenty-four unfurnished suites, was originally financed by a $110,000 six per cent bond issue, now reduced to $104,000. Interest defaulted October, 1930. The Sheridan Trust and Savings bank obtained an assignment of rents and operated the building until the bank closed.

Committee Takes Hold.

Then the bondholders' protective committee took up the situation and filed a foreclosure suit. It was found the owner was willing to transfer the assignment of rents to the committee and a receivership was avoided.

Following is a report of the operation of the property since then by the committee:

	Rental income.	Operating expense.	Net.
August, 1031	$691.43	$1,406.00	$741.57
September	1,237.25	631.07	606.18
November	1,191.00	642.32	548.68

The net cash on hand as of Dec. 1, 1931, was $2,481.82, Mr. Wirtz states. No fees have been charged by the committee against the property. No funds have been allocated as yet for payment of taxes. The 1928 general taxes are partially paid and the balance unpaid is $1,470, subject to objection. The 1929 taxes are unpaid.

More than 90% of the bonds have been deposited. The foreclosure suit has not been proved up as it is the hope of the committee that a complete deposit of bonds would allow a reorganization without that expense. The property was 85% rented the first of last month. The attitude of the owner, according to Mr. Wirtz, is one of close coöperation.

Has $9,228 Cash on Hand.

T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee for Holzer, Inc., first mortgage bond issues, reports that the Deauville Manor apartments, at the northwest corner of Malden and Sunnyside avenues, had a cash balance on hand, Nov. 30, 1931, of $9,228. The receiver's income and expense statement for the period from July 3, to Nov. 30, 1931, showed gross receipts of $18,166 and operating expenses of $8,613. Special assessments of $324 were paid.

The Straus National Bank and Trust company is receiver. The original bond issue was $280,000, 6½%. It has been reduced to $231,000. Holman D. Pettibone is chairman of the bondholders' committee.

TRADE IN WALL STREET DRIFTS; LEADERS LOSE

Hence the plight of the well meaning gentlemen now left—once more—holding the bag. Hence the growing boldness of bears, most of whom have refused to become convinced and many of whom refused to take to the woods even when the advance was roaring on all eight. Unable to visualize any signs of the expansion in business activity about which so much noise has been made, they are writing their convictions into a fresh record of increasing price losses that is growing more ominous day by day. Even the most optimistic observers agree that it will take some important news development now to really halt the downward drift of prices and set the advance once more in motion.

Commodity Prices Dip.

In addition to fresh discouragement over the railroad wage situation, the market today had the depressing influence of a setback in the commodity markets to contend with, both the wheat and cotton markets turning reactionary after their recent bursts of strength. Bonds were irregular at the best and the dividend and earnings news was as depressing as ever.

One of the few price movements to attract serious attention during the day was in General Electric, which was under pressure of persistent selling, the bulk of which was reported to be coming from two large firms, one of which holds large connections around the middle west by reason of its extensive wire service. The company's earnings during 1931 were reported to range about 26 per cent below those of the preceding year, with the December books showing a drop of 34 per cent from the corresponding month of 1930. The issue closed today at 23, off more than a point from the previous close.

Hear English Millers Buy Argentine Grain.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Monday's bulge in the wheat market apparently exhausted the buying power, temporarily at least. There was a lack yesterday of the aggressive commission house support of the previous day, and instead persistent selling by some of the houses that were good buyers on Saturday.

At no time were prices as high as the finish of the previous day with final sales around the inside figures with net losses of 1½@1¾c. March closed at 57⅜ to 57½c, May at 59⅜ to 59½c, and July at 58⅜@58⅝c.

The trade paid less attention to rumors yesterday and more to actual developments in the world's situation. There was some selling during the day on the unusual difference which prevailed between the local and the Liverpool market, the latter being 3⅞ under Chicago on the May delivery and put domestic hard winter far above an export parity based on replacement price, although there was some domestic wheat sold to Rotterdam during the day from Atlantic ports.

It was claimed that the sales reported on Monday were on a basis of around 3½c under Chicago May, or materially below what the grain could be laid down on a lake and rail basis from the local market.

Stop Loss Orders in Wheat.

Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered in wheat on the way down yesterday with the May showing 2¾c under the high on Monday. Bearish news continues to be received from abroad and even Winnipeg was affected by the lack of an aggressive foreign demand. According to cables English millers were taking Argentine grain due to its low price and discriminated against Manitobas which were regarded as too high. North American export sales in all positions were finally estimated at 300,000 bu, including some Canadian durum.

Liverpool made a fair response to the upturn in Chicago on Monday and closed ⅛c higher to ¼c lower per bu with May at 56⅛c. Winnipeg reported a much smaller trade than the previous day and was off 1c at the last with May 63¼c in Canadian funds. The exchange rate with Canada was again stronger, and around 13⅛ per cent discount.

Pressure of Argentine wheat continues abroad, and the Buenos Aires market closed 1c lower with March at 41⅞c. China was said to have bought 6 cargoes or around 1,500,000 bu of Australian wheat.

Corn Market Lower.

Corn market continues to feel the effect of the lack of a broad outside trade and closed ⅜@1⅛c lower with March leading. The latter finished at 39¼c, while May was 41⅜c, and July 42⅞c. The country sold 40,000 bu to arrive, but offerings were less plentiful after the futures started downward. Shipping sales were only 6,000 bu.

Oats were easier on selling by commission houses and in sympathy with corn and closed ¼c lower. May finished at 26⅛ to 26¼c, and July at 25⅝c. Rye closed 1⅞@1⅞c lower, largely in sympathy with wheat. March was 46c, May, 47⅜ to 47½c and July, 47⅜c at the last.

BUTTER FUTURES EASY

Quietness continued in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing ⅜@⅝c lower, refrigerator eggs off ¾c, and fresh graded firsts unchanged to ¼c higher. There is a growing tendency apparent to disregard statistical news lately in both butter and eggs. The storage figures have been very bearish for some time but the fact that storage stocks are moving very slowly compared with previous years does not appear to be exerting material influence. It is largely a question of general buying power as far as the near future price movement is concerned. Continued short covering leads a few leaders to look for an upward turn in the near future as far as butter is concerned. Sales: butter, 39 cars; eggs, 34 cars. Deliveries: butter, 2 cars; eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

LARD AND MEATS LOWER

Lard was offered moderately yesterday and met poor support, resulting in a net loss of from 2½c to 5c on futures. Hogs were lower and there was only a fair trade in all. Bellies had poor support and closed from 10c to 15c lower on futures. Cash bellies are being picked up readily and packers reported a good trade in green and cured meats as prices are low. Liverpool lard was from 3d to 6d higher. Exports of lard were 3,360,000 lbs and of bacon, 522,000 lbs. Hog receipts in the west were larger than a week ago and smaller than last year. Prices follow.

All of what the hog market had gained during the last few days was wiped out yesterday when 40,000 head came into the yards and the general average price fell back to $4.00, only 5c above the lowest level since November, 1899. Some action featured the early trade when small houses were filling orders on a 10@15c lower basis, but the last shred of strength vanished at the close when 81,000 hogs were posted at five points for today against 72,000 last Wednesday.

No encouragement came from the wholesale market for fresh pork, which finished extremely dull and at a new low despite continued cold weather at many points. Large local packers were buying hogs at 20@25c decline near the close and left 8,000 in the pens. A scattering of 170@210 lb sorted hogs went east at $4.25, the peak price, but the bulk of 170@300 lb averages sold on local account at 3.85@4.15. Pigs were not so plentiful and only poorer grades were available at $3.25 and below $3.25. Medium to good slaughter pigs were picked up at $3.50@3.75 and outstanding lots reached $4.00.

March Hogs Offered at $5.25.

March heavy hogs were offered at $5.25 on the futures trade yesterday, but only a few bids were made for these contracts, all around the $4.00 line. Bids for light and medium weights for March delivery ranged up to $4.50@4.60 and May light weights carried $5.00 bids at the close.

No change in the stagnant condition of the cattle trade yesterday was apparent in spite of the comparatively light receipts. Offerings were largely medium grades that have been slow sellers for some time, and the trade developed into another draggy "catch as catch can" affair soon after a top-heavy opening. The majority of the supply consisted of steers of mediocre killing flesh valued at $5.50@7.50, some at the outside figure showing evidence of long feeding. Only well fattened corn feds are eligible to more than $8.00. The $9.00@10.00 kinds are few in numbers and cut little figure in the general cattle market.

Prices Weak to Lower.

One shipment of 1,275 lb steers at $10.50 filled a special eastern order carried by Swift buyers, the price being the highest of the day. All but top classes of cattle were weak to slightly lower again. Butcher stock exhibited little action and scattered sales were considered slightly lower. Most cows went for slaughter at $3.25@4.25, only prime offerings reaching $4.50@4.75. Light butcher heifers at $3.50@4.50 were easiest to dispose of, but the better grades of yearlings at $5.00@5.50 were slow. One lot averaging 761 lbs topped the market. Calves turned active and moved up 25c in value. Packers bought at $6.00@6.50 and city butchers at $7.50@8.00, while "bobs" went at $3.50@4.00.

Liberal supplies at eastern distributing centers have lowered the wholesale price of lambs and effectively checked buying on shipping account. The spread between Chicago and eastern prices is unusually narrow. Wholesale selling locally showed some improvement and the better tone in the Chicago trade was immediately reflected in buying of native lambs by houses here. Average prices were fully steady and in spots slight gains were recorded. The top to city butchers moved up 5c at $6.60, while packers who refused to pass $6.00 for good lambs Monday were more aggressive at $6.00@6.35. Country buyers show more interest in shearing lambs since the price of slaughter stock rebounded after falling to $6.00 early last week, and most sales on country account lately are at $4.50@5.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 9,000 cattle, 33,000 hogs and 16,000 sheep, against 11,724 cattle, 24,495 hogs and 13,507 sheep the previous Wednesday and 11,119 cattle, 27,749 hogs and 14,988 sheep a year ago.

SOUTH SELLS COTTON; SUPPORT IS LIMITED

Cotton markets had a fairly good tone most of yesterday. Selling by the south was a feature, while the buying support was not so good. Stocks were weaker and, with grains low, there was not the incentive on the part of speculators to buy freely. But in all a fair business passed and prices, after starting at around the highest, closed at the lowest of the day, with net losses on futures in Chicago of 1@5 points and on other markets of 2@6 points. Liverpool was 2@3 points lower and Neuyork exchange was off sharply. Spots were unchanged, with middlings in New York 6.80c, New Orleans 6.65c, Galveston 6.60c, and Houston 6.55c.

Trade conditions in the textile line continue fairly satisfactory with domestic cloth prices, and sales are above the average with higher prices asked on many lines. English mills are taking American cotton freely at fractionally higher prices, and unsold stocks in Liverpool are said to be small. The world consumption of American cotton is 8@10 per cent over last year, when it was 11,113,000 bales. Bennett's report on cotton ginnings was taken as rather bearish. Prices follow:

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928 and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Get the Cost in DOLLARS Before You Borrow.
